SOUTH SIDE HIGH SCHOOL

Fort Wayne, Indiana

Volume 43

'. . . . . the school that has no equal . . . . . '

South Side High School certainly has no equal — not only because it is among the leading high schools in the nation academically, not only because it possesses one of the most qualified faculties of any high school in the country, not only because its student body is imbued with a strong sense of unity and school spirit in all areas of endeavor, but also because South Side possesses a distinct singularity. In its very classrooms and its halls it is endowed with this unique character and personality. Although South Side does not possess unsurpassed superiority in all aspects of its life, it does command a scintillating record of achievement for a school in its class. Regardless of its meritorious position in all areas when compared with other schools, to any person who has passed through its long corridors, pondered in its ancient desks, or penetrated its united spirit at a basketball contest, South Side most certainly has no equal.

South Side has accomplished unique stature through such service.

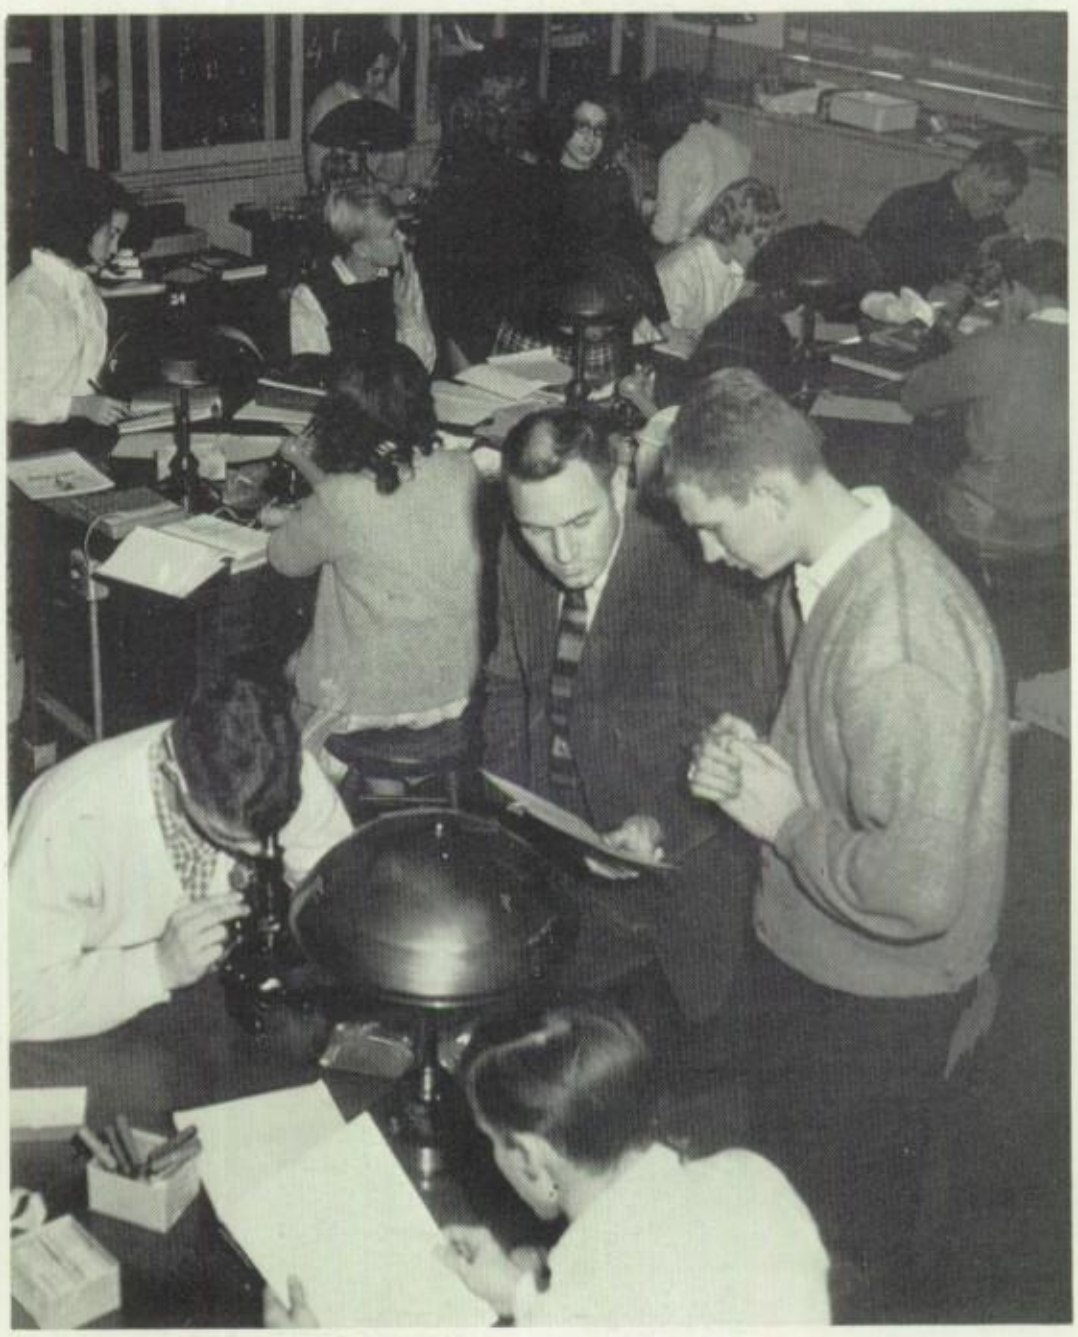
Fulfilling his duty as Times and Totem photographer, Senior Bill Sweet prepares to take a picture at a pep session.

Senior Marianne Harper sets down the Randolph Jacobs Trophy after it was awarded to her for outstanding service to the school. She was elected as the recipient of the trophy by the vote of the members of the Service Club attending the yearly banquet.



Botany instructor Mr. Robert Weber helps a student with his homework as other members of the class continue working on laboratory assignments with microscopes.

Fellow senior classmates watch as Roger Swift tags Ann Gallatin, signifying that she has become a member of the National Honor Society. The Society's members are selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship, character, and service to the school.

Search For Knowledge

The scholastic atmosphere of South Side is rendered "unequaled" by means of the combination of student, faculty, and administrative attitudes. With a record of eleven National Merit Finalists (better than two per cent of the class), mean SAT verbal and math scores of 487 and 564, and a college attendance rate of 62 per cent of the senior class, it is the true intellectual quest pervading all facets of South Side life that makes South Side academically unique.

Recognized by the National Council of Teachers of English, Mickey Goldstein is praised by Mr. Jack Weicker and Mr. Ronald Gersmehl.

Filled to capacity, the choir room rings with strains of youthful voices as the Concert Choir, under the direction of Mr. Lester Hostetler, performs for the many parents who came to hear it sing at the annual Back-to-School Night. The choir sang for the first four periods.

The cello trio, consisting of Clark Marquart, Patty DeVore, and Cheryl Storer, plays for the student body in one of the three music assemblies put on by the Music Department.

South Side students have always sought to develop deep insights and abilities in the intellectual and emotional realm of music; the incomparable quality, however, is that this search is carried out to so great a degree on both an individual and collective basis among the Archers of South Side.

Having earned their choir pins, choir members watch as Margaret Deihl receives her accompaning pin. Each participant has to earn 600 points before he may obtain his pin.

"Rub-a-dub-dub-dub-dub-toot, toot," explains Steve Young as he tells the students about the new pep song which Mr. Robert Drummond composed for South. The group sang the song, "Rise Up," with the accompaniment of two clarinets.

Putting what they have learned to practice, the marching band entertains the student body during the half-time of a basketball game.

Assemblies Workshop member Larry Shine reminisces to his family about previous Thanksgiving during the Thanksgiving Day assembly.

Times homeroom agents Kay Dickey and Laura Graham turn in subscription money to their bookheads Maureen Mickelson, Kathy Doyle, and Linda Ingebrand.

Kelly Clubs

In an aura of education and service, South Side's manifold student organizations have taken their rightful places. Persons, projects, and programs come and go, but the same vibrant spirit lives on. The personality of South Side is molded and ennobled to a great degree by these organizations, and that personality is also individualized by the uniqueness and degree of excellence achieved by them. The newly-formed Cinema Guild brought what is a whole new dimension of education into our school, while other clubs maintained and extended the activities which have determined their revered reputation through the passing years.

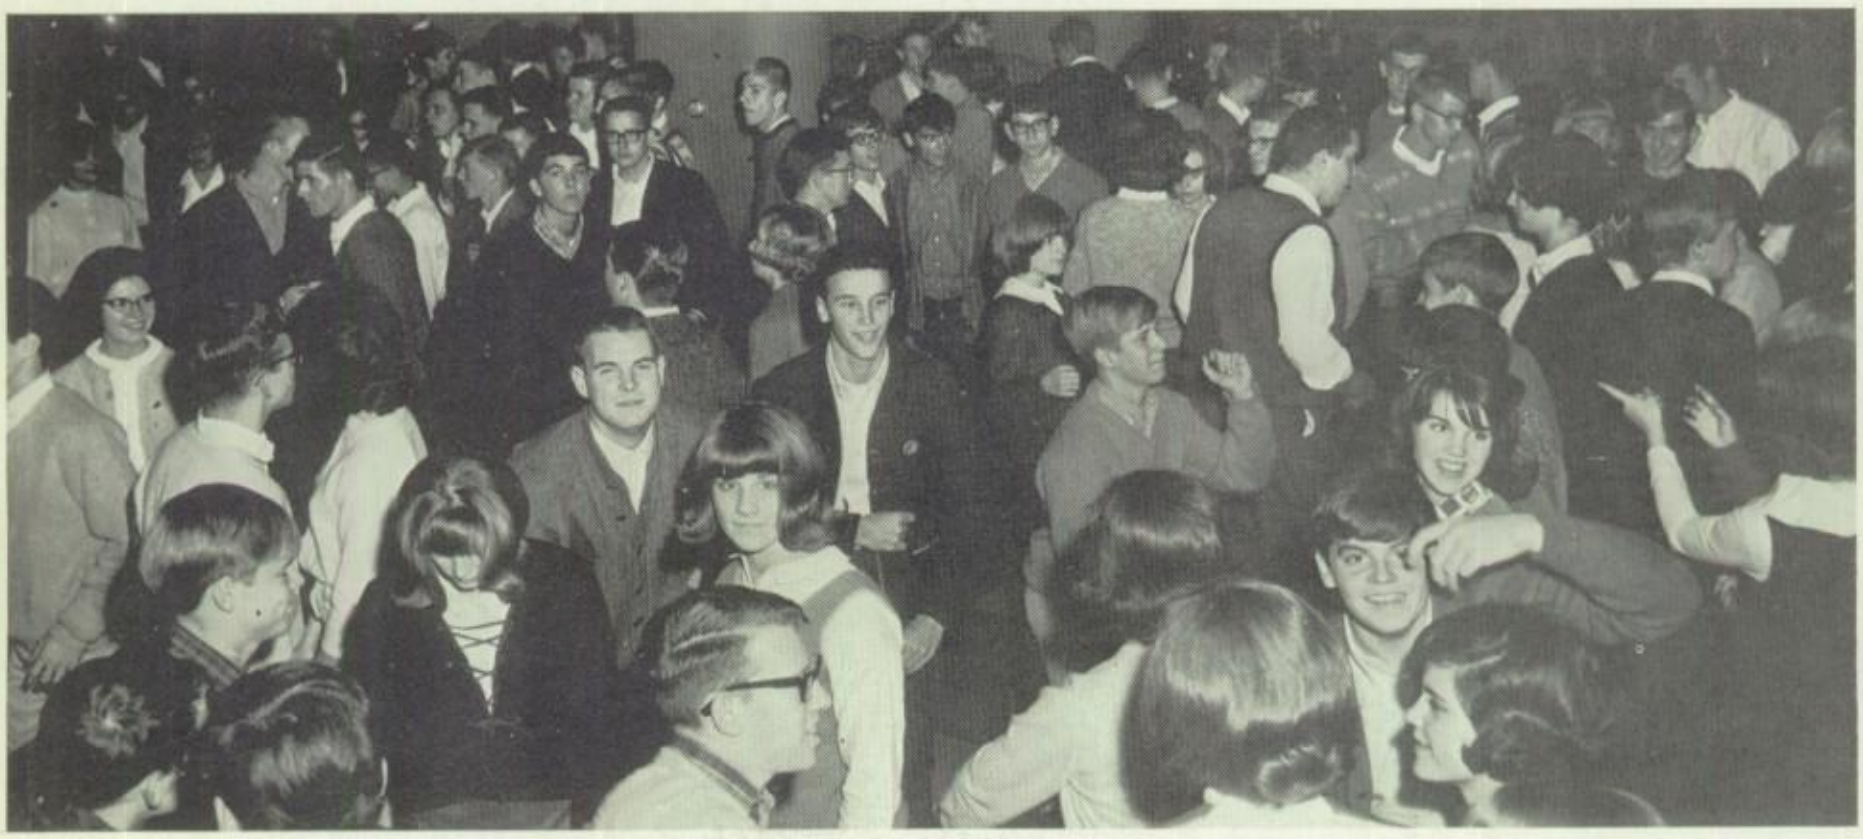
Performing their duty as school majorettes, the organization marches in the 1964 Ivy Day parade. The majorettes march at ball games and at various parades in Fort Wayne including the Veteran's Day and Memorial Day parades.

Christmas-Card magnate Gary Bennet listens to the pleas of Lee Goldman as the latter begs the artist to stick to simpler designs than the one on the wall for his cards. Sue Mumy, the secretary, observes the action at the Philo Christmas Party play.



. . . Come on, baby, let's do the jerk, say these students as they help support the school functions by their attendance at the after-game dances. The dances are held in the cafeteria and are sponsored by the clubs of South as a means of making money.

Recreation is a vital aspect of South Side life, necessary to balance the greater demands made on the mind and spirit by other endeavors; such inner "renovation" is constantly in ever-changing, ever-unique progress.

Taking time out at noon to rest his weary bones, Mark Lowens lies down on the desks in the Times room.

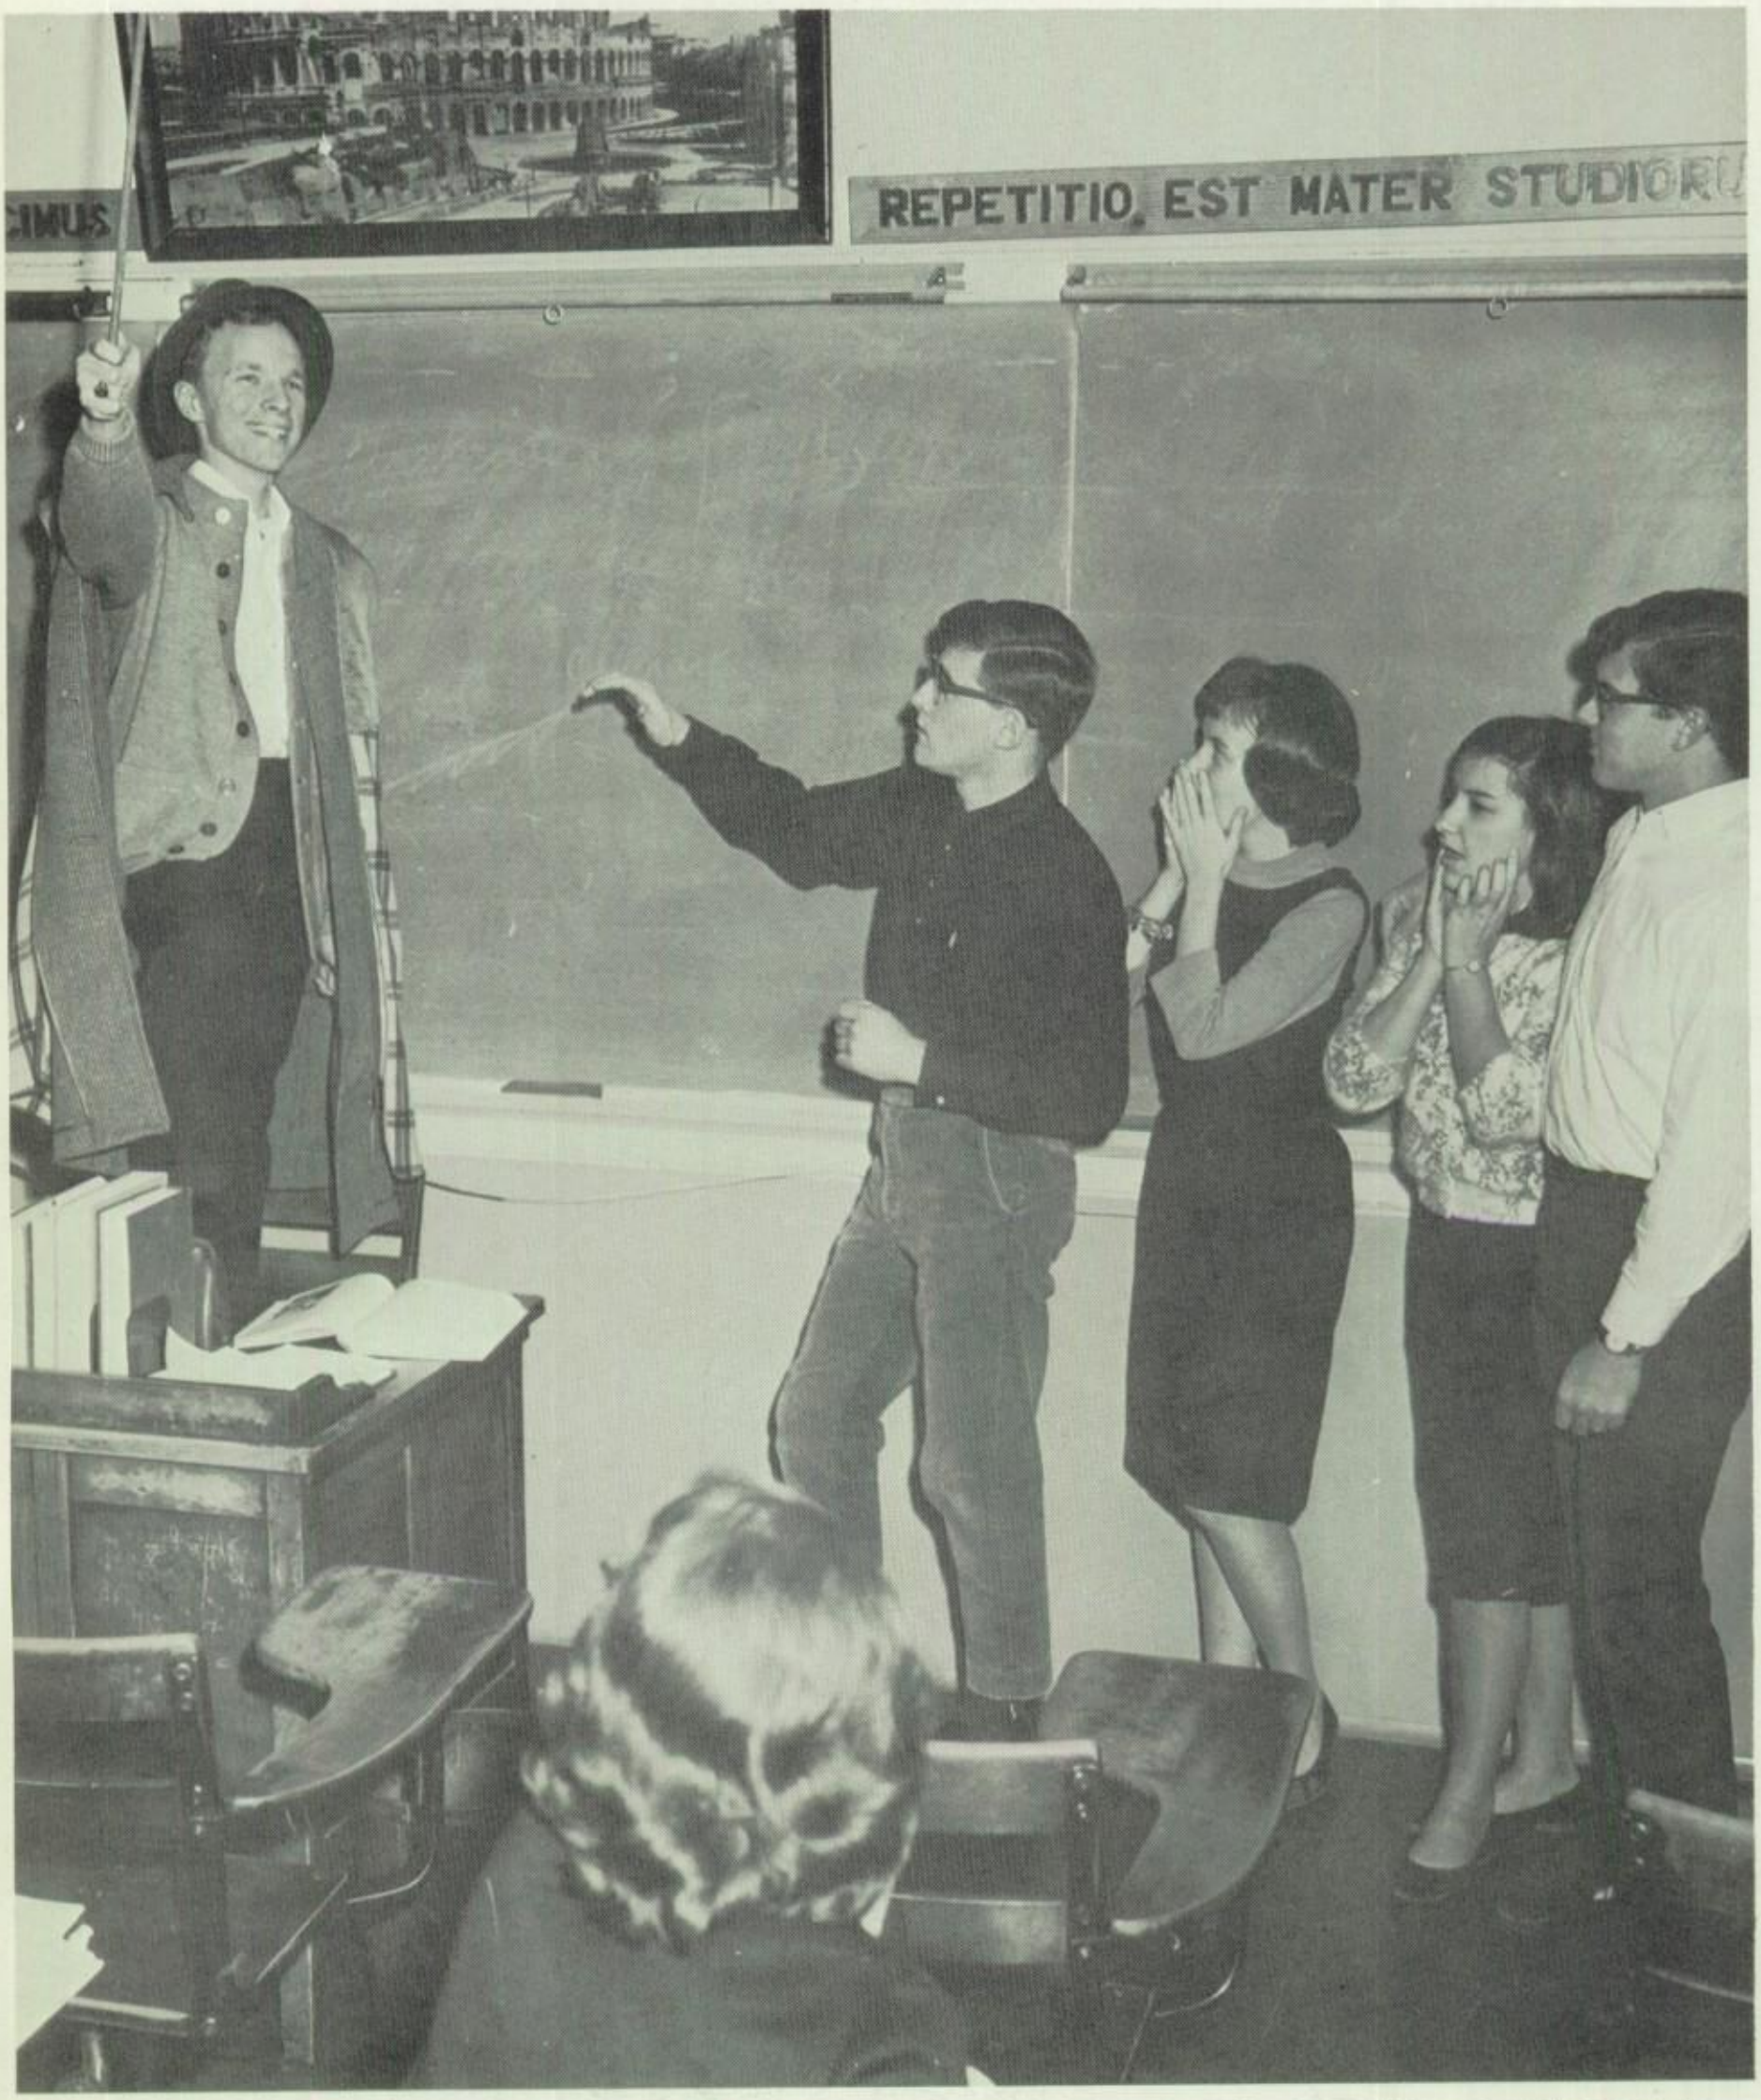
Academics

English Students Analyze Poems, Short Stories, Essays,



A day in old Rome? No, it is just a cornball production of "Visit to a Small Planet" by some hams in Mrs. Spray's English 7 class. Steve Young is the Martian while the defenseless Earthlings, played by Bob Cushman, Marsha Ehrmann. Linda Weaver, and Dennie Gilbert, look on.

Plays, Learn Basic Fundamentals Of Sentence Structure

Endeavoring to acquire, improve, and develop by constant study and effort the basic fundamentals of our English language, South Side students were offered an inclusive program by the English Department. The ability to express explicitly one's thoughts through composition and to comprehend and digest literary material was the primary goal of the serious student.

By writing a minimum of nine themes per semester, the student improved his writing skills and mastered those "dangling participles" and "run-on sentences." Grammatical rules penetrated his mind through extensive and intensive instruction and repetition.

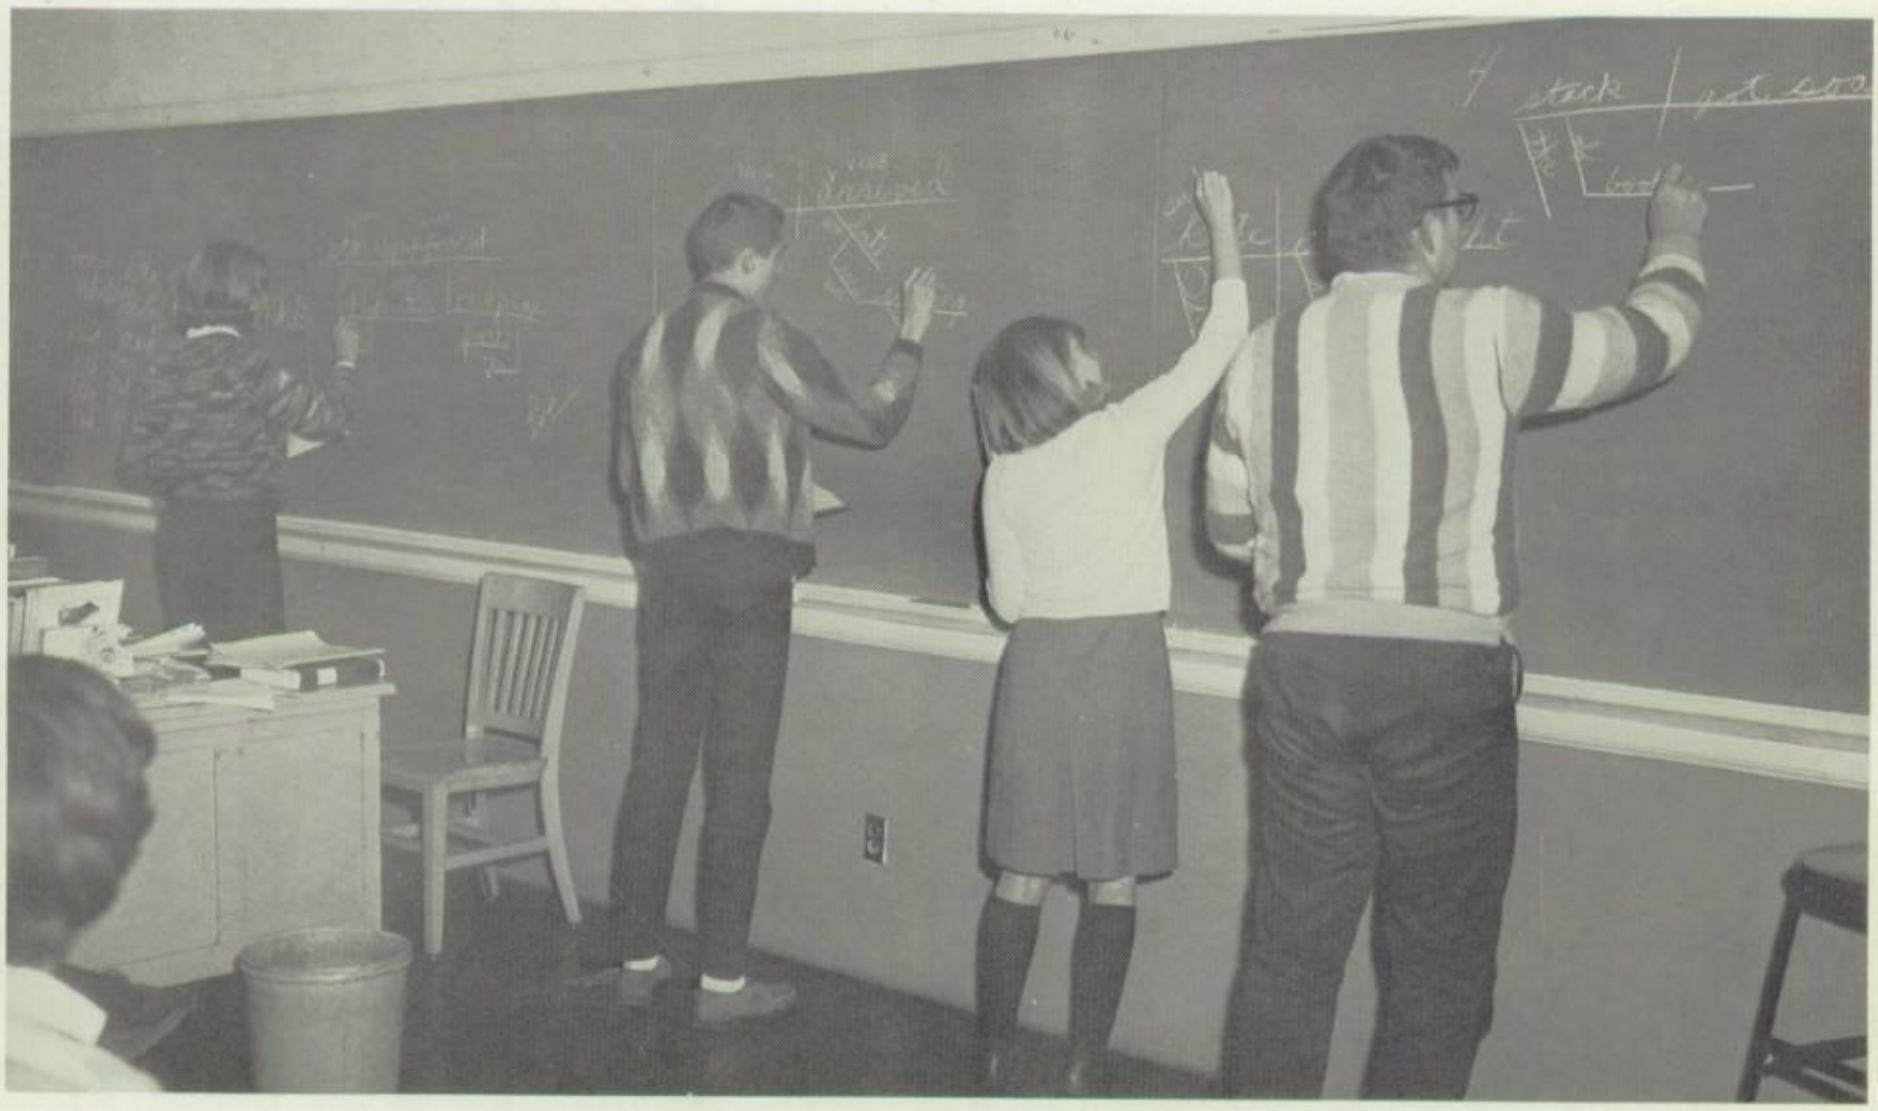
Serving as additional composition practice, the research paper, which could be constructed from any topic, prepared the student for advanced college work by acquainting him with note and bibliography cards, syllogisms, the Reader's Guide, and various other reference facilities offered by the library.

From Julius Caesar to Beowulf, from short stories to novels, the progressing student developed analyzation power and demonstrated his dramatic talent in an hour-long book report.

The department offered still another opportunity — that of increasing the student's reading speed and improving his comprehension and vocabulary with a developmental reading course.

Through years of exasperating toil, many a student stayed up until the "wee hours of the morning" but gained an extensive background and foundation in our English heritage.

"Asleep, my love?" ponders Diane Arnold, as she and the rest of the room read and interpret a difficult Shakespearian play.



Diagramming sentences helps students to better understand basic sentence structure. After learning about the rules of proper sentence construction, sophomore English 3 students Ann Haywood, Dennis Teague, Julie Buchheit, and Steve Roberts put their knowledge to practice.

"To be, or not to be . . . " Noreen Burdick practices her oration in a very pointed manner before delivering it to the class.

To project a pleasing personality, to improve the fundamental process, to learn the skills involved in the various forms of communications, and to participate in a democratic society were the aims of the students in the Speech Department this past year.

Increasing self-confidence was the primary goal of most students. Erect posture, easy movement, direct eye contact, alertness of mind, and earnestness and energy in the voice were the traits of the poised speaker. Some succeeded in their goal, others failed; but all reached a new understanding of speech preparation and delivery.

Whether slurring through the tongue-twisters, tripping off the stage after a demonstration, or "freezing" during the heckling speech, each student suffered a variety of embarrassing moments.

When the year ended, those who experienced such trying moments realized the value of Demosthenes' statement, "Men are proved by their speeches whether they be wise or foolish."

Another means of communication, writing, was emphasized in the Journalism Department. Important grammatical functions were stressed and various techniques and approaches explored.

In addition, newspaper terms and techniques were learned and applied by the students. The Times served as a good outlet and stimulus for the practice of journalism.

Covering a news story or contemplating an editorial were complicated procedures that were studied by many. Methods of preparing propaganda and advertisement served to stimulate interest among some, while touring the Fort Wayne Newspapers during Newspaper Week provided first-hand experience in its actual presentation.

Future Journalists, Orators Perfect Prospective Talents

Journalism students in Miss Anne White's class individually read high school newspapers as a part of their analyzation of ideas and presentation. Rosel Gallmeister examines a particular item from the Concordia Lu-Hi Voice, while all of the other students listen.

Linguists Ponder Vocabulary, Translations, Conjugations

During a pause from the usual study of Latin vocabulary and translation, Miss Edith Reiff gives an idea of architecture typical in ancient Rome.

Bonjour, buenos dias, guten tag, and salute! Representing the four major fields of the Language Department, these greetings are but a few of the diverse vocabulary and idomatic expressions presented in the foreign language courses.

The beginning French student found himself challenged by verb conjugations and grammatical applications, while the progressed "etudiant" concentrated on oral recitation and the translation of several French novels and plays to good English.

Likewise, the Spanish course placed its emphasis on the acquisition of a basic vocabulary and the first principles of grammar. The customs of our Spanish-speaking neighbors were further explained, while their history and legends were intensively explored in the elevated courses of study.

Now being offered for the second year, German provided the student with still another tongue to master. Its approach placed emphasis on hearing, speaking, reading, and writing respectively, alternating somewhat in sequence the second year. Through the use of records, the student practiced at home his dialogue adaptations and learned to familiarize his thoughts with the language.

Awareness of words and interest in derivations through the study of prefixes, suffixes, and root words were the basic objects of study for beginning Latin scholars. Having received a general foundation in grammar, the student was later introduced to Latin authors and translated works such as The Argonauts, Pliny's Letters, and Cicero's Four Orations.

Thus the student was well equipped for his part in the expanding future of tomorrow in our shrinking world of today.

Karen Ditton recites her composition into the tape recorder's microphone while Miss Jeanne Smith and her second-year French class listen.

German instructor Mr. Roberts intently watches several of his students puzzling over a sentence that has stumped the class.

Putting to good use her knowledge of Spanish, Junior Virginia Gomez reads to her classmates in Mrs. Grimshaw's Spanish 5 class.

Social Studies Classes Experience Mock Elections, Discuss

United States history students Rick Quick, Fran West, Marietta Oberkisor, Greg Scott, and Cheri McCracken await their turn to vote as Cheryl Jessup finishes casting her ballot in the social studies mock presidential election.

During a World History 2 class, Tony Cornacchione discusses World War II, while Cheryl Winter points out places of interest on the map.

In the torrid political campaign of 1964, the Social Studies Department strove to make each student more keenly aware of the importance of government to each individual.

Dates and more dates seemed to be the essence of world history to sophomores. They learned the history of man and the society in which he lived from the ancient days of Hammurabi to the present days of President Johnson.

Having developed a broad background, the student progressed to United States history. Here he learned why and how our nation evolved to its present-day standing by acquainting himself with the early colonial development, the Industrial Revolution, and various legislative programs such as the New Deal.

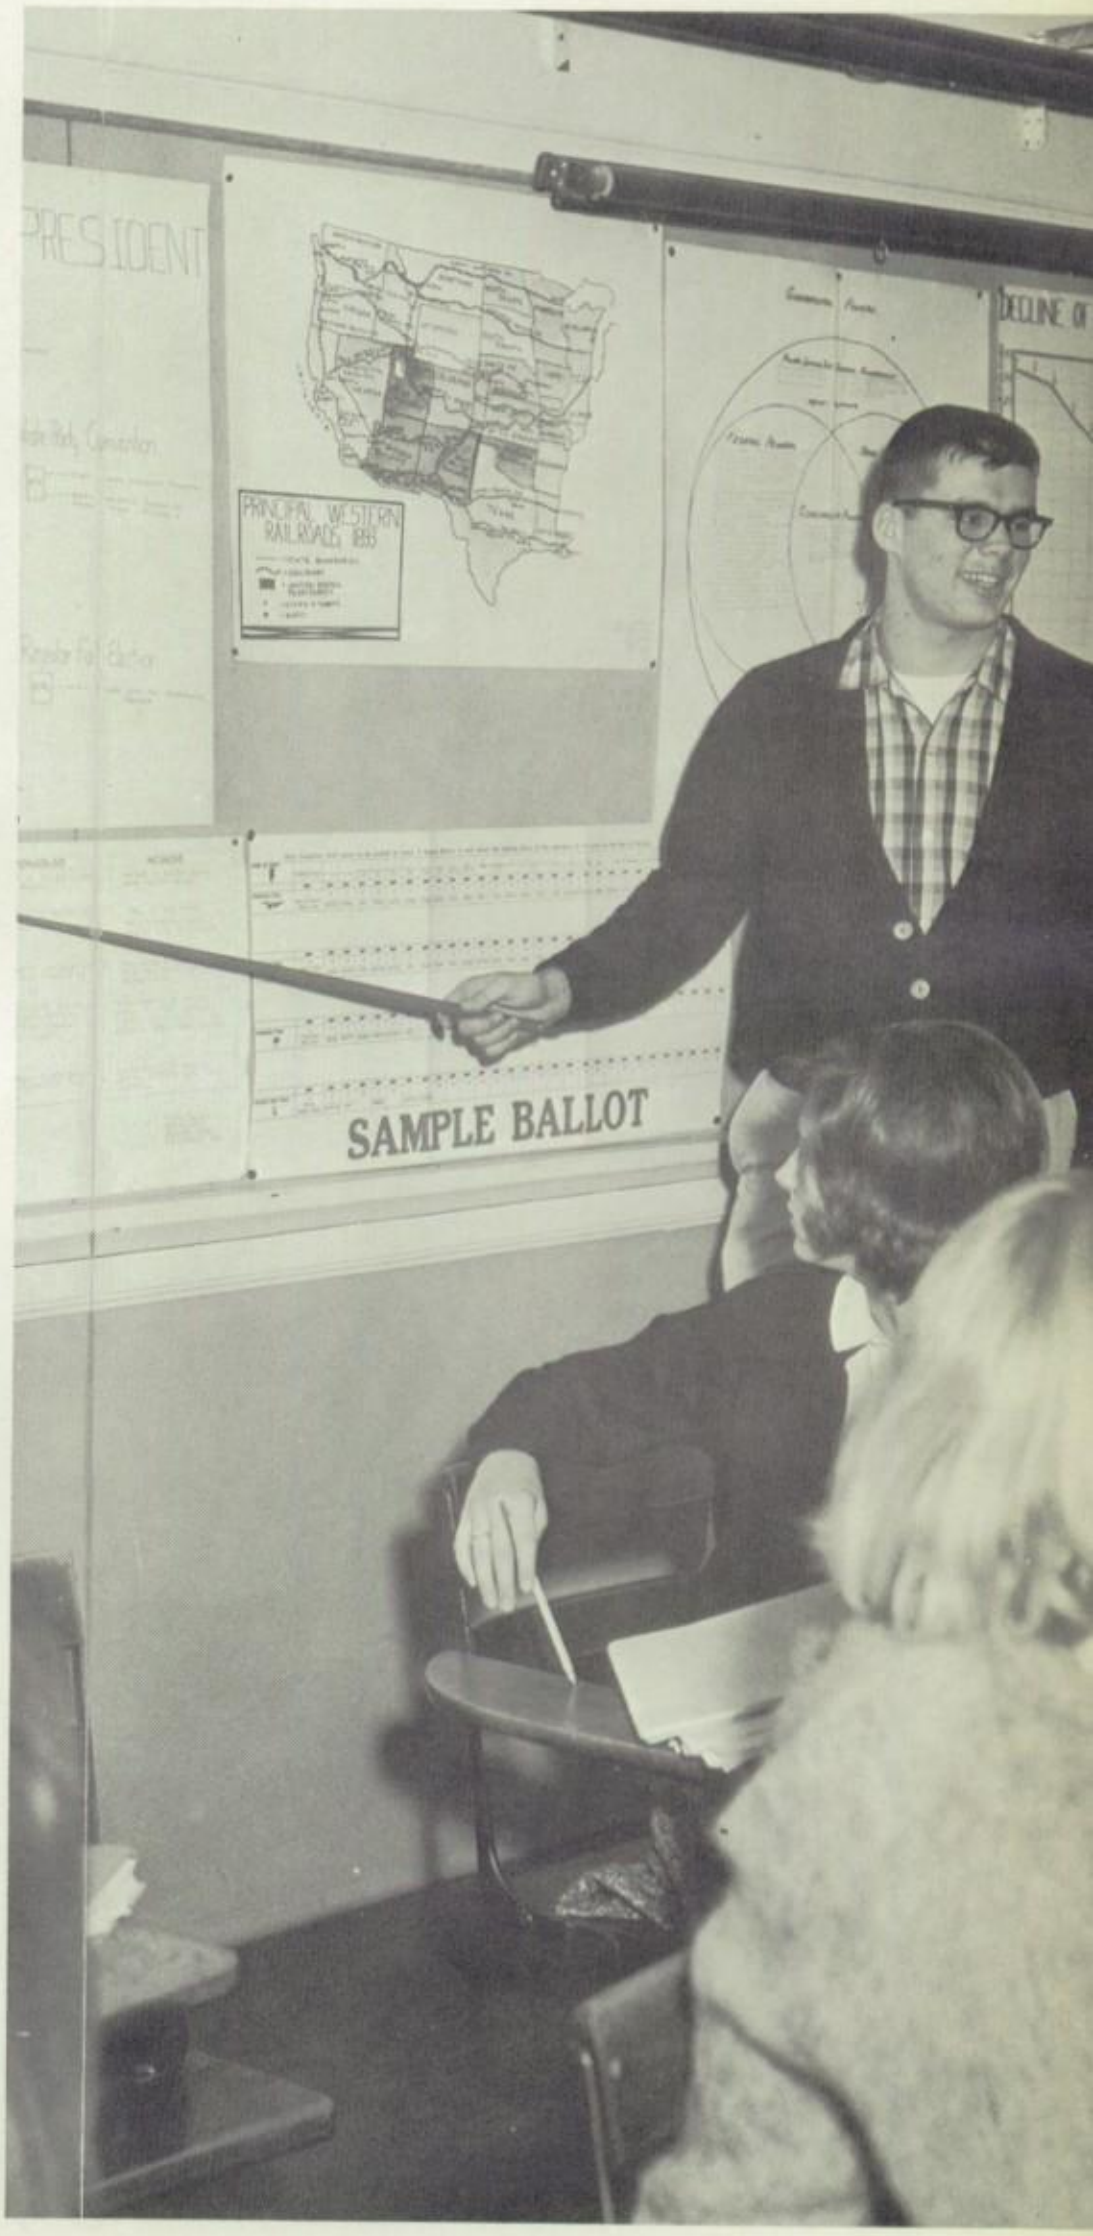
Economics students discovered that money and its distribution and expenditure play an overwhelming role in determining our national and universal economy. Government I students, through never-ending arguments over the Constitution, learned how our nation's government has come to be the culmination of the work of many men; while students in Government II studied in depth the foreign policy of the United States. Sociology, as a terminal, and therefore most vital course, taught students how to deal more successfully with today's complex social problems.

With the aid of recently-published textbooks, five new teachers, and many new audio-visual materials, the Social Studies Department strove to prepare the student for a meaningful and useful life as a citizen of this nation.

Governmental Procedure, World Events, Standard Of Living

Giving a report on the Aborigines of Australia, Senior Linda Becher points to the continent for the members of her Sociology 1 class.

Grinning with satisfaction at the results of one of his satirical comments about government is Mr. Wilburn Wilson.



After studying about the Mongoloid and Negroid in Mr. Arnold's Sociology 1 class, Dan Junk explains their characteristics to his classmates.

Students Plan For Prospective Careers In Business World

Acquiring more information which will help her when she is out of high school, Senior Patty Ruberg listens to the instructions of business teacher Mr. Leon Dolby while fellow classmates experiment with the mimeograph machines, which are used to duplicate materials for teachers.

"Our group had 89 percent fewer headaches when we gargled Crest," jests Mr. Robert Kelly to Becky Lamb in one of his business classes.

Ever-changing is the wheel of business, and ever-expanding is the Business Department's curriculum.

Placing emphasis on shorthand and typing, the stenographic branch prepared the student for a competent position in a beginning secretarial job.

Business English was basically concerned with spelling, punctuation, mathematics, and word usage; while secretarial practice included learning the fundamentals of filing and the operation of business machines, and taking and transcribing business letters.

To teach the student the initial procedure of drawing up various types of contracts was the objective of the business law course. The student studied different methods of property sale and concentrated on filing methods. Business organization and management specifically dealt with the formation of organizations and the operation of small business.

For those not interested in the vocational branches, the department offered a general business course to fulfill the student's needs in the business world.

With South Side's being one of the first schools in the nation to offer marketing, the student pondered over problems of purchasing clothing, cars, food, and homes. Marketing taught the student the fundamentals of credit and budgeting money. If he wanted to take up selling as a career, business problems or merchandising acquainted him with its different aspects.

Thus, by this program, including not only text study but also drill work and actual business contracts, the students were better prepared to be business executives, clerks, salesmen, and secretaries in our expansive business world.

Music is definitely a universal language. Realizing this fact, the Music Department attempted to instill within the student the wisdom and techniques for producing good music himself.

Whether in band, choir, or orchestra, the student was first instructed in the art of reading music. He then applied this skill to differentiate between clefs and to identify songs by means of exerpts of several bars of music.

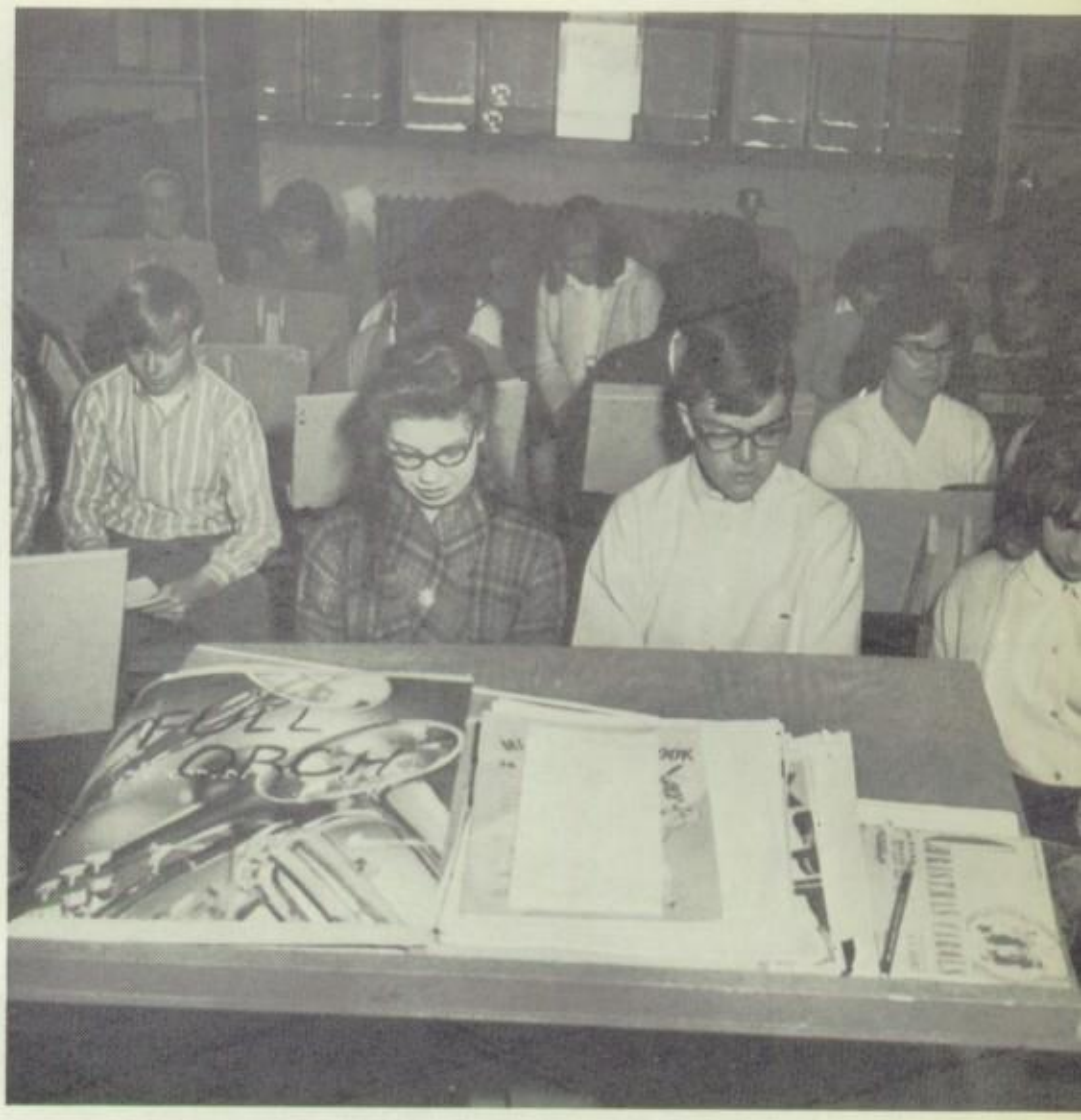
For the vocally inclined, the various choirs ranging from training chorus to concert choir, practiced singing tunes ranging from church music and Christmas carols to show tunes and all-time favorites.

Band and orchestra familiarized the serious student with many types of music and instruments. He played selections from Bach and Haydn, Broadway musicals such as "Oklahoma," and various shorter compositions. Each student tried mastering one or several particular instruments. The band, through constant drill, practiced precision marching, which they displayed at games.

Combining their efforts, the band, orchestra, and choir performed before the school audience and at spring and fall concerts, displaying the ability to produce fine music themselves.

For those who enjoyed only hearing music but not playing it, the music appreciation course offered information about classical and romantic composers and their lives and enabled students to recognize their famous works.

Having attained a background in playing or singing music, the student found a certain amount of self-satisfaction and pride in his time devoted to one of the finer things in life.



This is the music appreciation class as seen by Mr. Drummond. Diligent study will promote easy identification of music of great composers.

Music Department Creates Appreciation Through Concerts

"Sugar and spice and everything nice . . . " This group of girls strives to emphasize the fact that all girls are sweet by demonstrating their melodious voices in song. Actually, it is the fourth-period training choir in practice with Mr. Lester Hostetler directing.

Science Courses Unveil Mysteries Of Chemical Formulas,

Physical geography students Steve West and Al Jackson examine rock structures while Mr. Raymond Hyde assists.

Learning why and how man has gathered his knowledge of his physical environment into an orderly form and how he uses that knowledge to satisfy his curiosity and needs were the main objectives of students in the four fields of the Science Department.

Filling the need for a science without the use of difficult mathematical or technical problems, physical geography combined the basic principles of several sciences and emphasized their relationship to one another and to life. The student learned the reasons for the earth's structure and its meteorological conditions.

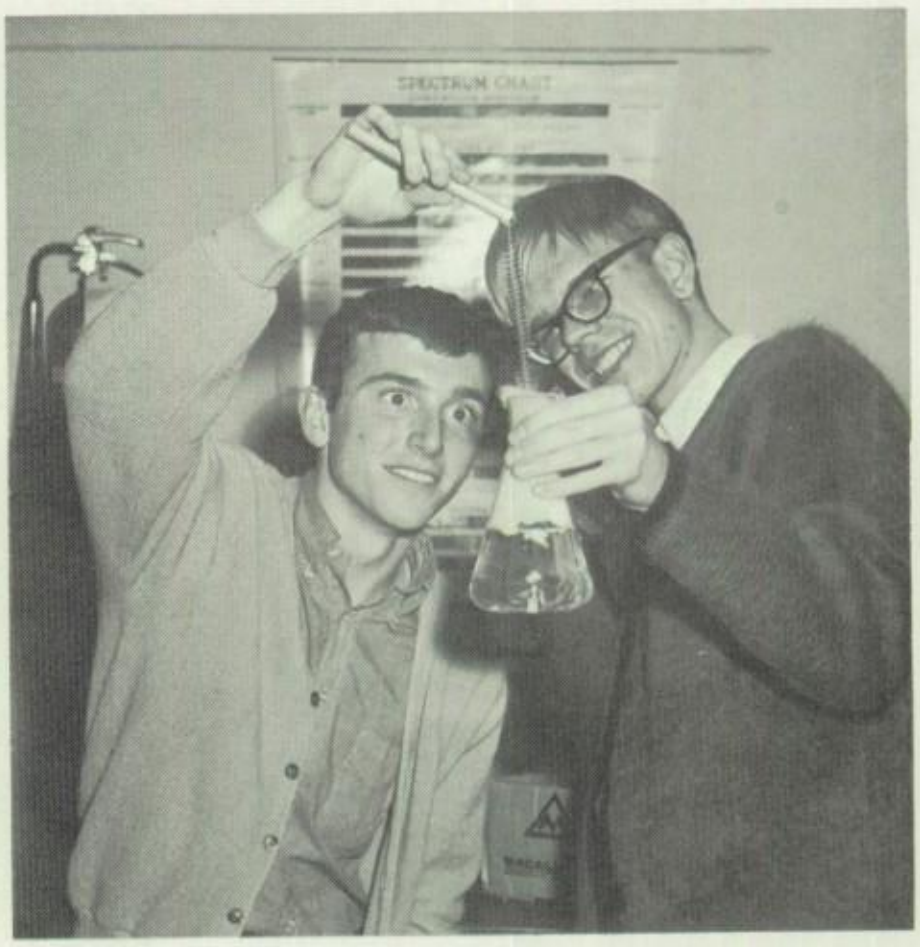
The objectives of the botany student were to gain facility in coming to correct conclusions from observed facts and to form the habit of scientific approach to all problems. In his detailed study of plant life, he learned the difference between palmate and pinnate and between petiole and stipule.

Formerly called natural philosophy or explanation of natural events, physics, the basic science upon which all others have their foundation, acquainted the student with integral relationships of matter and energy through the study of such basic principles as the laws of Hooke, Newton, and Coulomb.

Seemingly endless numbers of "whites," "yellows," and experiments filled the chemistry student's curriculum. In his consideration of the composition, properties, and phenomena of elementary substances, he learned to formulate simple analyses and syntheses and to solve chemical equations.

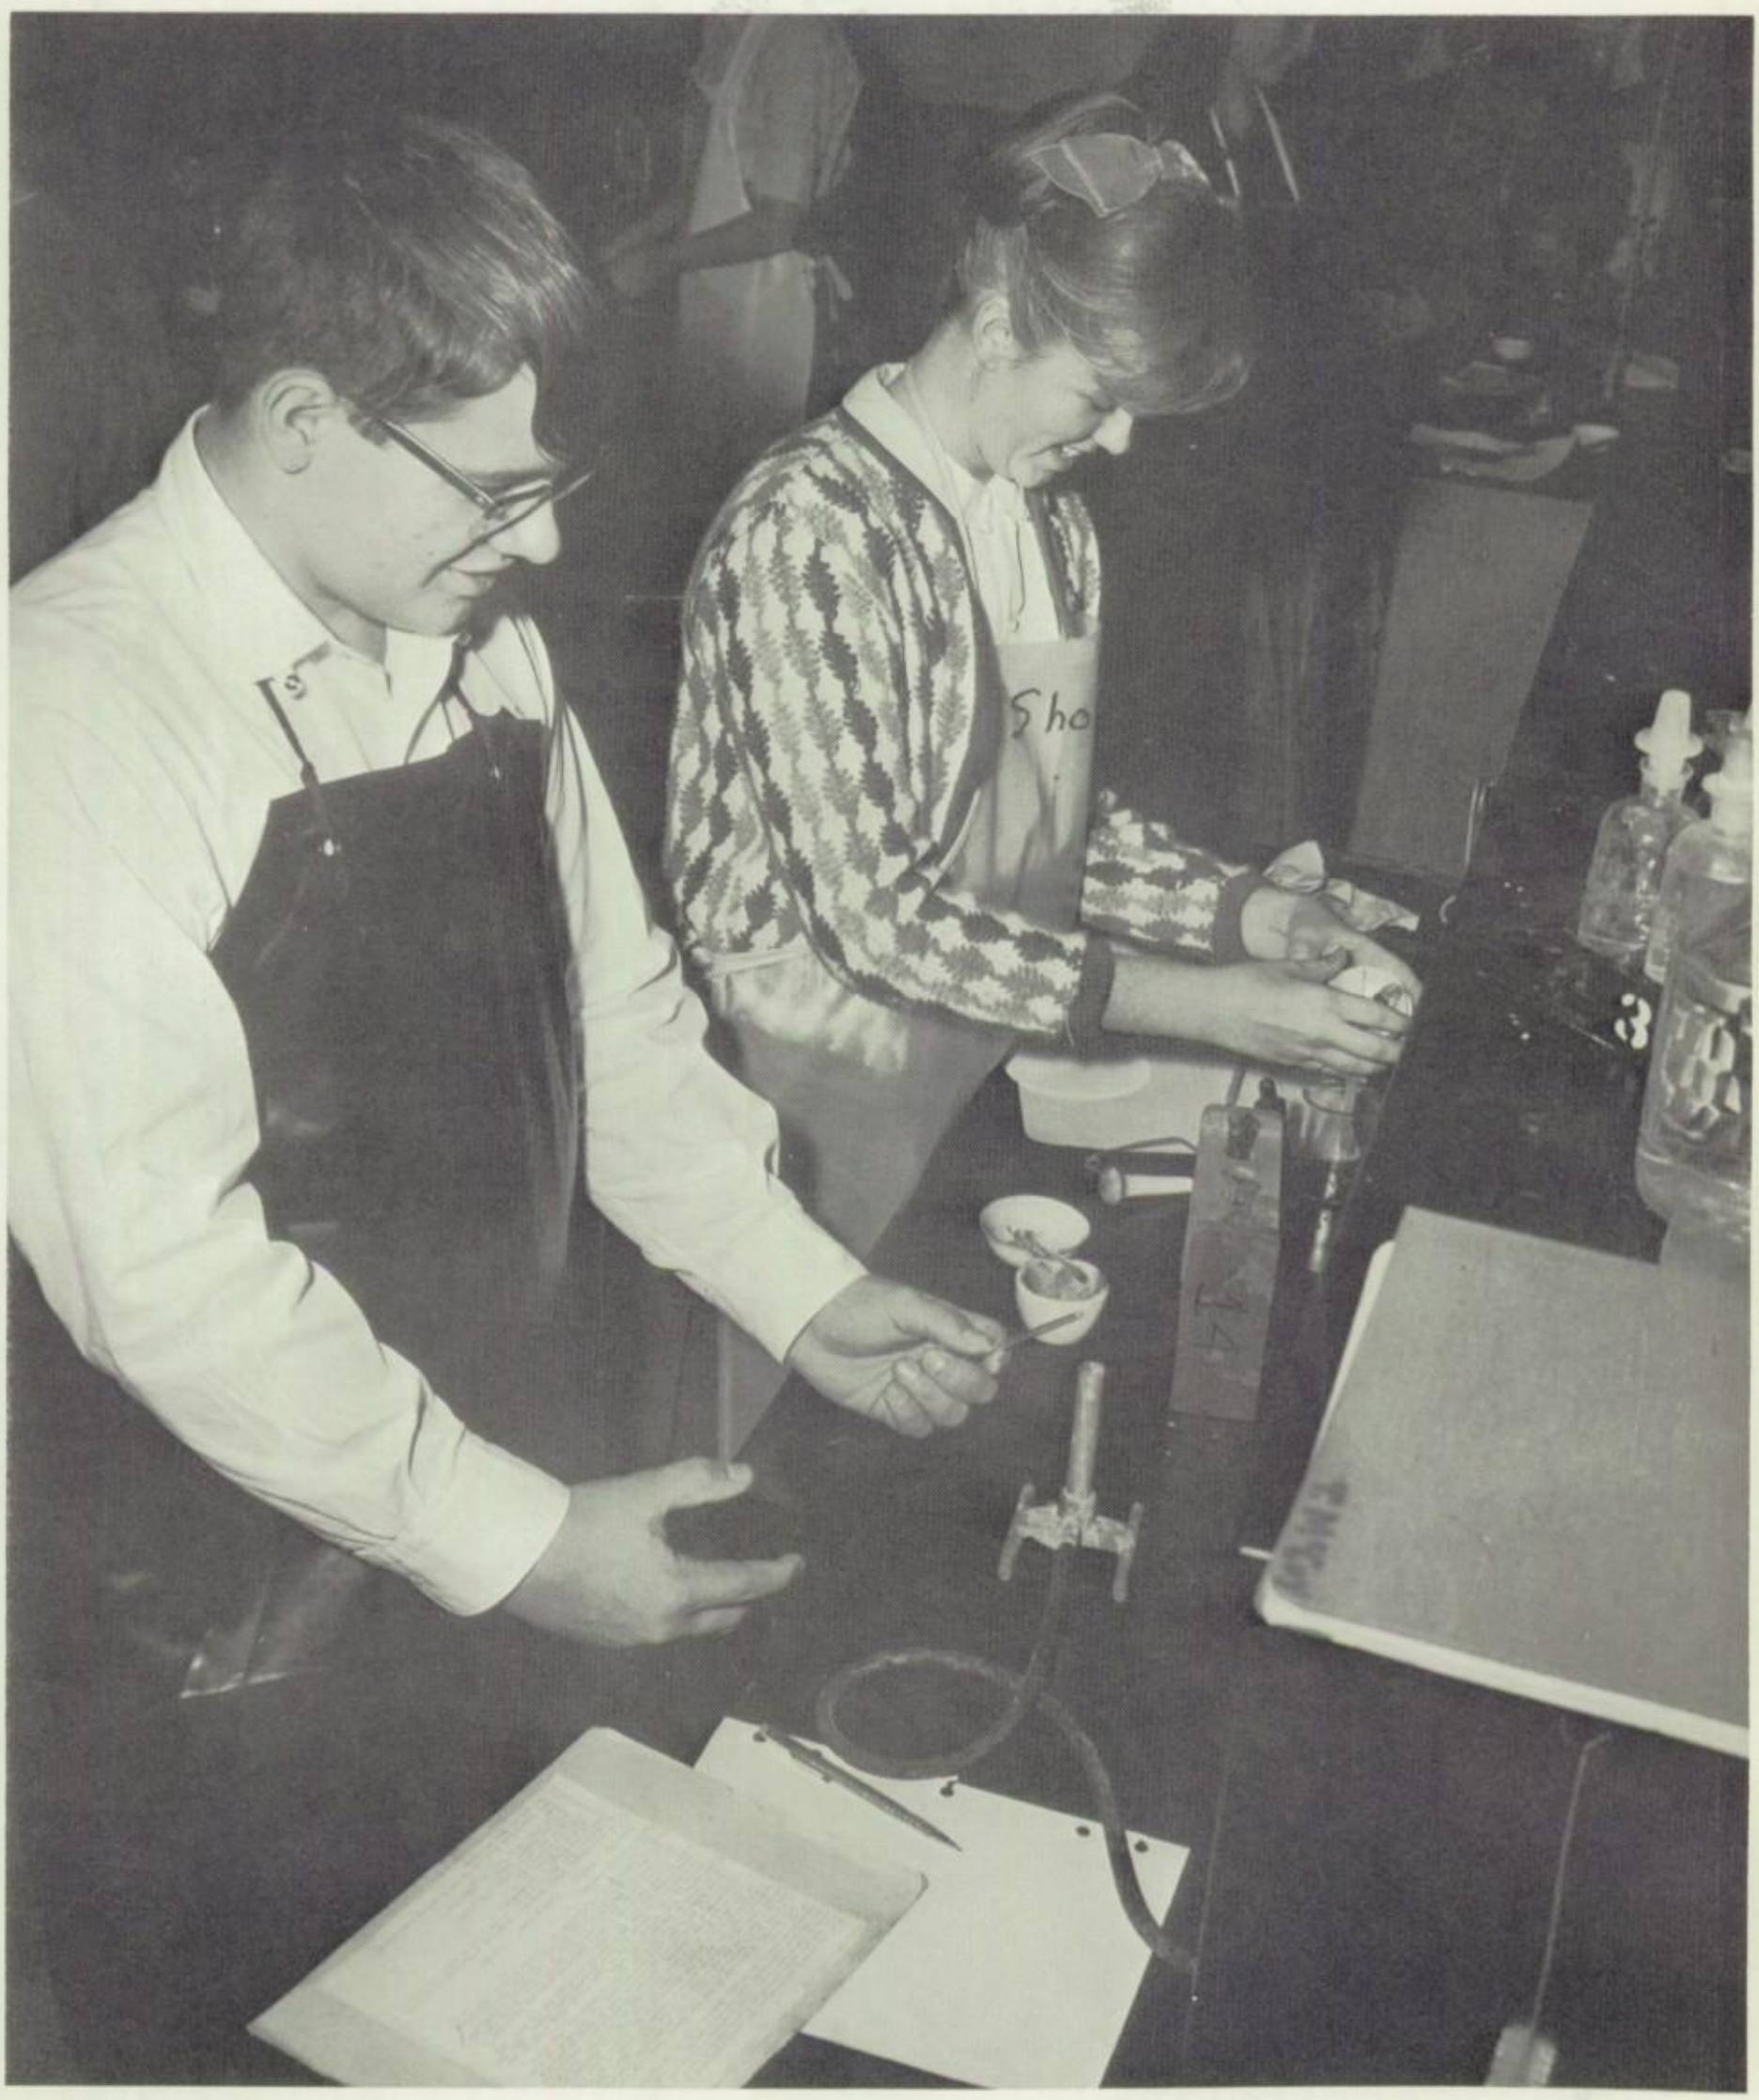
All the science courses were aided in their application and demonstration by the latest equipment, which better enabled the student to understand the processes of today's "scientific" age.

Listening to Mr. Robert Weber describing the various tissues of a tree, his Botany 1 students remember to record major facts in their notes.



"Ah! At last we've found the secret formula!" expounds John McCallister as he and Brook Smith experiment with a flask of dry ice.

Physical Laws; Challenge Students In Scientific Research



Working diligently with a platinum wire to be used for the flame test in the qualitative analysis experiment, Tom McCoy fails to notice the gleeful expression which Connie Kestner displays while she filters a solution of potassium chromate and lead nitrate for a precipitate.

Promising Artists Display Creativity In Sculptures, Oils

Budding artists Nancy Gerke and Cheryl Bauer express their creativity during class through their paper angel handiwork.

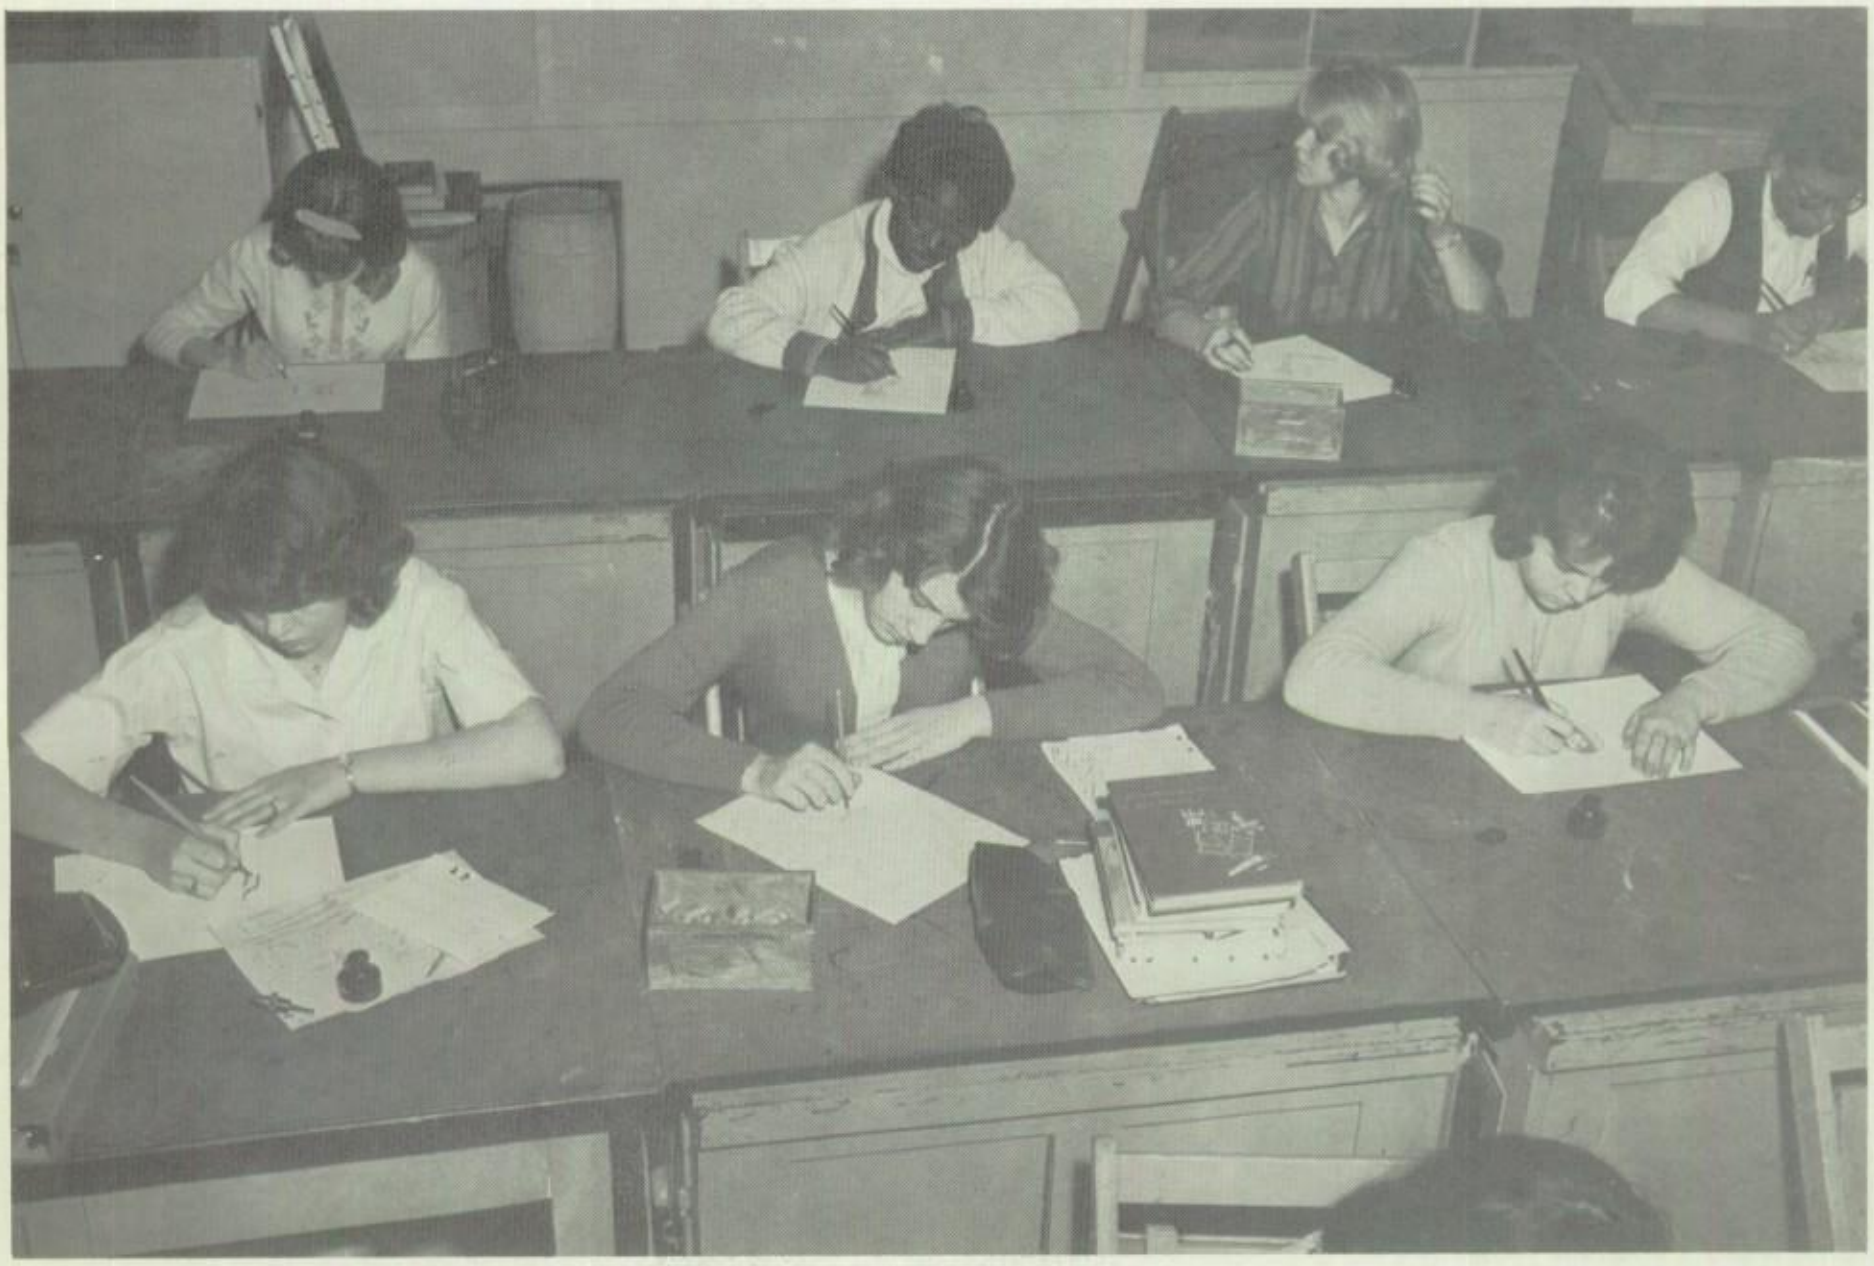
"The very texture of every enduring work of art must imbed the glowing life of its own times and the embers of the past." No matter in what field the artist works — oils, clay, or wood — this principle applies. With this in view, the Art Department strove to implant this conception within the student.

Initiate study began with two-dimensional drawing. The student designed posters and Christmas cards and later advanced to creating space modulators of balsa wood. Both abstract and realistic three-dimensional, molded sculptures were then attempted.

Mechanical art emphasized material technique and the creation of model homes, while block prints and scratchboards resulted in tablecloths and magazine covers.

For the advanced student, a "graduate" program offered him an opportunity to specialize in a field of his preference. Developing his originality of imagination, he delved into fields ranging from abstract painting to elaborate leather work and even managed to paint a self-portrait in oils.

Although none reached the standards of Gainsborough or Whistler, a deeper appreciation for the beauty of art and a greater insight into its formation were attained.



Ink line drawings occupy the time of these Art I students. Each is sketching a small metal piece. They will progress to other methods of artistic expression later in the semester. Other projcts will include poster designing, Christmas cards, and constructions of balsa wood.

Performing one of her daily duties in home economics class, Junior Dee Reinbold begins preparation for a garment by threading the machine.

Basic to the skill of sewing is hemming skirts properly. Janis Pflueger performs this task for Janice Isch while the class works individually.

Homemakers Prepare For Future Life Of Sewing, Cooking

Six varied fields of developing and applying domestic skills and habits were offered this year by the Home Economics Department to young women, soon to fill the position of homemakers.

A preliminary study in the field of clothing acquainted the student with not only sewing techniques but also the use of the sewing machine. An extensive study of both natural and man-made fabrics, the formation of these materials into a garment, and the inspection of their wear and care comprised the more advanced program in the clothing course.

Having learned to determine the nutritional value in foods, a student then applied her knowledge and skills by preparing well-balanced meals. She demonstrated table etiquette in her serving and knowledge of safety procedures in the kitchen.

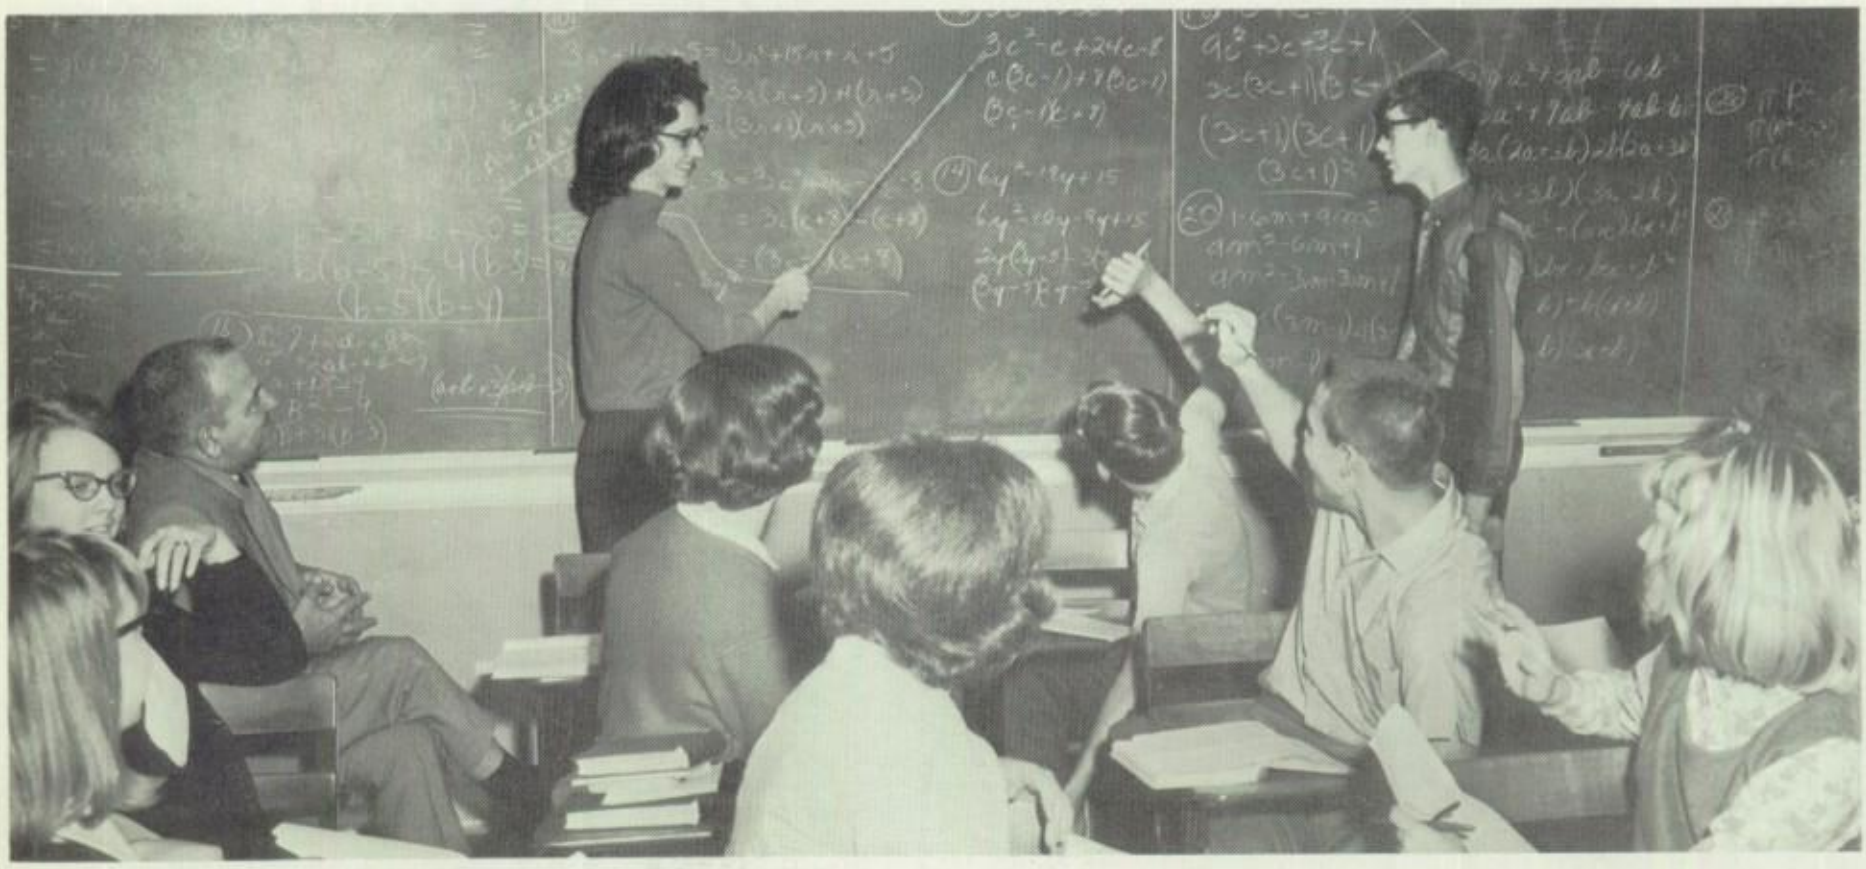
Home management included the study of interior decoration, architecture, and period furniture; yet emphasized the importance of home financing and wise investment.

Following the course prescribed by the American Red Cross, the home nursing program acquainted the student with methods of sanitation and disease prevention. She learned to understand children and their habits not only by studying a child's mental, social, and physical development, but also by observation of an actual child brought to class. A final case study of an individual child concluded her analyzation research.

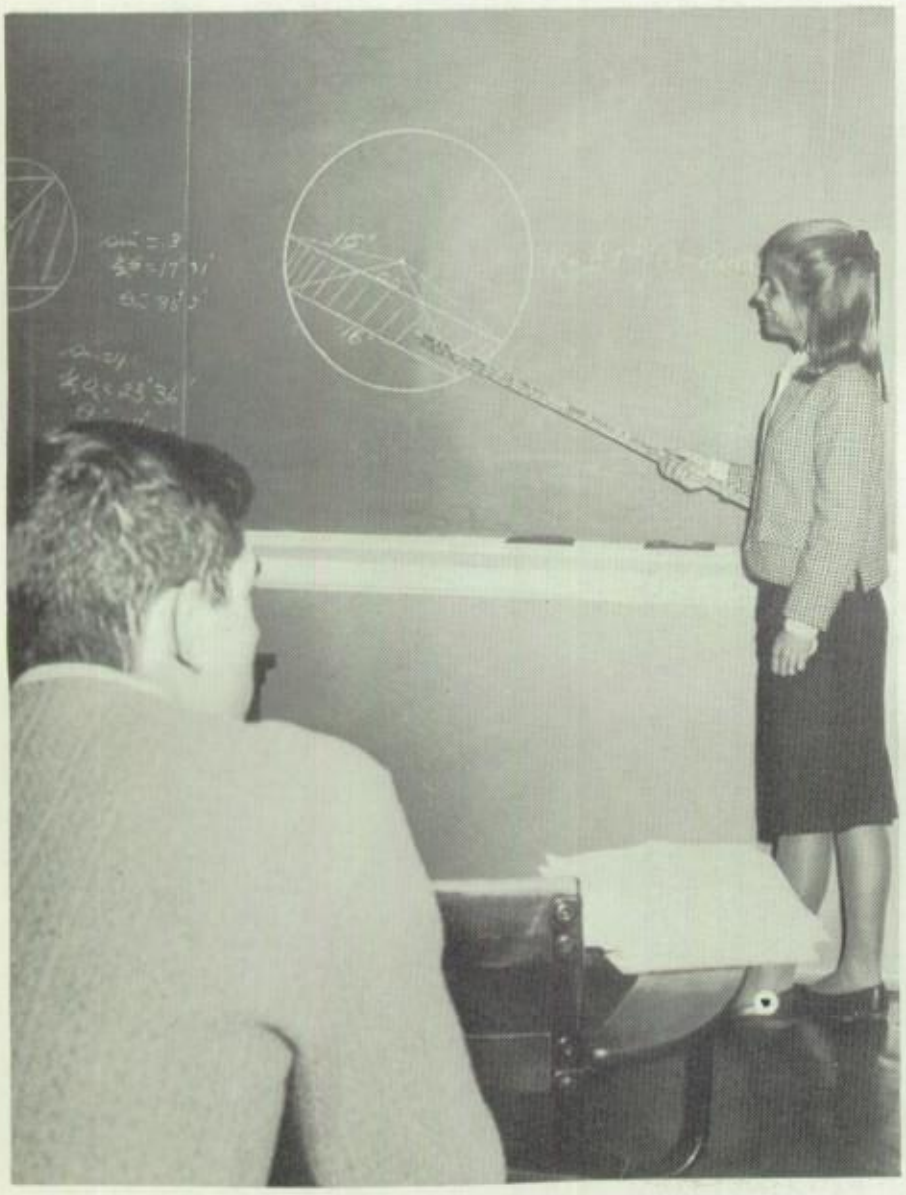
Thus, from this wide-ranged program, our young women were supplied with the basic knowledge of domestic homemaking, essential in achieving "no place like home."

Ingredients for something tasty are formulated by Sheila Richardson during her home economics class.

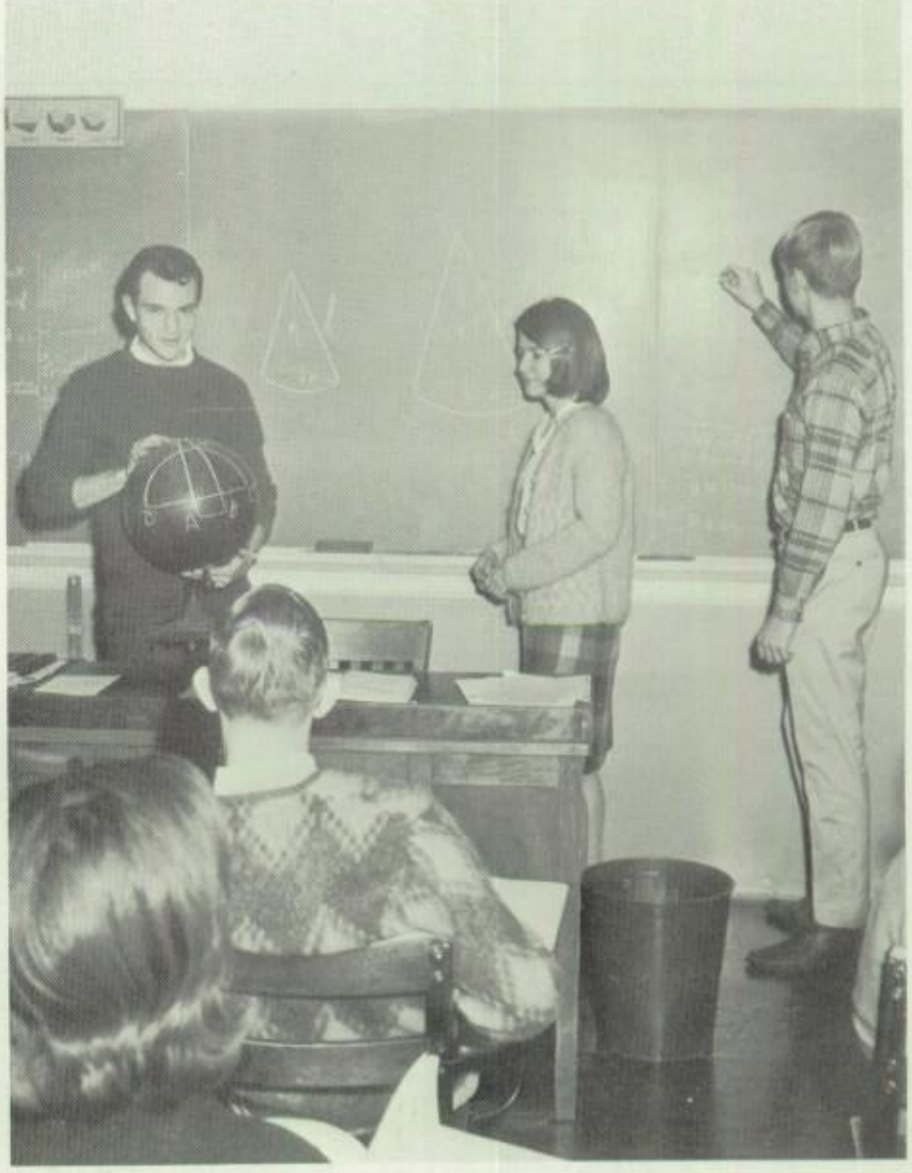
Math Students Use Reason In Concise, Rational Thought,



Algebraic equations do not appear to puzzle this class. Miss Monica Mahoney, student teacher, explains the solution of a quadratic equation to the Algebra 3 class as Ed Flottemesch assists. Mr. David Cramer, apparently pleased with the work, watches from a seat in the rear row.



Trigonometry student Senior Sue Berckmueller explains a problem from the daily assignment as Dan Fortney listens intently.



With a solid globe in hand, Ed Stoller outlines a portion of a solid while Cathy Deal and Dana Trier assist in the presentation.

Prove Theorems, Plot Graphs, Solve Quadratic Equations

Mathematical importance is found not only in practical application but also in the experience it gives the student in clear, logical thought. With this in mind, the Mathematics Department strove to teach not just manipulations of numbers but methods of concise, rational thought.

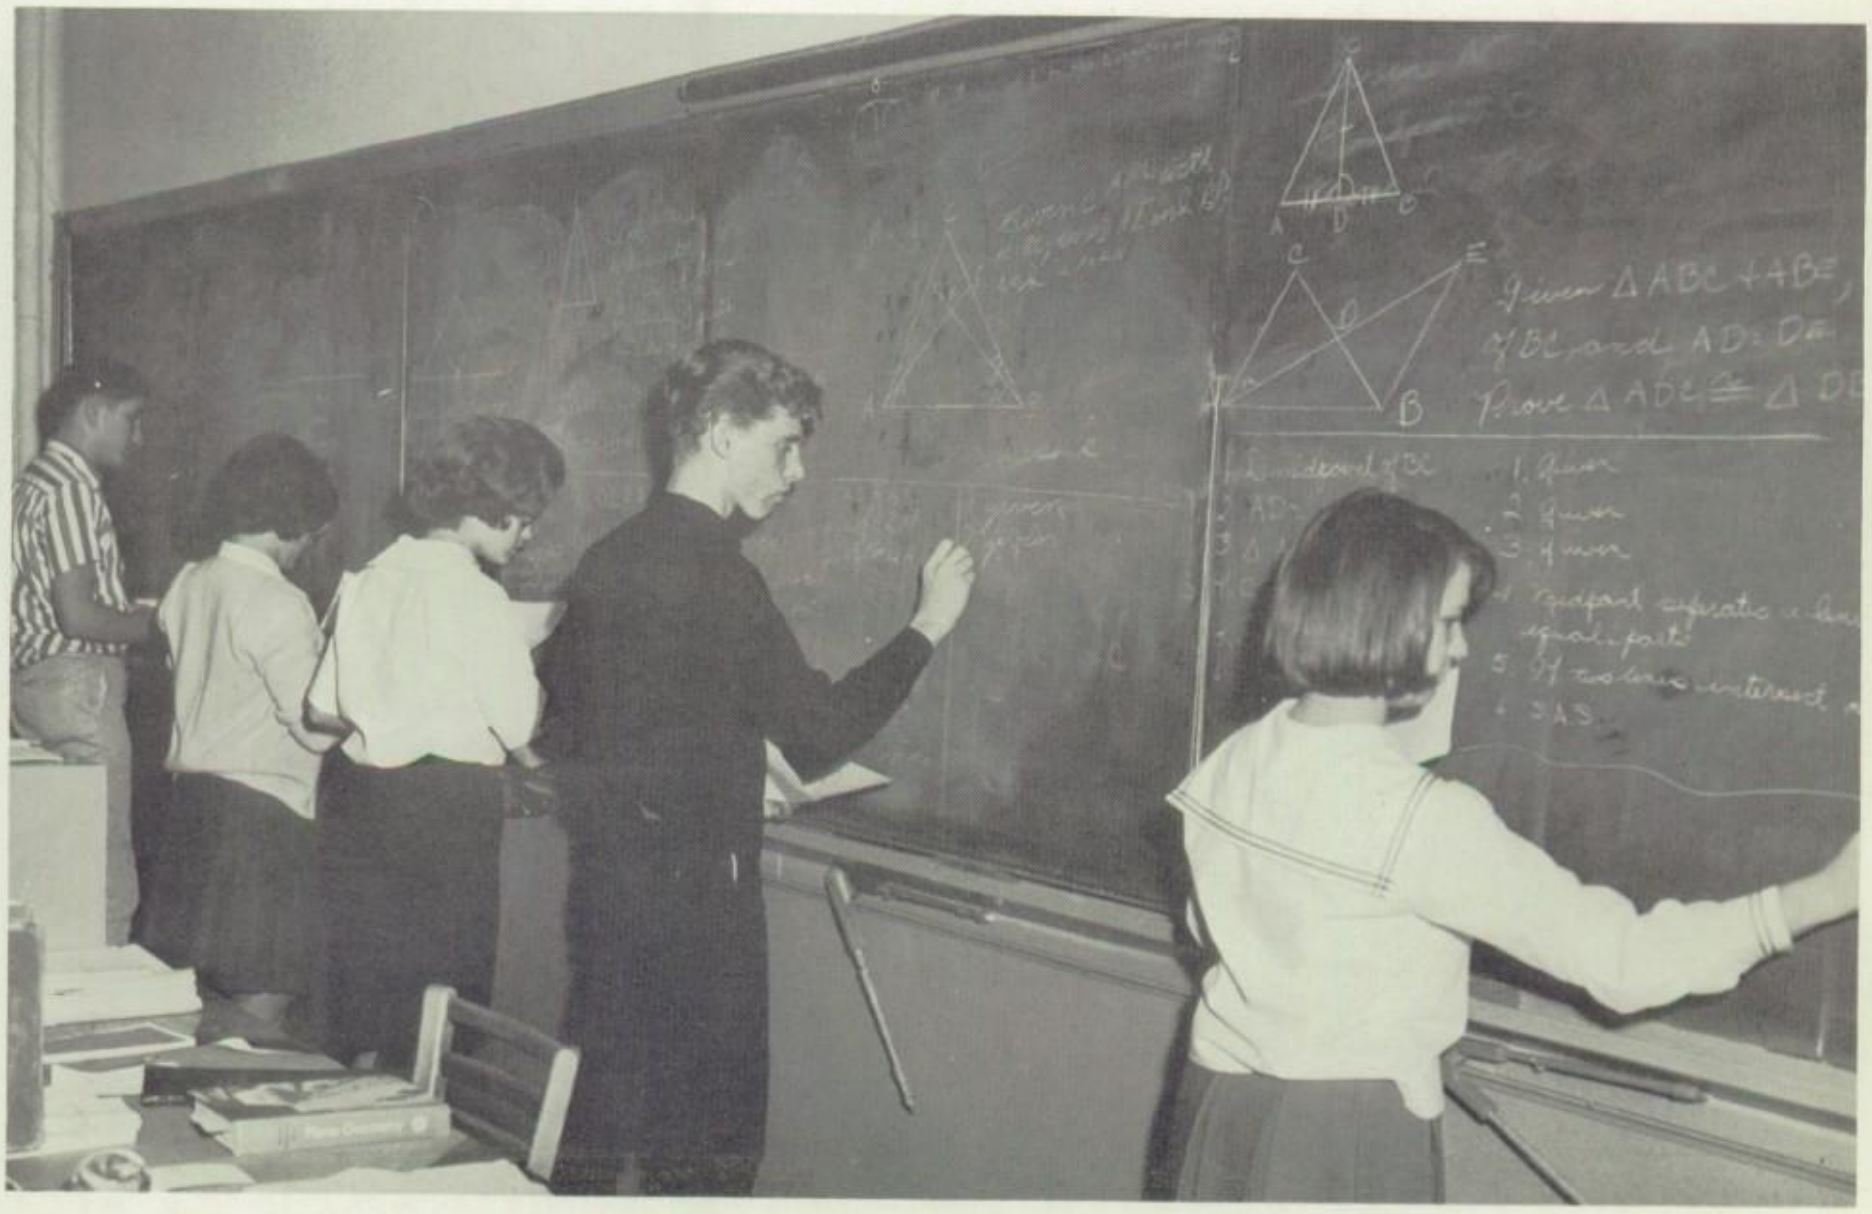
In plane and solid geometry, the student found himself cramming theorems, corollaries, and assumptions into his mind in order to apply these proven reasons in the explanations of mathematical relationships between lines, angles, and solids.

Extending the basic operations and expressions of simple arithmetic, algebra, with the combination of gargantuam polynomials, crooked graphs, and quadratic equations of two unknowns, conveyed to the student a greater insight into his study of math.

Trigonometry unveiled the mysteries of functions, co-functions, and logarithms; while the student found it essential that his "log" tables be omnipresent in determining measurement of the sides, angles, and means of triangles.

In addition to these regular courses of study, the more mathematically inclined students were given the opportunity of delving more deeply into all the phases of mathematics through the department's program of special classes.

Special math students have such fun dissembling cones, but their theory of equation problems thrill them the most.



Geometry students Greg Cook, Peggy Mack, Barb Fisher, Bill Kias, and Peggy Kelly diligently diagram the proofs for their problems of congruency. Through the accumulation of given facts and known hypotheses and theorems, the final statement to be proven can be verified.

"Once more should do it," says Theron Overman as he pulls the starter. Don Gunther oversees as Jim Nahrwald makes an adjustment.

Equipped with everything from the simple hammer and screwdriver to highly complex machinery such as the brand-new milling machine, the industrial arts students gained invaluable training for future occupations in the growing fields of industry.

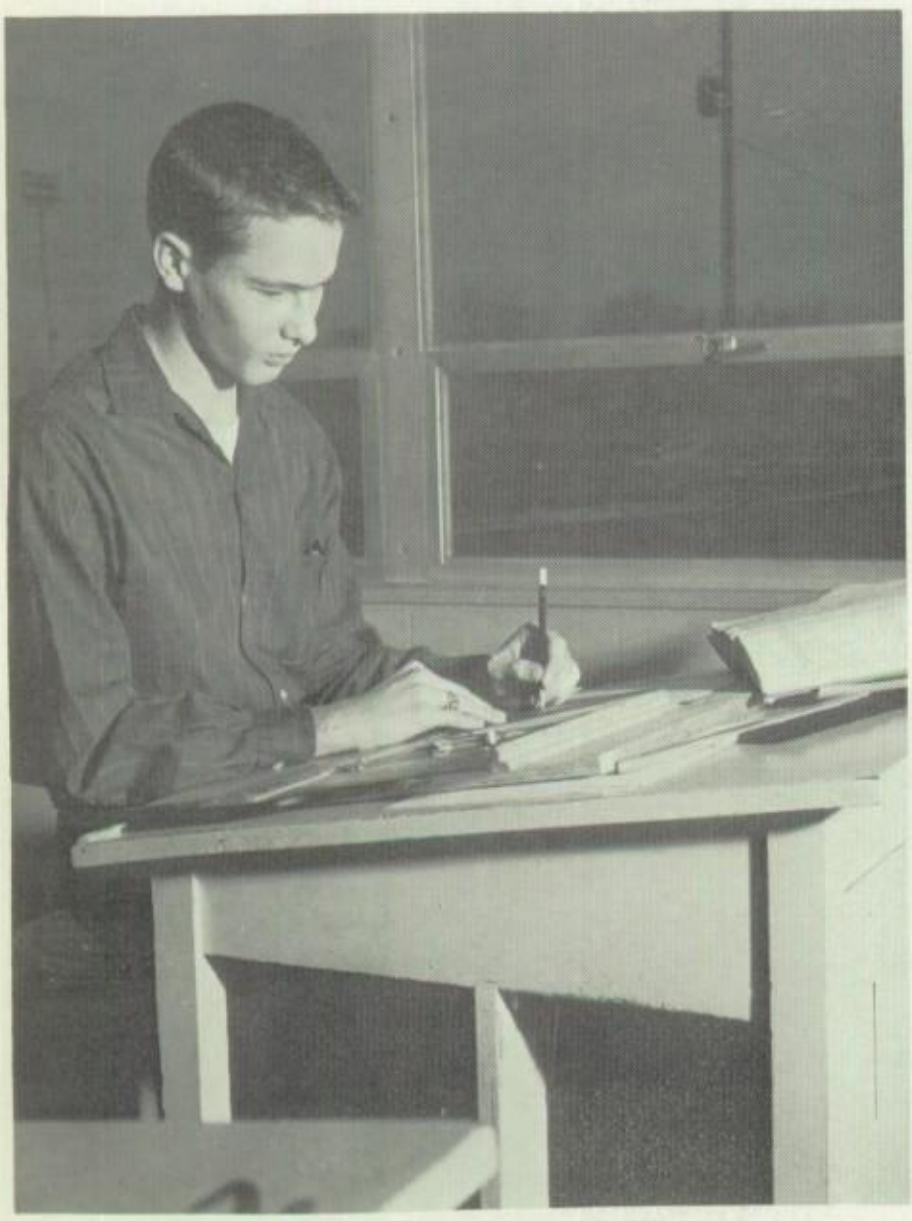
In woodworking, the student concentrated on various projects depending on their previous experience. By using the jointer, and planer machines along with various power drills, saws, and more basic tools, young men were able to turn out finished products ranging from book ends and tables to chests and cabinets.

Metalworking provided interested students with the same type of fundamental experience but with such projects as paper weights, clamps, and log carriers for the fireplace. Drill press and welding machines were utilized in constructing these objects.

Draftsmen worked on lettering; orthographic, isometric, and oblique projections; and other techniques. Production and illustration drawing aided the student in making blueprints.

This year a new course, power mechanics, was included in the industrial arts curriculum to teach young men the nature of the internal combustion engine and the electric motor. This course, along with the other industrial arts classes, gave students useful knowledge in a program of vocational preparation.

Shop Scholars Gain Perception Of Metals, Wood, Drafting



Carefully considering the qualities which make a drawing good, Junior Mike Omspach prepares to put the finishing touches onto his sketch.

Industrial arts teacher Mr. Raymond Quance demonstrates safety precautions to Jerry Pesetski, John May, and Tom Ballman.

Dancers, Gymnasts Continue Program Of Physical Fitness

Swan Lake was never like this, but practice makes perfect. In reality, the slight sag in the floor is not due to the dainty girls toe-pointing their way to stardom, but to the varsity track shotputters, who spent many hours observing their form in the mirror.

Although the national emphasis on physical fitness had somewhat dwindled, the Physical Education Department kept up its rigorous pace throughout the school year. Competitive games and conditioning exercises were the basis for development in both the boys' and girls' departments.

Divided into three sections — dance, advanced tumbling, and gym — the girls' physical education division spent much time in preparation for the Spring Show. After conditioning and barwork, the dance classes studied modern dance, ballet, and folk dances.

Through capable instruction and hard work, the advanced tumblers learned the techniques of many gymnastic feats on the mats and trampoline. Acrobatic stunts such as headflips and fish-flops served to thrill many at the Spring Show.

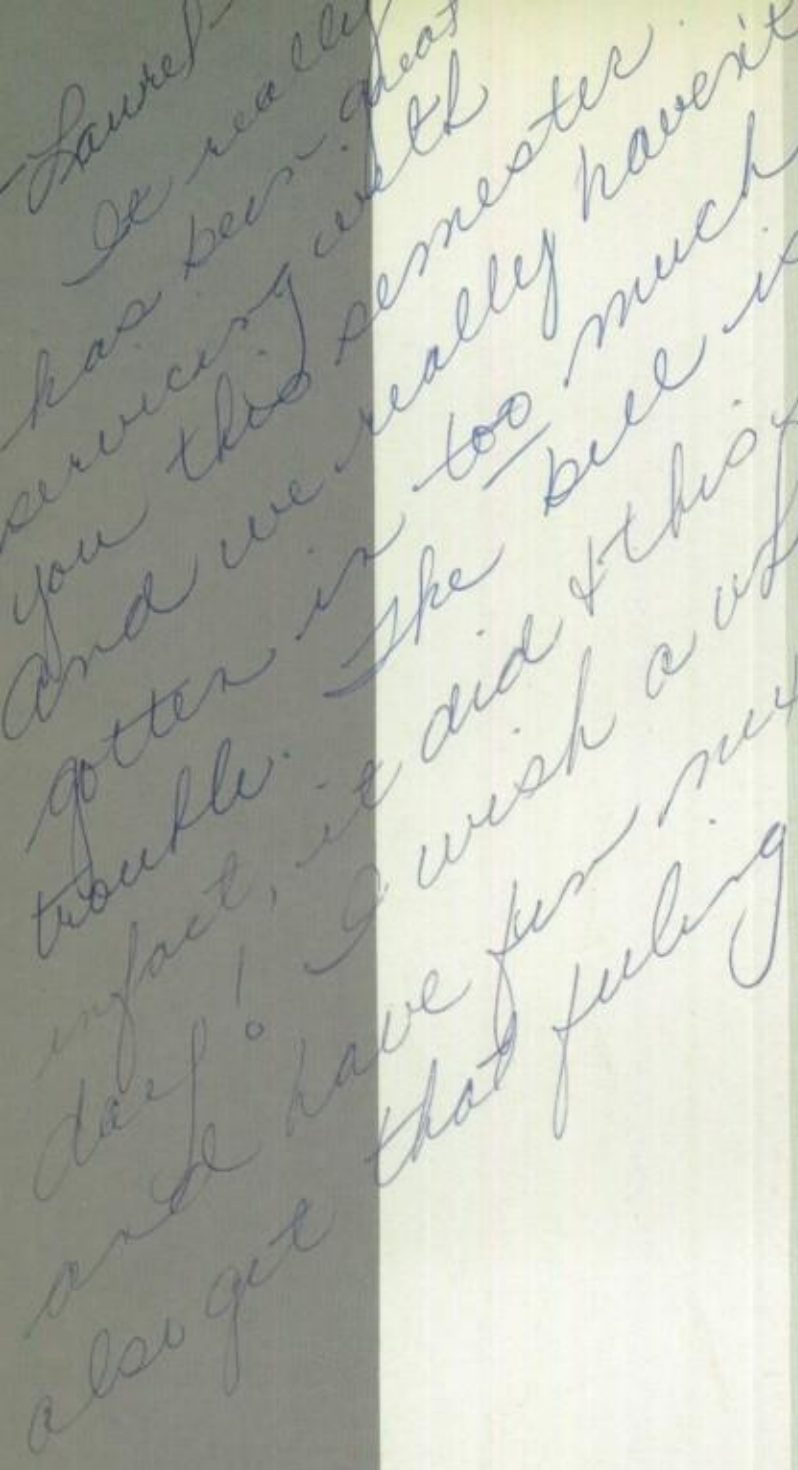
In the gym class, speedball, basketball, volleyball, giant volleyball, softball, and individual games served as a means of physical expression and enjoyment while teaching the girls the fundamentally important principles of teamwork and sportsmanship.

With the same basic goal in mind, the boys' gym classes learned the same techniques involved in such sports as tag football, basketball, volleyball, handball, softball, and track. These seasonal sports improved coordination and served as encouragement for a healthier life for many boys.

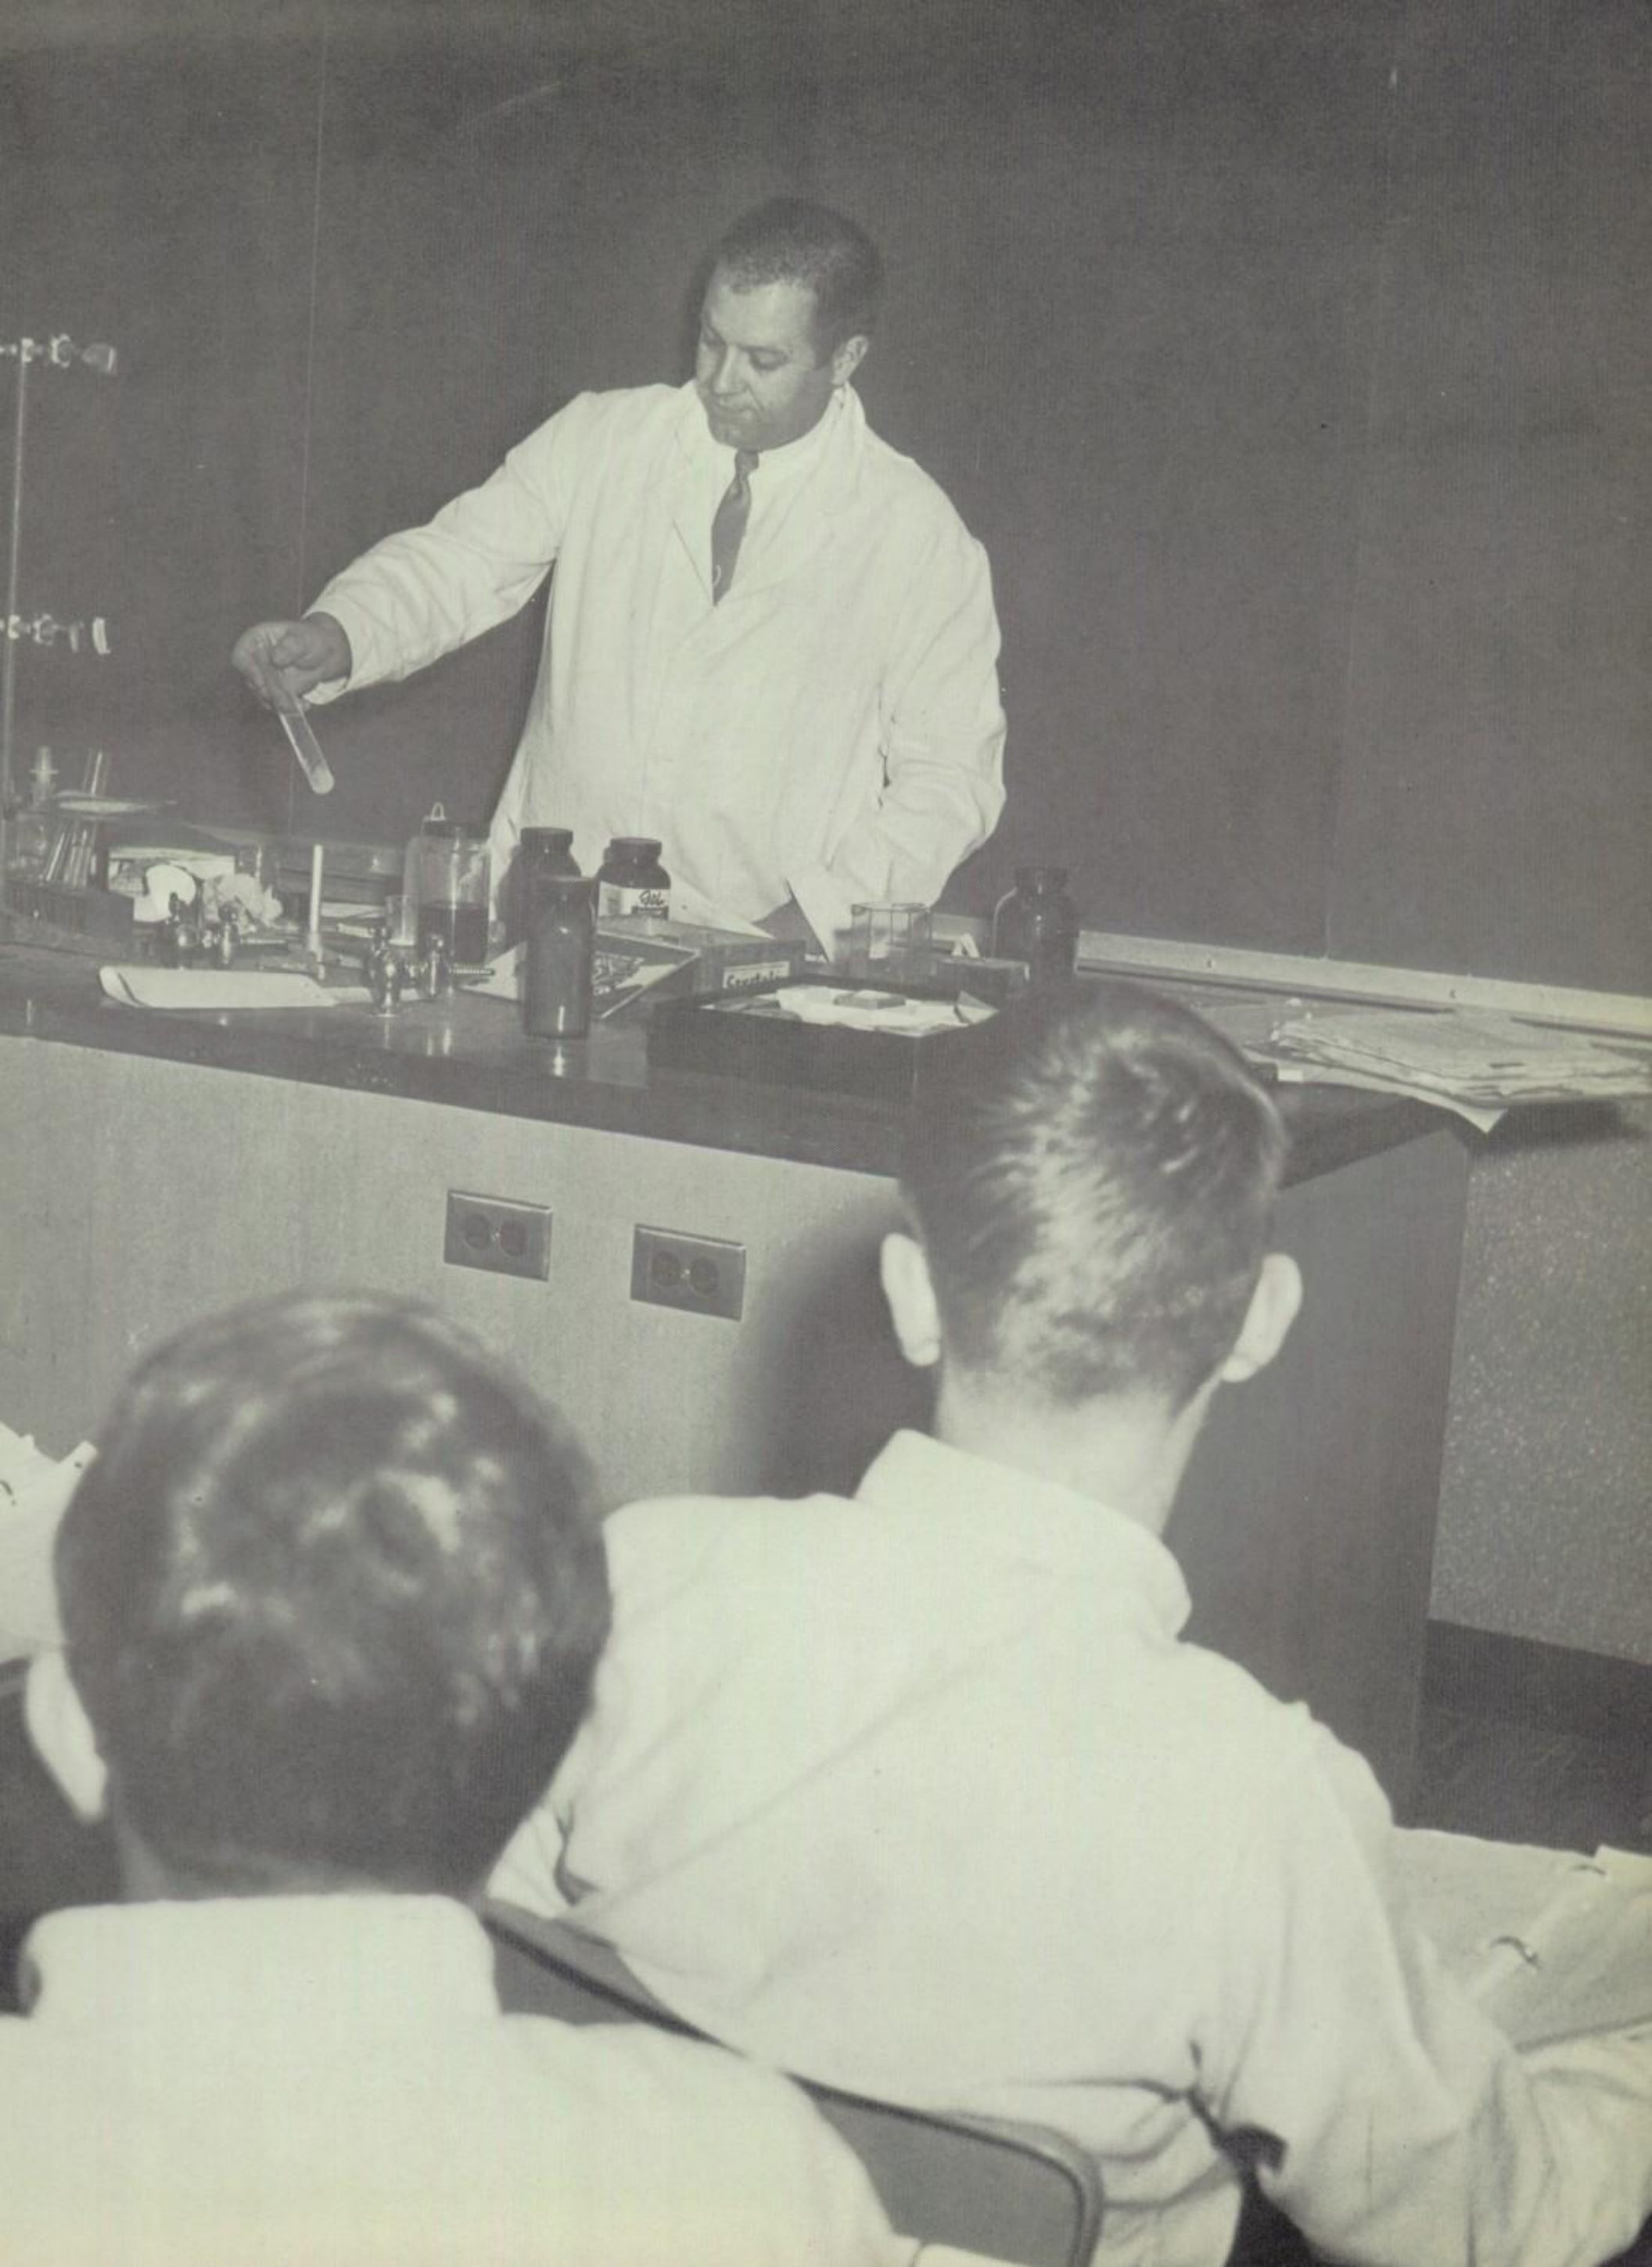
Another area in which the boys participated was the self-test program. The student's physical fitness was determined by the means of scores compiled in such events as finger-tip push-ups, chinning, rope climbing, and other endurance tests.

Even though no Olympic-caliber youths have been developed by this curriculum, the basic fundamentals of coordination, fitness, teamwork, and sportsmanship have been accomplished.

Whirling around the hurdle while dribbling a basketball is Gary Hansen. Such feats of dexterity are developed in the boys' physical program.



Faculty



Busy Administration Plans Programs, Co-ordinates School

Too lead, to show the way, and to help. This is the function of the administration at South Side.

South's principal, Mr. Jack Weicker, is completing his second year as head of South Side. In this job, his duties include planning both student and faculty schedules, approving posters and bulletins, and speaking at banquets and school functions.

Interviewing each college-bound senior is one of the tasks of dean of students, Mr. Richard Block. He also collects information about various colleges' fees and entrance requirements.

As guidance co-ordinator, Mr. Sam Jackson arranges for job placement or further training for students on the general and business course and personally interviews these students. Assisting local businessmen, he recommends South Side students for various jobs. His job also includes planning homeroom guidance programs.

Two veteran teachers, Mrs. Mary Smith and Mr. Wayne Scott, have assumed the positions of part-time guidance counselors. Besides teaching class, they also interview each sophomore student and help him plan for his next year at South Side.

To do all the paper work involved with the many administrative duties are the three secretaries, Mrs. Sylvia Christon; Miss Nancy Liby; and Mrs. Rene Nonneman, treasurer. They take care of finances, answer many questions from students, and make life a little easier for other faculty members.

Entering the school early in the morning from our "postage stamp" parking lot, Mr. Jack Weicker, principal, looks thoughtful.

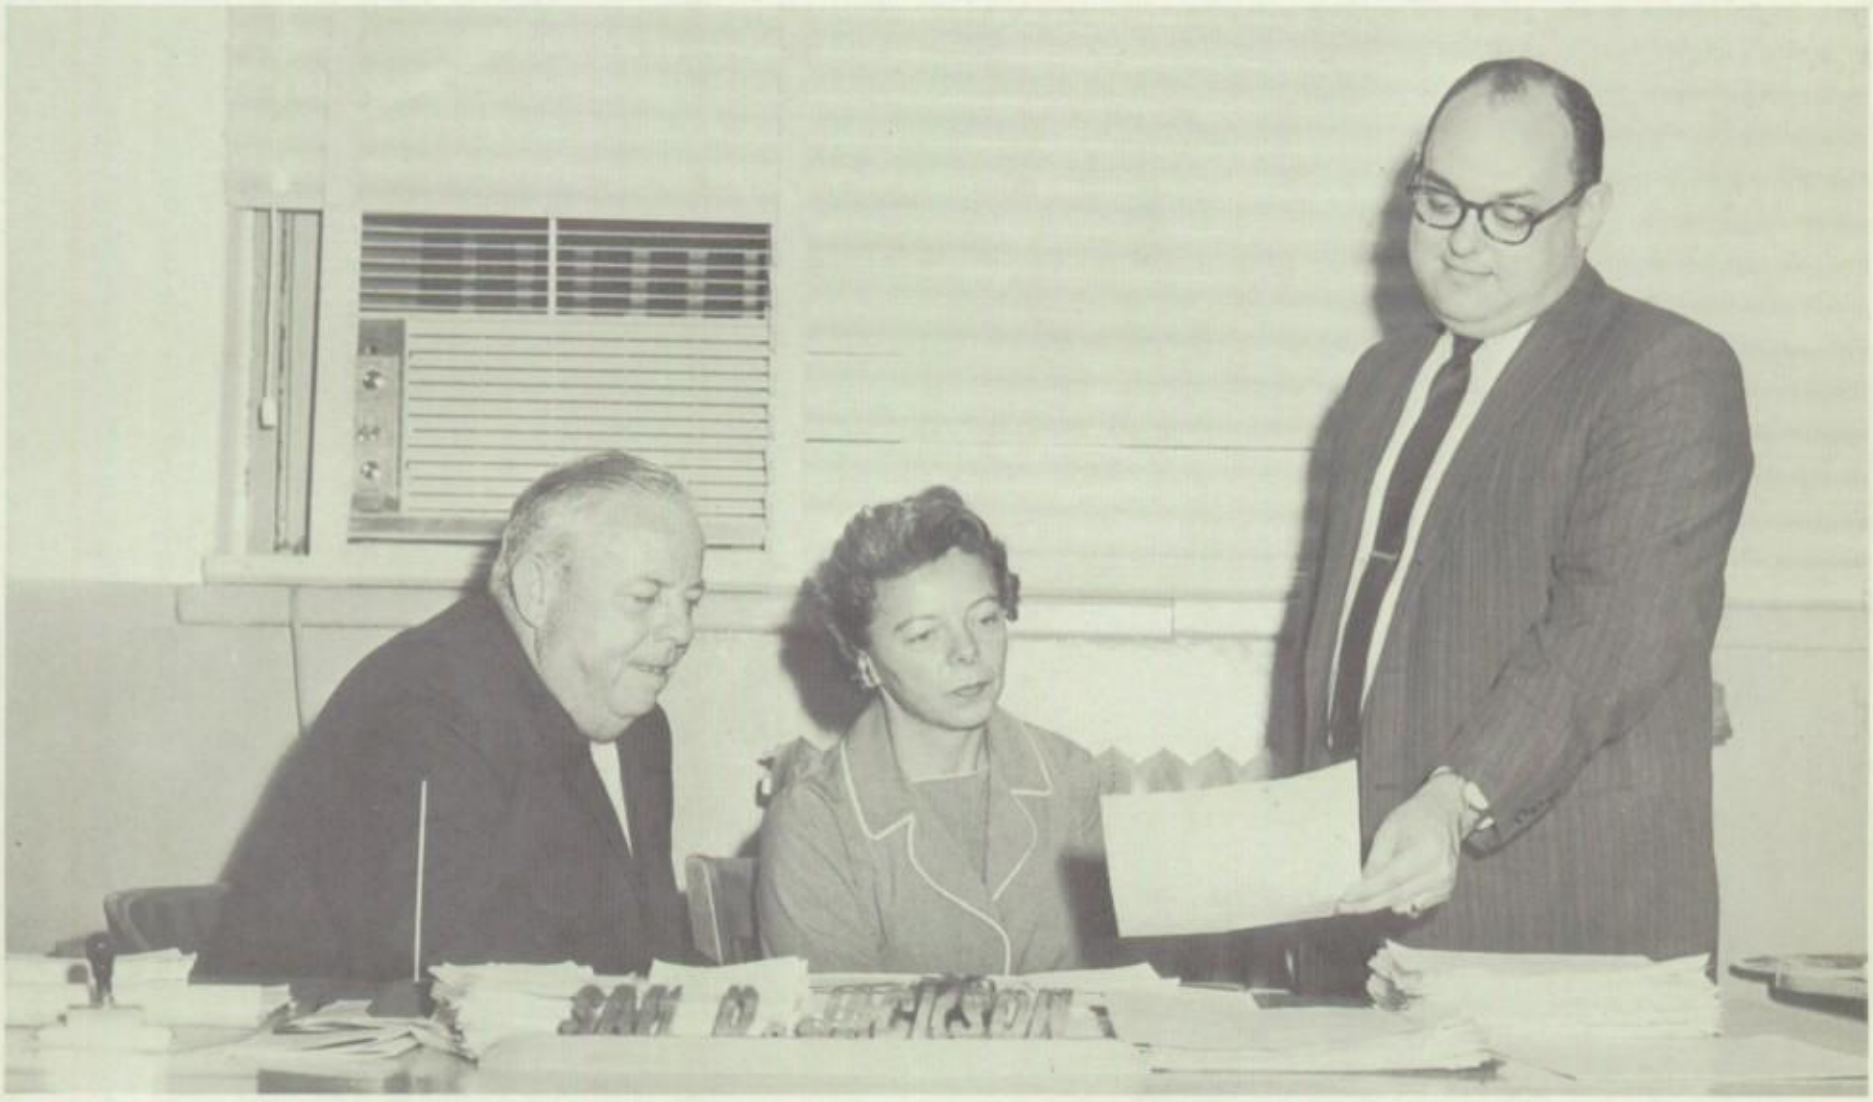
Events, Counsels Students, Helps Pupils To Decide Future

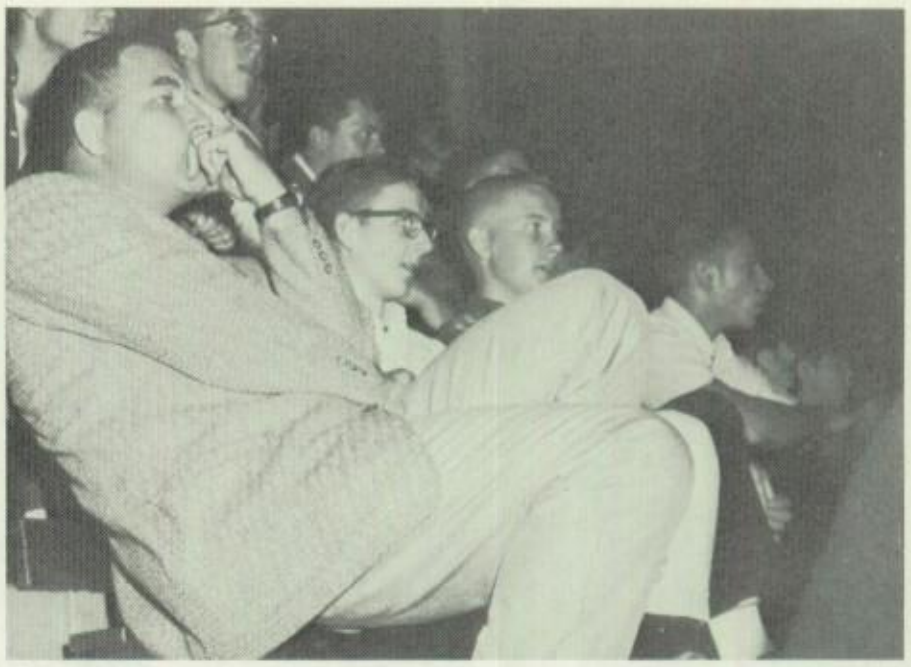
Checking over his supply of college catalogues, which are available to all interested students, is Mr. Richard Block, dean of students.

Checking her complete file on all students at South Side, Miss Pauline Van Gorder, dean of girls, finds a phone number.



"These are some of the main points that should be covered in a first interview with a sophomore student," says Mr. Sam Jackson, guidance co-ordinator, to Mrs. Mary Smith and Mr. Wayne Scott, part-time guidance counselors who also teach regular classes.

Devoting extra time to helping a student is Mrs. Evlyn Spray, English teacher, as she discusses a short story analysis with Dennis Harrison.



Concentrating on the pep session, just as he will concentrate on the football game that night, is Mr. Robert Gernand, football coach.

This year, the electric excitement of Tag Day swept the school on March 19 as 98 seniors were named to the National Honor Society. Principal Jack E. Weicker started the chain reaction during period one by pinning the first senior with the traditional green and white ribbon symbolizing membership.

After being declared a member of the Society, each honored senior joined those who had already received their ribbons and proceeded to the other rooms throughout the school for further tagging until the fifth period, when the final member of the National Honor Society was designated.

The National Honor Society was proposed in 1918, and the first members came from the graduating classes of 1921. South Side was granted the Promethean Charter, chapter charter 754, on November 5, 1928 and the first members from South Side were chosen from the class of 1929.

At the end of the first semester, an eligibility list of seniors ranking in the upper third of the graduating class was published. The list was circulated among the teachers who cast votes for deserving students. Academic and athletic achievement, personal character, service, and leadership in school activities were all factors considered by the committee that made the final selection upon review of the teachers' nominations.

Finally, on the evening of the National Honor Society Banquet, all activity came to a close as the year's new members, each escorted by a teacher, were awarded the Society pins.

"I am happy and honored to present this pin to . . . ". By the existence of the National Honor Society, South Side's outstanding students are officially and permanently recognized for their contributions to the progress of the school.

Publications Adviser Bestows High Honors On Journalists

Miss Anne White, publications adviser, named fourteen seniors from the class of 1965 as new members of Quill and Scroll, the international society for high school journalists. Founded in 1926 Quill and Scroll has expanded to its present membership of nearly 100,000 journalists.

In order to be eligible for membership, a student must rank in the upper third of the graduating class and must have served on at least one of the major publications for two years. Also, each must have earned either his gold pin for Times work or his silver pin for serving on the Totem staff. Possessing a good attitude and showing superior achievement in some aspect of journalism are factors weighing heavily in final selections.

Each senior named to Quill and Scroll becomes eligible for the Rowena Harvey Publication Trophy, presented in honor of Miss Rowena Harvey, publications adviser for 37 years. Given to the most outstanding senior journalist, the trophy is the highest honor presented by the publications department.

A skit satirizing the members' daily activities of the past year provided a hilarious highlight to the Quill and Scroll Banquet, honoring the new and former members.

At the conclusion of the banquet, the new members were given their membership cards, gold key pins, and composite pictures of the publications staff. After these presentations, Miss White closed the dinner by announcing the Times, Totem, and Pegasus staffs of the 1965-1966 year.

"Gary, where is that late copy?" yells Rena Stein in a skit poking fun at the Times Staff during the annual Quill and Scroll banquet.

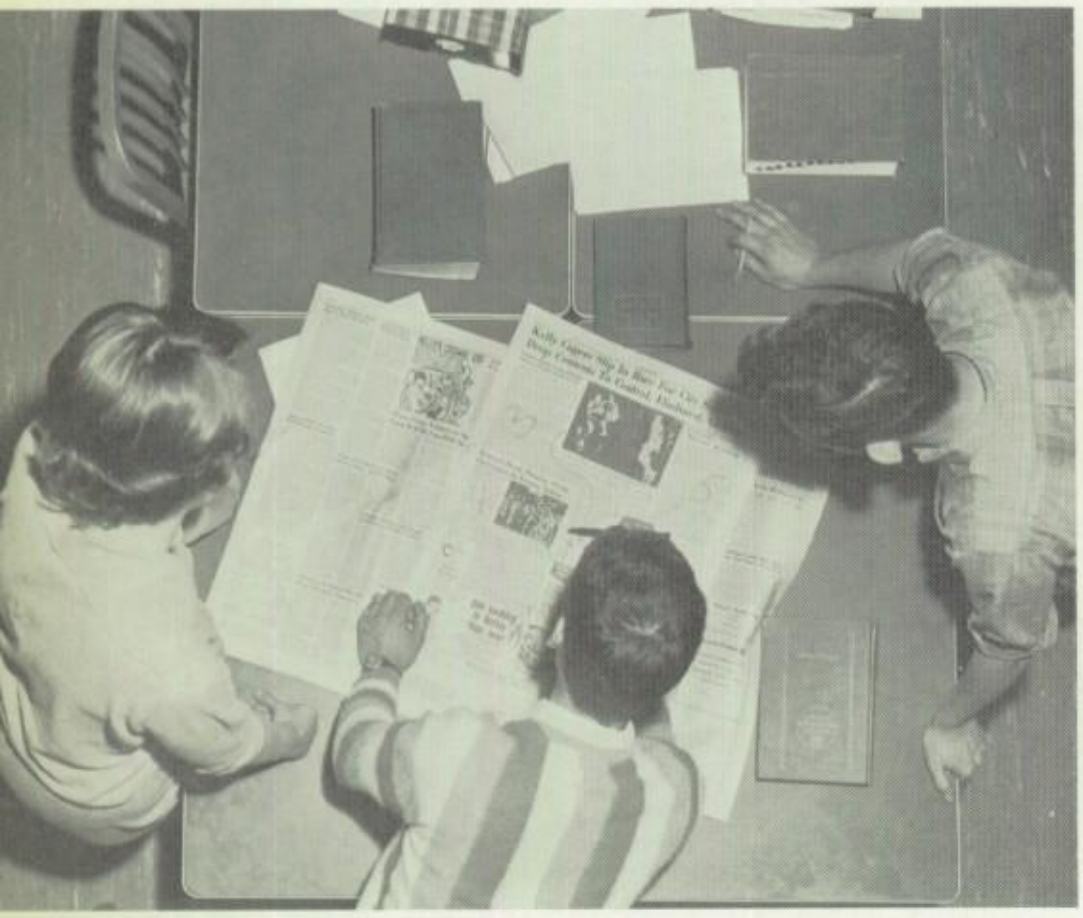
Times Keeps Standing As Top Newspaper; Students Spend



General Managers Joyce Hilsmier, Mick Goldstein, and Mark Lowens carefully evaluate a recent Times publication.

In its forty-third year of publication, The South Side Times was once again presented the International Honor Rating and the George H. Gallup Award from Quill and Scroll, as well as the All-American Award from the National Scholastic Press Association.

For the first time, the National Newspaper Service honored the publication with an "A-plus" rating. In addition to these awards, the Times received the Pacemaker, presented to the top five high school newspapers of the entire United States for the past year.

Miss Anne White completed her second year as adviser for the newspaper, which was distributed to over 75 per cent of the student body. Extra-large editions of the Times were published for the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter holiday issues.

In its function as an educational laboratory, the newspaper used three major staffs during the year. The number of students working to prepare the Times placed the organization among the largest at the school. Approximately 300 students participated in the preparation of the Times, which has the largest physical size of any high school paper in the world.

The Times provided the students of South Side with an accurate source of information about the school and its activities, as well as interesting articles on a variety of topics of general concern to both students and outside subscribers of all ages.

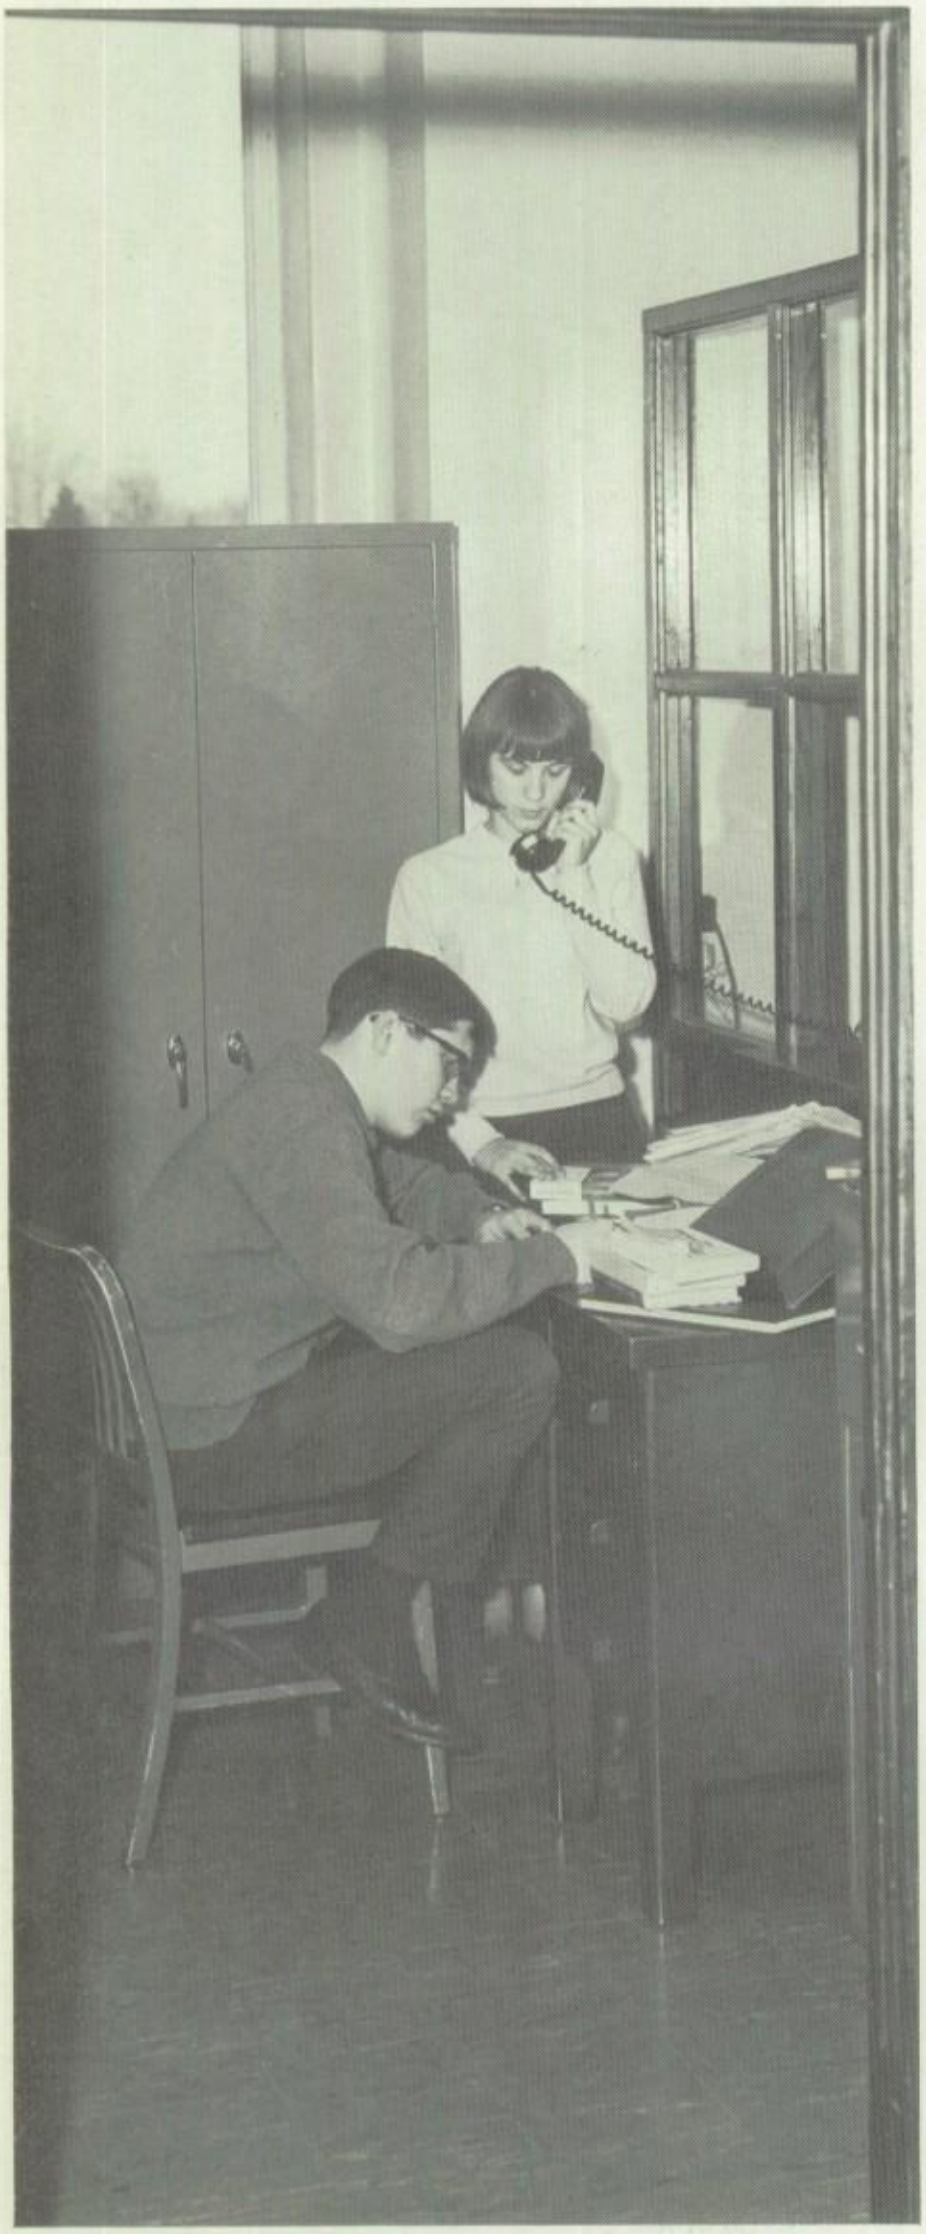
Staff Writes Copy, Crops Pictures To Produce Yearbook



Totem editors Steve Gates and Carol Steiner, who spend most of their time in their office, work steadily toward their deadline.

Patience, perseverance, determination, and a sense of responsibility are just a few of the ingredients needed by Totem staff members in the preparation and execution of a successful yearbook.

The editors began preparing for their enormous tasks as junior editors last year. In the summer of 1964 they attended the Indiana University High School Journalism Institute to learn the special techniques that are necessary to assemble a good yearbook.

The Totem was divided into seven major sections, each requiring timeless hours of preparation and hard work. Each section was assembled by an editor and several assistants. Literally thousands of hours were spent in planning layouts, cropping pictures, and writing copy, cutlines, and headlines for each section, but the students all found the effort well spent.

Photographers also played a very important part in the process of preparing a fine yearbook. As a measure of their activity, the photographers consumed over 1000 sheets of film during the year.

Last year's yearbook, under the guidance of Miss Anne White, was awarded an A-plus Rating by National School Yearbook Association, an "'All-American" score by National Scholastic Press Association, and a "First" rating from Columbia Press Association for 974 points out of a possible 1000.

Photographers Bill Sweet, Sandy Rothberg, Darryl Jones, and Dick Rutkowski play an important part in the assembly of a good yearbook.

South Side Literary Magazine Begins Fifth Year Of Sales

While Rena Stein and Tom Robertson plan the design for the coming Pegasus, Tim Schlie and Kathy Hawkins discuss art work and illustrations for opening pages of the book, and Sarah Schafer and Kathy Doyle outline the sales campaign.

This year was the fifth anniversary of South Side's literary magazine, the Pegasus. Under the watchful eyes of Rena Stein, editor-in-chief, and Nick Zaderej, associate editor, Pegasus had another successful year.

The poems and short stories in the Pegasus were all written by South Side students, either in their English classes or on their own time. These literary works of art were first read by the students' English teachers. Many were rewritten at this point, and others were just changed slightly. Then the teachers checked them again and the better ones were turned in to Rena or Miss Anne White, adviser, for approval. Then the Pegasus staff had to go through the painstaking ordeal of reading and rereading each selection to decide which ones were to be put in the magazine.

After the final decisions were made, some of the poems and short stories were altered again.

After all of the selections to be placed in the final copy of the magazine were chosen and written in their correct order, the make-up, art, and photography portions of the staff began to work.

All art work and photography had to be well co-ordinated with the copy and make-up so the finished magazine would come out looking just right.

Finally, after all of the subscription sales, copy, and make-up were done, the staff breathed freely again, until the day when the Pegasus was distributed for the scrutinizing eyes of the student body of South Side to evaluate.

Amateur Librarians Earn Points Toward Service Club Pins

One of the most rewarding service clubs at South Side was the Library Club. Any student who was willing to give up a study period or work before or after school could join this club. Through this service work the girls learned much about the various aspects of a library and were exposed to many phases with which they may not have been acquainted. Besides learning the importance of a librarian these girls gained respect for the value of literature to the student and learned the influential part which it plays in a person's everyday life.

With the assistance of Mrs. Squires and Mrs. Deputy, these amateur librarians checked out books, collected fines, stamped attendance slips, took inventory at the end of each semester, and prepared recently published books for student use. They also helped students find material for research papers and locate periodicals.

Members of the library club earned pins for their work. They received one point for every hour of service. The first pin was awarded for 100 points; the second pin, for 200; and the third, for 300. The points which the club members earned exceeding 300 were saved toward the number required to earn a Service Club pin.

Although the Library Club had no weekly meetings, sponsored no after-game dances and held no banquets, the girls ended the semester's work, not with an overdure book notice or stamp in hand, but with a hot dog fork at their annual fun-filled spring picnic where the girls and sponsors gathered to reminisce about the past year's events.

"Fourscore and seven years ago" quotes Lee Goldman at South Side's Thanksgiving Assembly.

Again, as in previous years, the members of Assemblies Workshop have presented their four annual programs in spite of the lack of equipment and a stage. Under the direction of Mr. David Cowdrey and Mr. Don Locke, this organization dusted its files of previous assemblies, taking the best ideas from each, and combined them with new ideas to arrive at new and even more interesting assemblies to present to the student body that would fit in the one hour limit.

The first production of the year for Assemblies Workshop was the Thanksgiving program in November. Using several typical scenes, the performers showed their captivated audience what the real meaning of Thanksgiving was.

The second performance was the comical story presented at the Christmas Assembly. Using a witty plot of the day before Christmas in a department store, the clever club members demonstrated the typical American attitude about the holiday season and managed to break a gate while doing so, almost as if planned in advance.

Asemblies Workshop also presented an Easter Assembly in the spring, and a talent show which involved talent from the entire school in addition to that of the club members. The club officers also led the hard-working members in sponsoring an after-game dance during the winter as the club had done before in previous years.

At the conclusion of the year's activities, the members of Assemblies Workshop once again went through the annual ritual of electing the next year's officers.

Choir Makes Appearance In 'Tops On Ice' Spectacular

Checking their outfits for coming performances are Mr. Lester Hostetler, LuAnn Post, Gary Bennet, and Joanne Wasson.

Concert choir octet, composed of Peggy Martin, LuAnn Post, Margie Egly, Connie Kestner, Jane Hetfield, Carol Steiner, Stan Pfeiffer, and Gary Bennet, performs for parents, teachers, and students.

High on the list of the Vocal Department's activities this year was the Choir's appearance in the "Tops On Ice" spectacular at the Fort Wayne War Memorial Coliseum. The Choir, directed by Mr. Lester Hostetler, opened and closed the first act of the lavish skating production.

Throughout this season, as always, the members of the Vocal Department worked long, but rewarding, hours to fulfill more than adequately their extremely busy schedule, which included not only school assemblies song fests, but also more than fifty additional appearances.

From the very beginning of the school year, Mr. Hostetler and his vocalists found their hands full with requests to sing for all the Senior Class functions, banquets, youth groups, the P.T.A., community organizations, sororities, and civic groups, all of whom needed the popular South Side Choir.

Singing at both the annual holiday and music assemblies in addition to the winter and spring concerts, the Choir performed selections ranging from portions of Handel's classic "Messiah" to the timeless songs from Jerome Kern's all-time "king" of the Broadway musicals, "Show Boat."

After performing in the Christmas Assembly and caroling through the halls of South Side, singing holiday music for the other students, the Choir members celebrated the season with an unforgettable open house-caroling party at the home of Kathy Hawkins.

Before completing their season by singing at the Graduation ceremonies, Vocal Department students also made appearances at the junior high schools whose students will eventually come to South, so that these young people could enjoy and hear in action the choral group of which they will, one day, be able to become a part.

Entertaining students at a school assembly, Senior Kathy Hawkins sings the popular song, "May Each Day."

At County War Memorial Coliseum, Sings For Student Body

Approximately 500 hours a year of Mr. Robert Drummond's time are spent in this position, conducting the school band and orchestra.

Band Plays Scores From Broadway Hits, Classical Music

With main performances at school functions, the band members concentrated their talent on Broadway selections and classical music.

Under the direction of Mr. Robert Drummond, the band represented the school in the Veteran's Day and Memorial Day parades, led the grid team and the hardwood quintet to some close victories, and enlivened the school pep sessions. The band, along with the majorettes, also put on its usual half-time shows.

To add a little variety to the games and pep sessions, Mr. Drummond wrote a new school pep song entitled "Rise Up." The song was a tremendous success and was played, along with the regular school song, before and at half-time at each game to help arouse school spirit.

Together with the orchestra, members of the band played at assemblies and concerts. At some they played selections from "Camelot" and "West Side Story." One music assembly featured the clarinet choir which played "O Sacred Head" and "Minuet." The Symphonic Band played at the Winter Concert, which had to be presented as an assembly because of bad weather on the original night of the concert.

Members also participated in community activities. Several belonged to student music groups, and many ushered at concerts of the Fort Wayne Philharmonic Orchestra and other professional groups. Several students also entered state and local music contests.

Other performances, such as Recognition Day, commencement exercises at the Allen County Memorial Coliseum, and concerts at various junior high schools, rounded out the year's activities.

Orchestra members, after many long hours of practice, perform at the Winter Concert Assembly under the direction of Mr. Robert Drummond.

With music ranging from that of Mozart to that of Lerner and Loewe, the orchestra demonstrated its ability to play the sublime in musical composition as well as the melodious favorites of popular appeal.

Under the direction of Mr. Robert Drummond, the orchestra played at music assemblies and at the Winter and Spring Concerts. Among the selections for the programs were classical works such as "Sonata Concertanto" by Mozart, "Farandole" from the "L'Arlesienne Suite" by Bizet, and contemporary compositions from the musical "Camelot" by Alan Jay Lerner.

The orchestra's string ensembles represented the school at many outside gatherings. They also entertained at the National Honor Society Banquet, the Senior Play, and Baccalaureate.

Soloists and small groups were a major part of several assemblies. A cello trio from the orchestra was typical of these groups. The string orchestra also presented works such as the "Dalton Suite" for the edification of the audience.

This year, as in the past, the orchestra, along with the band, presented programs at several of the junior high schools. They visited Portage and Harrison Hill Junior Highs during the spring in an effort to stimulate interest in music appreciation. At the junior highs, the orchestra presented selections ranging from Bach's "Overture No. 3" to Leroy Anderson's "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and from "Damnation of Faust" by Hector Berlioz to Loewe and Lerner's "I Talk to the Trees."

Several members of the orchestra demonstrated their abilities by participation in many contests through the year.

Philo Girls Entertain Speakers From Fine Arts Foundation

With the help of many speakers from the various division of the Fort Wayne Fine Arts Foundation the Philalethian Literary Society, nicknamed Philo, devoted its theme this year to the purpose of becoming acquainted with all Fine Arts Foundation activities in the city. Opening the season was Mrs. George Collyer, who presented an all-around picture of the general organization and function of the Foundation.

Following her were representatives from the Fort Wayne Ballet, the Franke Park summer theatre, and the Fort Wayne Philharmonic Orchestra, each of whom described his specific division's program and structure. Making a special appearance, Civic Theatre director Fritz Congdon delighted the girls with anecdotes of the entertainment world and encouraged them to see the "new Civic."

Relating exciting experiences and giving valuable advice on high ideals, Jane Flannigan, former Miss Indiana, was the guest speaker at Philo's first joint meeting of junior and senior girls after Christmas vacation. Miss Flannigan, now Women's Director at a local TV station, brought along typical souveniers from her year-long reign.

In addition to the extensive program concerning the Fine Arts Foundation, Philo, under the guidance of Mrs. Evlyn Spray, sponsored an eventful season consisting of a creative writing contest, the St. Patrick's Day Banquet at the Hobby House, the Mother-Daughter Recognition Day Tea, an after-game dance, and a June picnic at which the new officers were installed in the midst of the hot dogs and marshallows.

Philo members Sue Strehlow, Sue Mills, and Susie Parker model the year's latest fashion while Diana Brown commentates.

More than 100 sophomore and first semester junior girls with B or better averages in English were members of the Meterite Club, sponsored by Mrs. Florence Emshwiller.

Originally created to provide an opportunity for a supplementary study of English outside the classroom, to establish and maintain high standards in oral and written English, to support school activities and policies, and to develop qualities of leadership among the girls, the club this year used its money from last year to purchase a large South Side Archer banner, now used at all games and pep sessions.

When the club was first started, each new member was required to write an original poem. Although this original concept of the club remains as "Meter" in the name of the organization, this requirement for membership has been eliminated.

Under the direction of Mary Ann Simmons, president; Diana Brown, vice-president; Susie Parke, secretary; and Melinda Watson, treasurer, the members participated in such activities as a poetry contest, a recognition tea, and a talent show. The club's annual spelling bee was won by Carol Stoskopf, and Shelley Long took honors in the short story contest.

As in past years, Meterites aided in the yearly Quarter Century Club Banquet in March by presenting an original skit for the members of the organization of teachers who have taught for more than twenty-five years at South Side.

Meterites Shelley Long, Sally Reidorf, and Jenny Strehlow discuss plans for forthcoming meetings.

Hi-Y Club Installs New Sound System In School Cafeteria

Hi-Y members Mike Bash and Tom Gallmeyer place the cover over the Bible in front of the war memorial which the club helped build.

Hi-Y has continuously been a club at South Side since 1933. Sponsored by Mr. Robert Weber, the club was designed "to create, maintain, and extend high standards of Christian character throughout the school, home, and community."

The club consisted of junior and senior boys who subscribed to the stated purposes and who successfully carried out the tasks preparatory to membership induction. The club met every Monday night and hosted a wide variety of guest speakers who spoke on topics of interest, and club members who gave a number of skits and talks.

At school the boys refinished the desks in the study hall, decorated the football goal posts, sold directories, sponsored the Hi-Y board, and installed a stereo sound system in the cafeteria. Other activities included hospital Christmas caroling, Christmas Bureau deliveries, chartered bus trips to games, and car washes.

Service was not the only activity, though. Later in the year members took their "best girl" to the Best Girl Banquet where they chose a teacher to fill the post of best girl for the whole club.

The Hi-Y basketball league competed against all Allen County Hi-Y clubs. The club boys also had a pizza party with last year's graduates, occasional gym and pool sessions at the Y, and the spring and fall picnics which rounded out the Hi-Y social calendar for the rest of the year. As a new outside activity this year, Hi-Y and Philo planned a joint picnic for graduates to be held on Labor Day.

Lettermen Sponsor Dance, Promote Canned-Goods Drive

The Lettermen's Club, sponsored by Mr. George Davis, is one of the few clubs at South Side with specific membership stipulations. The requirement that makes the club different from all others is that all members must have earned a letter jacket in a varsity sport.

This club accomplished a great deal with monthly meetings of its growing membership. Although the membership started the year at 38 athletes, it increased to about 60 by the time the year was over.

Under their officers, the South Side Lettermen faithfully carried out the purpose of the club, "To create and maintain a high standard of character, sportsmanship, and conduct in South Side."

The Lettermen had four events on their calendar this year. Their first social event of the year was the Lettermen's Potluck. It was an informal affair to tie together the football and basketball seasons.

The annual canned food drive for the Fort Wayne Christmas Bureau, which the Lettermen sponsored, sent many Archers out into the cold nights to collect cans for their homerooms. The spirit of competition between the homerooms and the generosity of the fortunate citizens of Fort Wayne helped to make the can drive a great success.

At the annual Letterman's Dance, Senior Denny Peppler was elected "King Kelly." The high point of the year, however, was the Lettermen's Banquet, where all the Kelly Lettermen were guests of the faculty.

At the annual Letterman's after-game dance, Stan Yoder crowns fellow athlete Denny Peppler, "King Kelley."

Cheerleaders Inspire Students, Arouse Team To Victory

RESERVE CHEERLEADERS — Sarah Schafer, Debbie Rothberg, Toya O'Hora, Linda Pfeiffer, and Sue Pressler.

Reserve cheerleader Toya O'Hora arouses enthusiasm from throng of Archer fans at a South home game.

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS — Cindy Osborne, Mary Ann Simmons, Alice Fruechtenicht, Marsha Ehrmann, and Candy Carroll.

Many people will say that lightning strikes only once, but the inexhaustible throwers of lightning bolts called the South Side Cheerleaders struck with repeated vigor at every game and pep session this year, inspiring the students to urge the team to "go on to victory!" and "win that game!" no matter what the odds.

Instilling sportsmanship in the fans with chants ranging from the standard favorites, "Mighty, mighty Archers" and "Train team" to the new yells introduced this year, "South Side-Go - Fight - Win!" and "We will win!" the cheerleaders implanted a valuable feeling of assurance in the players at doubtful moments and satisfaction of victory well-won at times of triumph.

Planning all pep sessions under the guidance of Miss Jeanne Smith, the Cheerleaders proudly unveiled the 36-foot "South Side Archers" banner which was presented to the school by the Meterite Club this year; and with the assistance of some of Mr. Robert Drummond's band members, they introduced the new song "Rise Up," and its lively 'Rub-a-dub-dub-dub-toot-toot' chant to the school's growing repertoire of lively songs and chants.

Throughout the school year, the students of South Side flocked to see their teams participate in the seasons' sports events, and the ten Kelly yell leaders faithfully undertook their major job of coordinating the thunderous potential of the Archer throngs into simultaneous clarion shouts of "Go, fight, win " and "We're from South Side — couldn't be prouder!"

Majorettes Display Abilities Through Formations At Games

To the tune of many marching songs, the majorettes twirled through another colorful year. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Robert Drummond, instrumental music instructor, they exhibited their precision drills at basketball and even at football games, regardless of weather.

The experienced members taught new members the skills of proper marching and baton-twirling at the beginning of the year. Only two practices a week were needed to prepare for a week-end encounter. In addition to teaching skills to new members, girls in their second year had an opportunity to lead the formations as head majorettes.

Before the game, the girls presented the United States flag, the Indiana state flag, and the South Side School flag in various delightful formations while the "Star-Spangled Banner" was being played. Then as the school songs were being played the majorettes wove through a series of steps until the letter "S" for South Side was formed, as well as other letters for visiting teams.

Together with the marching band, the majorettes prepared a special show for the basketball games. At halftime the spectators saw Edie Hughes give a flag twirling exhibition and Judy Ross give a juggling exhibition accompanied by popular songs played by the band.

Also, the majorettes were among the participants in the annual Veterans' Day and Memorial Day parades. The girls concluded their activities by escorting the seniors around the building in the Ivy Day Parade.

Poised solemnly during the "Star-Spangled Banner," majorettes proudly salute national, state, and school flags.

Vesta Members Broaden Scope Concerning Homemaking

Vesta officers Darlene Nahrwold, Carol Riley, Ann Neuenschwander, Vicki Lijewski, and Sandy Reed count stationery before its sale.

One of the many opportunities offered to South Side girls is the Vesta Club. Originally called Home Economics Club when it was organized in 1952, the club was renamed "Vesta," for the Roman goddess of the hearth.

Any girl in South Side could become a member of this club. Vesta Club met on alternating weeks and had three main objectives. They were as follows: "To train girls for efficient leadership in home, school and community affairs; to promote interest in home economics; and to furnish happy association between members."

This year Vesta had fifty-eight members. During the meetings various speakers gave talks relating to home economics. Some of the topics were silversmithing, upholstering, grooming, manners, posture, gift wrapping, cake decorating, and flower arranging.

Through the effort of their sponsor, Mrs. Lois Murphy, many outside activities were planned for the year. Among these were the following: a Halloween party at the beginning of the year to welcome new members; the sale of South Side Stationery; a Christmas party, during which Mrs. Adolph Hansen, wife of the Pastor of the Simpson Methodist Church, gave a Christmas story presentation; the purchase of Vesta pins for members; and a mother-daughter tea planned in May to conclude the club's activities.

As a special project each year, the members of Vesta collected a wide variety of assorted materials to make gifts and favors for the children at State School.

Red Cross Girls Adopt Seven Children From State School

Like its parent organization, the Junior Red Cross is dedicated to aiding anyone who needs its help. Under Mr. John Arnold, social studies instructor, the club pursued this objective through a busy year of activities.

The first meeting of the year was an introductory get-together with a look at future plans. From there, the members plunged into the midst of a busy schedule. Meeting every other Wednesday after school, the organization sponsored several guest speakers, including an official from the Fort Wayne Welfare Agency.

Dirty cars were welcomed with open arms at the fall car wash through which the members raised money to buy a high chair for the pediatrics ward of the Lutheran Hospital. The girls in the club also planned and presented parties for the children at the Fort Wayne State School. The major project of the year was the "adoption" of twenty-seven Mongoloid girls from the State School. The girls held a party for these children in February. Through this party the girls from South Side learned of some of the personal needs of these children, which will be the basis of later projects. Also in February the club members went to the Fort Wayne-Allen County Red Cross Chapter House and assisted in stuffing some sixty thousand envelopes for the Allen County Crippled Children's Easter Seal drive.

The members of the Junior Red Cross did not restrict themselves to these service projects, however, but also lived up to the club's purpose as individuals throughout the school.

Enjoying refreshments during the meeting, Red Cross members listen to a talk given by Mary Pifer, sergeant-at-arms.

Science Sections Provide Chance For Individual Projects

Assembling a simple telescope are Jim Leonard, Phil Blakely, Tim Williams, Dennis Gilbert, Bill Griffith, and Nick Zaderej.

One of South Side's fastest-growing clubs is the Junior Academy of Science. With its Mathematics, Astronomy, Physics, Chemistry, and Life Sciences sections, it has something to interest just about everybody.

The club originated about ten years ago when Mr. Robert Weber's Botany and Biology Club was in existence. Now, however, the club unites all the various phases of the sciences, allowing the members to benefit from the knowledge which other members have in different fields.

The purposes of the club are many-fold. First, it is a meeting time for the members, where they renew their interests in the sciences. It is also a means of tying the local club with state and national academies of science. Finally, the club allows students who have scientific interests to pursue them beyond the normal classroom studies by means of special projects in school labs and talks by guest speakers.

This year under the leadership of Dan Bowers, president; Tim Byers, vice-president; Nick Zaderej, secretary; and Brook Smith, treasurer, the club highlighted the year with a guest appearance by a radiologist, a movie about "Project Apollo," and a trip to International Telephone and Telegraph Industrial Laboratories to see the work being done on the various projects under way.

The monthly meetings of the Junior Academy of Science added to its interest too. Sponsored by Mr. Robert White, the forty-five members of the club saw the biggest and most successful year yet in the history of this Archer club.

Wranglers Hosts Sectional Tourney, Forms Debate Team

Offering modern "Ciceros" the opportunity to express their oratorical skills, Wranglers welcomed students interested in attending inter-scholastic speech meets and in polishing acting and public speaking abilities.

Throughout the school year, members traveled to other schools to speak in many divisions including original oratory, oratorical interpretation, humorous declamation, poetry, radio, and dramatic declamations. The members participated in approximately fifteen speech meets during the year.

Under the leadership of Mr. Robert Storey, the officers of the club presented a skit called "Wranglers is . . . " For the first time members formed a debate team to contest at speech meets. Other activities included impromptu contests, a play entitled "Beggers Can't Be Choosers," and the annual banquet.

South Side was among the many schools that participated in the thirty-second Indiana High School Debater's Conference and the twenty-third Indiana Students Legislative Assembly at Purdue University. South Side was represented in the divisions of extemporaneous speaking, discussions, and the legislative assembly.

The close of the second semester brought the installation of new officers at a final picnic. However, it was Recognition Day that revealed the harvest of ribbons which Wranglers had reaped at speech meets in their efforts to improve vocal expression and communication.

Wrangler officers John Charles, Jan Miller, Rena Stein, and Janis Pflueger conduct a weekly meeting in the Greeley Room.

Dual-Sponsorship Enables Bridge Club To Meet Weekly

Bridge club officers Kay Hansen, Nancy Shoaff, and Dick Astrom play bridge with sponsor Miss Lutie Young.

Several books on bridge plays interest Mrs. Agnes Sosenheimer as possible aids to students in the Bridge Club, which she sponsors.

Though card-playing was forbidden during lunch hours, the activity proceeded after school by special authorization one day each week. Avid card fans were permitted to exercise their skills at the meetings of one of the youngest clubs at South Side, the Contract Bridge Club, which met under the co-sponsorship of Mrs. Agnes Sosenheimer and Miss Lutie Young.

The club, started last year by four students, was able to meet for the first year only every other week, although approximately thirty members joined very soon after the organizational meeting.

In its second year, the club offered instruction in the playing of the game to new members unfamiliar with even the basic concepts of bridge.

The forty members met every Thursday after school in the cafeteria to play and enjoy contract bridge. Dues were collected to purchase refreshments for the members during the meetings and special bridge scorecards.

The change from bi-weekly meetings last year to weekly meetings this year was made possible by the co-sponsorship of Miss Young.

Under the direction of the officers, competitive tournaments were conducted among the members and winners declared on the basis of highest point totals. Although no awards were given, members were amply compensated by the satisfaction of winning.

Having as its basic purpose the furthering of the enjoyment of bridge and allowing members a chance to improve their playing, the organization also endeavored to familiarize inexperienced members with the interesting and complex game.

Political Science Members Discuss Viet Nam Situation

In this, its second year of existence, the Political Science Club achieved its purpose — to stimulate interest in and to further a knowledge of the political sciences — in a number of ways.

Sparked by the raging political campaigns, the club spent much time in the early part of the year learning about party politics. As a means to this end, Mr. Charles LeMaster, local attorney, presented his conception of the philosophy of the Republican party.

At the following meeting, Mr. Max Hobbs, candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, gave his ideas concerning the philosophy of the Democratic party. These two gentlemen were among several guest speakers that the Political Science Club sponsored during the year.

A second method of furthering the club's purpose was the tour, such as a trip to the Fort Wayne City Council in February to see government in action.

Finally, but most important, the club members themselves took part in numerous reports, debates, and discussions. Topics included the Test Ban Treaty, Viet Nam, and the War on Poverty.

In these several ways, the Political Science Club, sponsored by Mr. Wilburn Wilson, promoted the free exchange of ideas and knowledge in the vast area of the Political Sciences.

Consisting of the more than 400 students doing work for the faculty, the Service Club sponsored its annual potluck in the cafeteria this year. Highlighting the dinner was the presentation of the Randolph Jacobs Service Trophy to Marianne Harper, voted the most deserving and outstanding senior member by the other service workers present. Mr. Sam Jackson, who assumed sponsorship of the club this year, delivered a serious speech concerning goals for teenagers.

Though this organization has no regular meetings, its members, in carrying out its function, are among the busiest students in the school, as each service worker serves a teacher five days a week, at least one hour per day.

In their service to the faculty, the service workers perform such varied tasks as refilling acid bottles, recording grades, running errands, collecting absentee slips, guarding locker rooms, and reading copy in the Times room.

Another organization whose members are comprised solely of students who donate their free time in the form of service is the Audio-Visual Club.

The members of this group operate motion picture projectors for many classes and clubs and, in addition, service in the audio-visual office, to ensure that the scheduling of movies and use of equipment run smoothly.

Also, for the first time, the members met at weekly gatherings this year to discuss and practice the use of such equipment as sixteen and thirty-five millimeter projectors, phonographs, and opaque and overhead projectors.

Projectionists Show Films; Service Workers Give Banquet

Safety, Booster, Usher Clubs Give Time To School Service

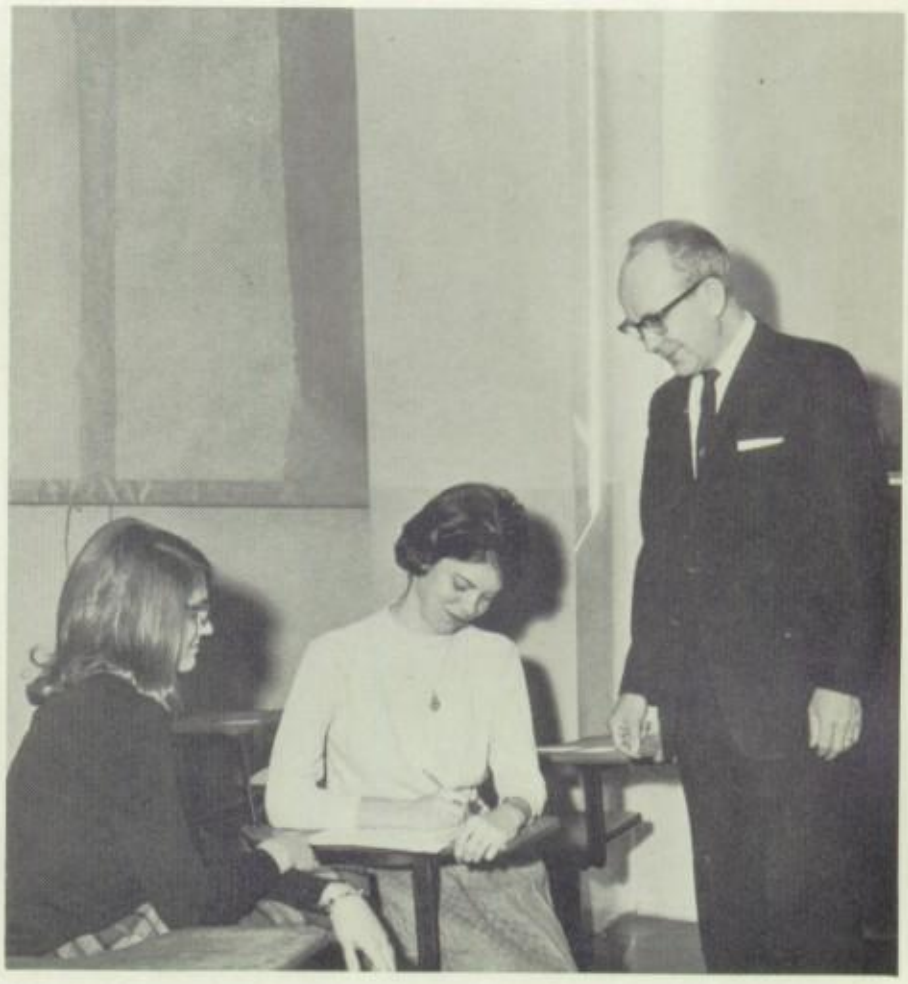
Throughout the year at all home football, basketball, and track games, the Usher Club and Booster Club members devoted their spare time to make the fans comfortable and happy.

The Usher Club members kept very busy during and before the games. Their job was to aid the confused fans who lost their seats or who could not find any seats. Heading the Usher Club and doing a very thorough job of supervising was Mr. Richard Sage. This was Mr. Sage's second year at heading this important club.

Booster club members worked very hard this year at preparing and selling popcorn, candy, and soda pop. The Booster Club, under the watchful eye of Mr. LaVerne Harader, contributed its funds towards South Side.

Booster Club members cared for and bought new cheerleader uniforms, helped maintain our school, aided Quarter Century Club, and sent cheerleaders to out-of-town games and conferences. The members received a gold pin for two years' work, an athletic season ticket, a sectional tourney ticket, and service points for hours worked.

The Safety Council, under the sponsorship of Mr. Glenn Stebing and Miss Virginia Ayres, performed many duties to promote safety at South Side. The Safety Council was organized as an arm of a larger organization, the Allen County Teenage Safety Council. Some of the projects and activities during the year were the presentation of a Safe Driver Award, a car safety check, and a special car rodeo.



Mr. LaVerne Harader, sponsor of Booster Club, talks over plans with members Susan Rose and Kay Davis.

Scholarships Offer Many Opportunities For School Artists

Stimulating appreciation of creative ability is only one purpose of South Side's Art Club. Members of this club increased their knowledge of art, improved their artistic abilities, created a greater appreciation of art within the school, and had fun with art.

Any person with a creative or observing interest in any field of art could join Art Club. This year six members increased the membership over last year's twenty-five members.

This year Mrs. Ray Tucker and Mrs. Barbara Thexton substituted as sponsors of the club during the absence of Mrs. Ruth Fleck. With the sponsors' help the members expressed themselves through water colors, oil paints, and colored salts and sands.

At the meetings, which were conducted every other week, the members discussed their works. The better works were displayed in the study hall and in the cafeteria. Often during the meetings, special guest speakers talked to the members about interesting subjects revolving around art.

Outside events for the club are planned annually. Activities sponsored included a Christmas party, spring picnic, and art auction.

All members were urged to apply for the many scholarships offered to members with artistic ability. South Side is proud to have started many members on to a promising career in the field of art.

Latin Club Plans Banquet; Cinema Guild Shows Film Epics

This year, the Latin Club, Societas Latina, which has been in existence at South Side since the school was built, had a busy time. The club members, under the guidance of their sponsor, Mrs. Anne Redmond, and their officers, achieved a great deal toward the goal of the club — to stimulate interest in the ancient and highly important Roman culture which cannot be studied in the Latin classes.

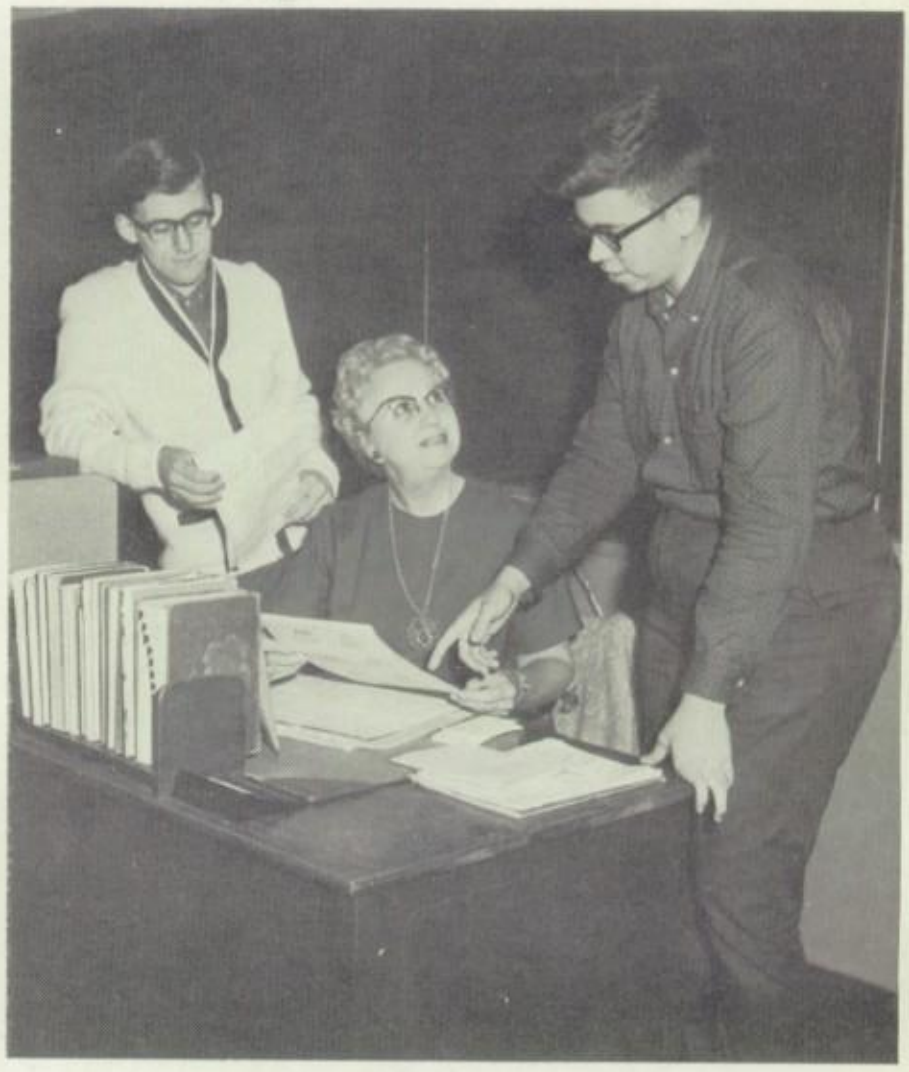
In their monthly meetings, the club members planned the Latin Banquet which takes place in March each year as a conclusion of their activities. However, the banquet was cancelled this year because of difficulties.

This year, a new club appeared at South Side. Founded by Bob Cushman and Dennis Bade, the Cinema Guild met with great success in its first year.

Although the only scheduled meetings of the Cinema Guild were its six motion picture performances, the club's organizers met with Mrs. Mildred Luse for many strategy sessions. The movies shown were "All About Eve," "Citizen Kane," "Potemkin," "Sunset Boulevard," and "The Good Earth."

Aside from the regularly scheduled performances which were open to members only, the Cinema Guild showed the film epic "Birth of a Nation" in January and opened it to the whole school. The response to this film was the largest since the founding of the club even though traffic was much hampered by a large snow storm earlier in the day.

The founders of the Cinema Guild are proud that South Side is one of the few schools to have such a novel organization, and expect that the success of the club will grow in the future.



Cinema Guild sponsor Mrs. Mildred Luse confers with club originators Bob Cushman and Dennis Bade concerning coming films.

Latin club enthusiasts Sue Broxon (secretary-treasurer), Linda Wright, Patty Jones. Andrea Zala (vice-president), and Stan Fox listen to president Kerry Miller discuss plans for the Latin Banquet and programs for coming meetings.

Social Events, Sales, Skits Occupy Time Of Y-Teen Girls

Affiliated with the Fort Wayne Y.W.C.A., the South Side Y-Teens completed a wide variety of special service projects for the community during the year.

Guest speakers, skits, club business, and work on service projects occupied the time of the Y-Teen gi-ls at their bi-weekly Thursday meetings. Personal, service, social, and religion committees planned these meetings in an effort to have every girl take an active role in the club.

Selling Christmas bows was an especially rewarding one of the club's many major projects this year. In keeping with tradition, this girls' club sponsored an annual dance. They also performed a needed service by making Easter favors for the children's ward of the Lutheran Hospital.

On a large scale and in co-operation with the city-wide Y-Teens Inter-Club, the members participated in a potato chip sale, in sponsoring a "Lamb Pen" at the Christ Child Festival, and on a social basis in a joint skating party with the Junior High Y-Teens clubs.

Sponsored by Mrs. Mary Smith, home economics teacher, South Side Y-Teens progressed a long way during the past year to furthering their gigantic three-fold goal: "To grow as a person; to grow in friendship with other people of all races, religions, and nationalities; and to grow in the love and knowledge of God."

Patsy Carpenter and Sue McCloskey, Y-Teen members, practice an Indian dance which they will present at the next meeting.

Tacking a poster on a hall bulletin board, Kathy DeVries makes sure Y-Teen members are notified of forthcoming meetings.

Stamp, Coin Fans Join Club; Rifle Clubs Improve Skills

The Stamp and Coin Club of South Side, under the watchful and helpful eyes of its sponsor, Miss Edith Reiff, completed another year collecting and admiring coins and stamps from all over the world.

The officers and Miss Reiff aided the club members in achieving the goal of the club, "To further the knowledge of the club members in the fields of stamp and coin study and collecting."

At the meetings, the members listened to speakers, shared their own collections, and traded duplicate stamps and coins with others in the club, learning about the world from its stamps.

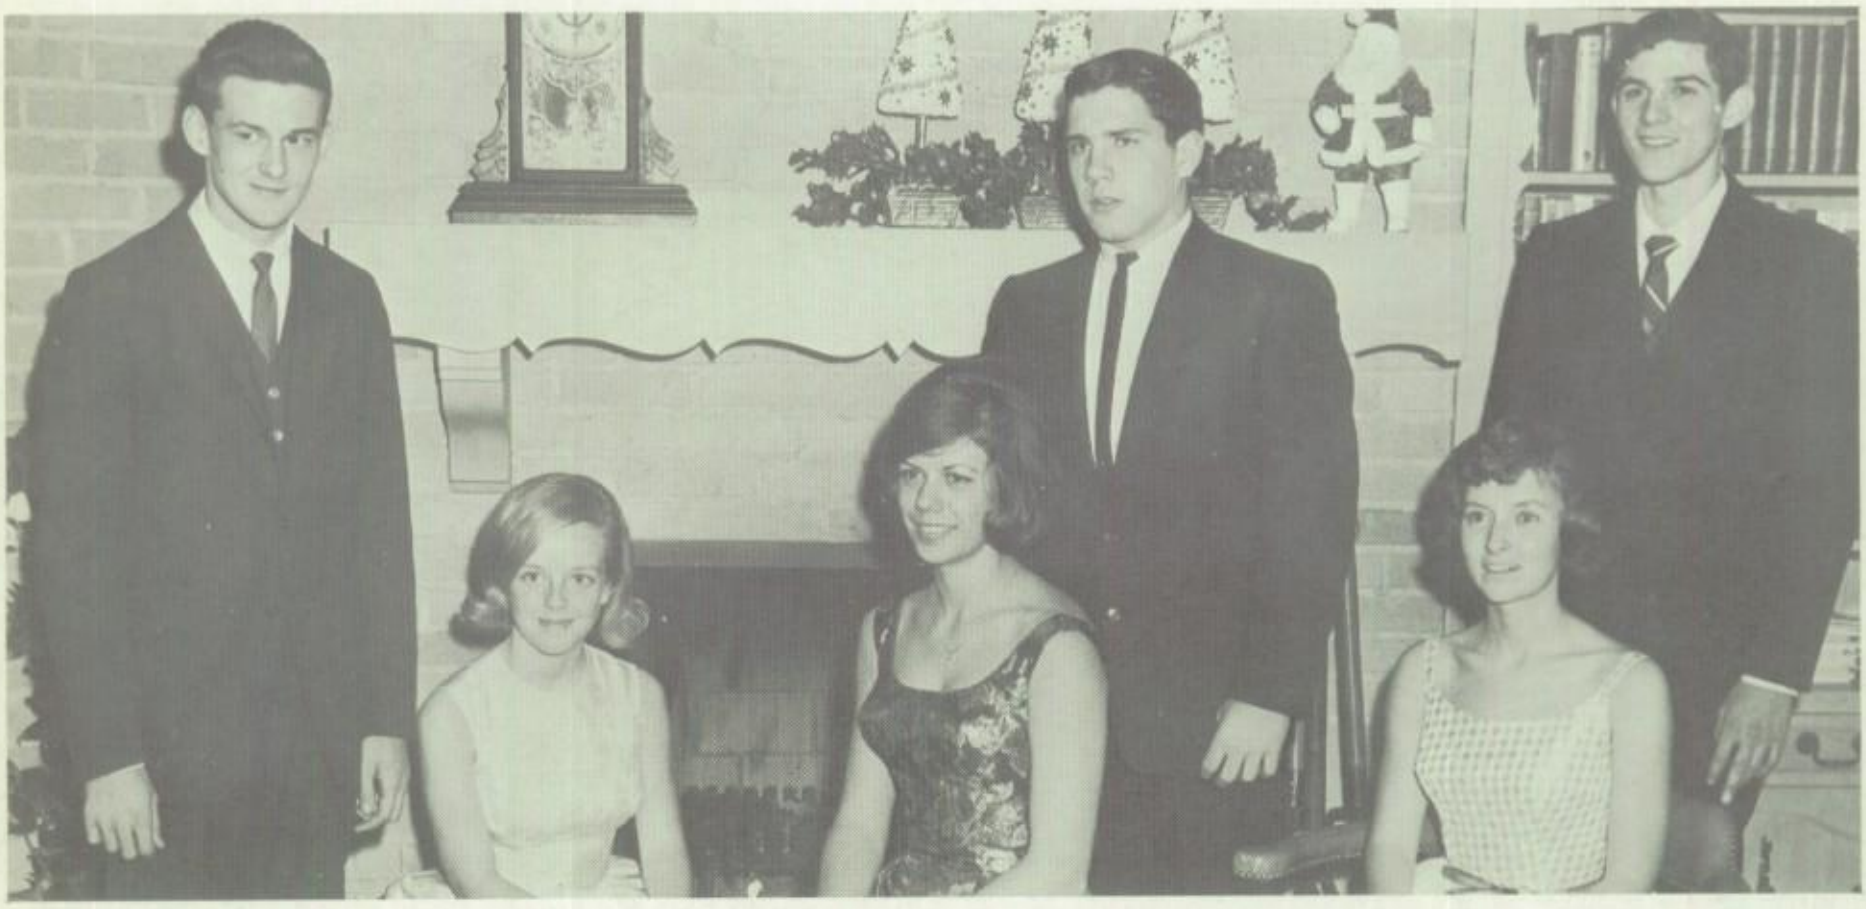
Throughout the school year the boys' and girls' rifle clubs met at South Side's basement rifle range to improve their skills at sharpshooting. Under the expert guidance of Mr. Alfred Hemmer, sponsor of the Girls' Rifle Club, and Mr. Rodney Gill, sponsor of the Boys' Rifle Club, the two clubs completed another successful year.

The purposes of the two clubs were many. First, and most obvious, was to improve the club members' skills in the operation of rifles. Second, the members tried to improve their safety practices when using firearms and to increase their knowledge of guns. Most of the club members, moreover, joined to get all the fun they could out of their spare moments.

Stamp collections are naturally a center of interest for Stamp and Coin Club members Ron Everson, Dan Appel, and Robert Williams.

Seniors

Leaders Of Graduating Class To Direct Social Functions;



Officers elected to lead the Class of 1965 are, seated, Secretary-Treasurer Cindy Osborne, President Sally Henderson, and Social Council Member Marsha Ehrmann. Standing are Social Council Members Clark Marquart and Lynn Hoover, and Vice-President Dan Fortney.

Selected by the officers to supervise senior class activities are sponsors Mr. Richard Sage, Mrs. Mary Smith, and Mr. George Davis.

As the Seniors of the Class of 1965 near their graduation, they come forward to face a challenging future in the echelons of a new breed of men who are eager to realize their ambitions and are aided by knowledge, courage and confidence. The class has already made history by being the largest class in school history and by electing Sally Henderson to serve as president for three consecutive years.

The Class of 1965, composed of the last of the Freshmen at South Side, cherishes many dear and fond memories. Among these rememberances is the first election of class officers, held in the Sophomore year. Sally Henderson was elected president with Lynn Hoover, Alice Fruechtenicht, Sherry Fox, Lee Goldman, and Tom Gallmeyer as the other class officers. "Sophari," the Sophomore party, carried the Sophomores into the jungle of Africa and culminated the events of the year.

The following year brought the proud Juniors fresh sources for more memories. Once again Sally Henderson was chosen to be president; Lee Goldman, Dan Junk, Cindy Osborne, Denny Peppler and Dan Fortney were chosen to assist her. Primary on the list of the events for the year was "Interlude II," the name of the Junior Banquet. The year quickly revolved around to Spring and Prom time. The Juniors chose "Spring Reigns," as the title for the Junior Prom and decorated South as a beautiful park in the midst of spring time.

The Seniors, once again led by Sally Henderson, participated in such events as the Senior Reception and the Senior Banquet, "Through The Looking Glass," in which they paused to reflect on the long hard road which had been traveled. The grand year swirled to an end with the prom and rose to a last eventful climax with Baccalaureate and Commencement.

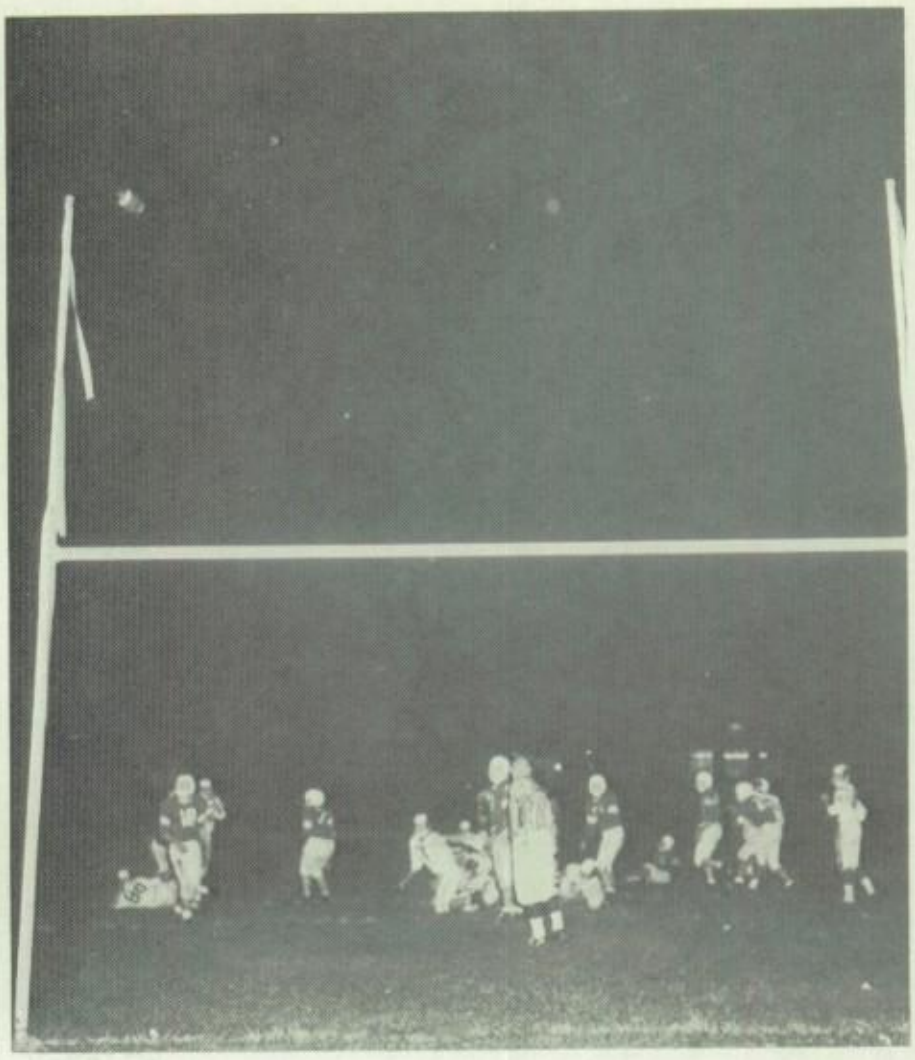
Archer halfback Jon Stennes shrugs off a would-be Irish tackler as he rounds the Central Catholic end behind a key block by Tom Gallmeyer.



All eyes are on the ball as the players await the referee's call on Mike Vogt's extra point attempt against Elmhurst. The Trojans won 19-12.

The Kelly front line clears the way for a delayed reverse as Tom Gallmeyer takes the direct snap and prepares to hand off to Jon Stennes (23). Stennes then handed off to Russ Worman (32) coming the other way for good yardage against Central Catholic.

Lack Size, Strength, Use Single Wing For Power, Deception

The final gun of the 1964 football season sounded with a winning note for the Archers as they downed Central Catholic in the City Series finale, but such victories came few and far between for the Kellys. The Green scored an impressive victory over big Lafayette Central Catholic early in the season, but that was the last Kelly victory until the final game against the Irish.

The Archer gridders ended the season with a disappointing 2-6 mark, but the record fails to do them justice. If Fate had smiled on the Kelly cause and the ball had bounced the other way in some crucial situations, it might have been a different story. The Green lost two games by a single touchdown and were hindered in two others by fumbles deep in enemy territory.

Coach Robert Gernand was faced with the task of building a strong team out of a squad that lacked size, speed, and game experience. Because of lack of line protection and blocking, the Archers switched from the conventional T formation to the old single wing. This gave the Bowmen more power running and deception, thus strengthening the offense.

Despite a losing season, the Archers did produce several outstanding players. Tom Gallmeyer, Russ Worman, and Jon Stennes received honorable mention in the All-city balloting for excellent play in the backfield; and Dean Chidester, Bob Carver, and Don Smith were lauded for their performance at end. There were also several hard working Kellys who did not receive recognition. Gil Haynie, Mike Vogt, Rick Lump, Mike Bash, Gary Twitchell, Jeff Sommers and Dan Junk all did outstanding jobs.

Assistant Coach William Bolm and head Coach Robert Gernand watch the action as Tom Gallmeyer and Gil Haynie await instruction.

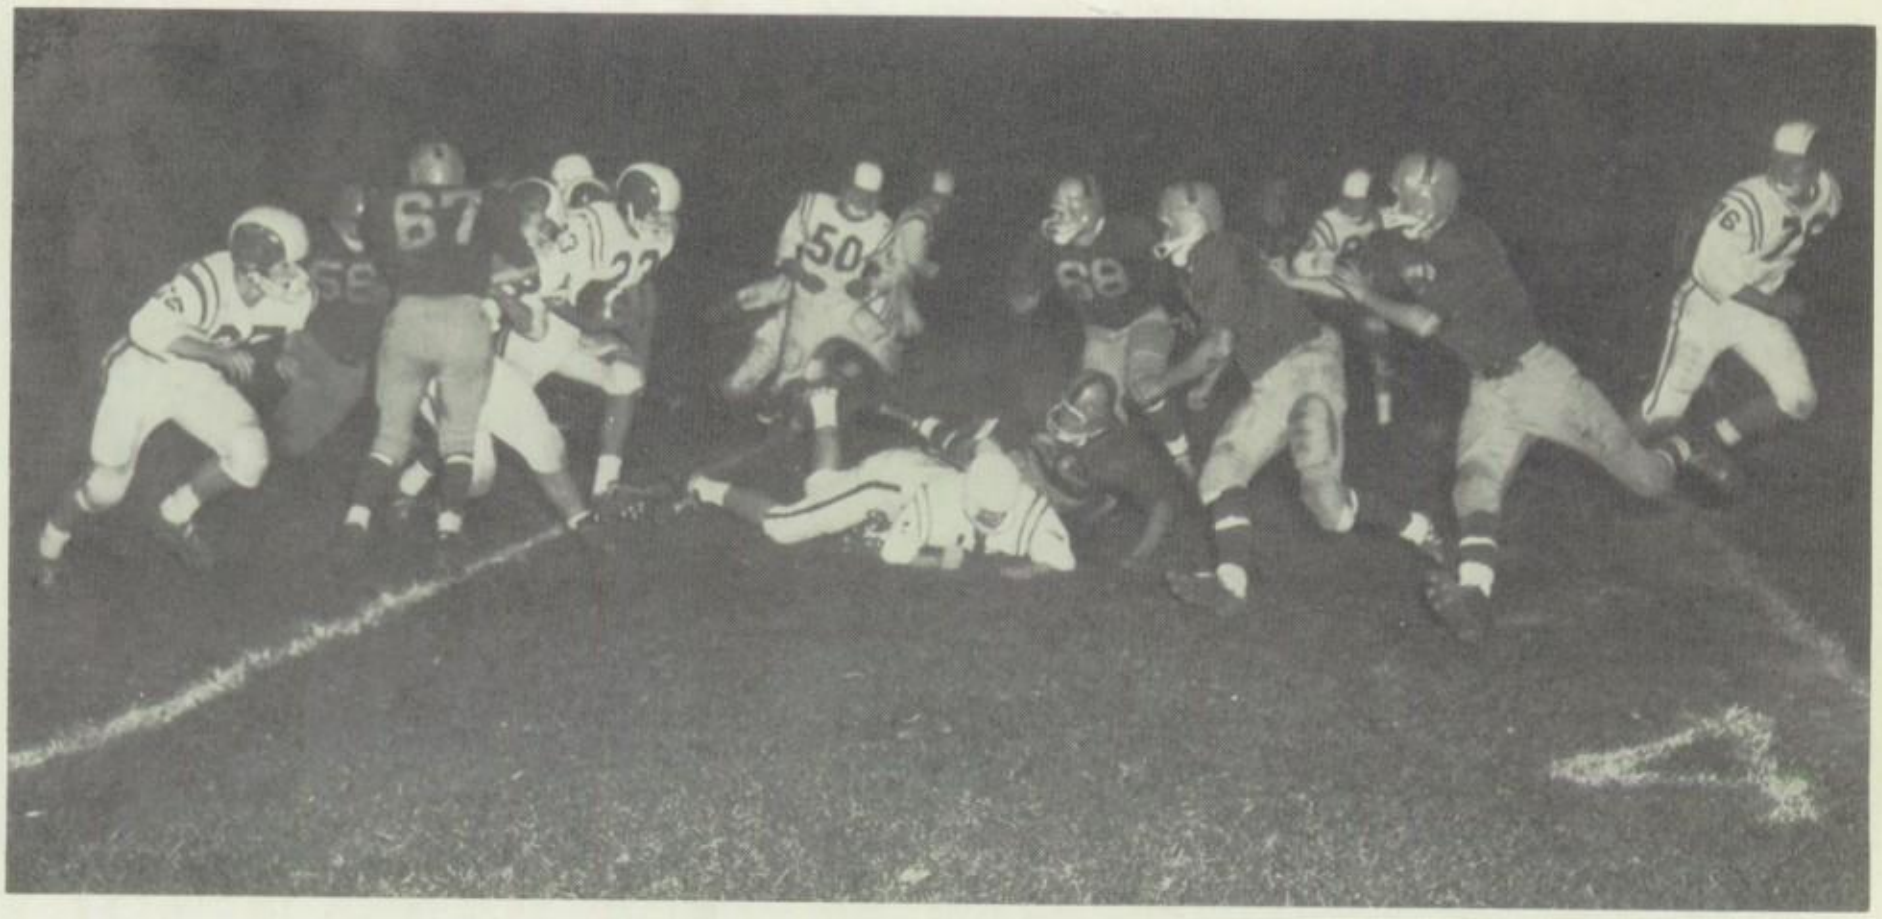
Scare Tough Vikings, Pirates With Potent Offense, Defense



Getting a good block by Mike Danley, Jon Stennes carries the pigskin against Central Catholic while Tom Gallmeyer (35) and Rick Lump (50) look for men to block. The play was good for several yards as the Bowbenders went on to end the year by whipping the Irish.

The Archers opened the campaign with a losing effort as they fell to Bishop Luers 14-0. The Kellys could not get any kind of an offense going and the Knights ground out two touchdowns in the first and fourth periods. The Bowbenders then bounced back to crush Lafayette Central Catholic 16-0. The offense jelled for two touchdowns, and Mike Vogt kicked a 25-yard field goal, the first South Side three-pointer since 1948.

The Green met North Side in their next game and lost to the eventual city champs 32-6. The game was deadlocked at 6-all at half time, but the Redskins went on the warpath in the last two quarters as the Kelly defense could do nothing. It was more of the same against Central the next week. South led 7-6 at the half; but the Bengals came on to rally and win 26-7.

Elmhurst was next for the Archers. Two touchdowns behind at the half, the Green went to the single wing for the first time and ripped the game wide open. Gil Taynie and Jon Stennes combined to complete five of nine passes for 140 yards and two TD's, but the clock stopped the Kelly rally short at 19-12.

The Bowmen then traveled to Huntington and gave the rough Vikes a good fight before going down 13-7. They used the single wing throughout the game, but the Green drives were continually frustrated by fumbles. Then the Bowbenders went to Madison Heights where a stubborn Kelly defense held the high-flying Pirates to their lowest offensive output of the season, 300 yards.

The Green came home to protect their city reputation in the season finale, and Russ Worman's touchdown and Mike Vogt's extra point put the game out of C.C.'s reach, 7-6, and gave South its second win of the season.

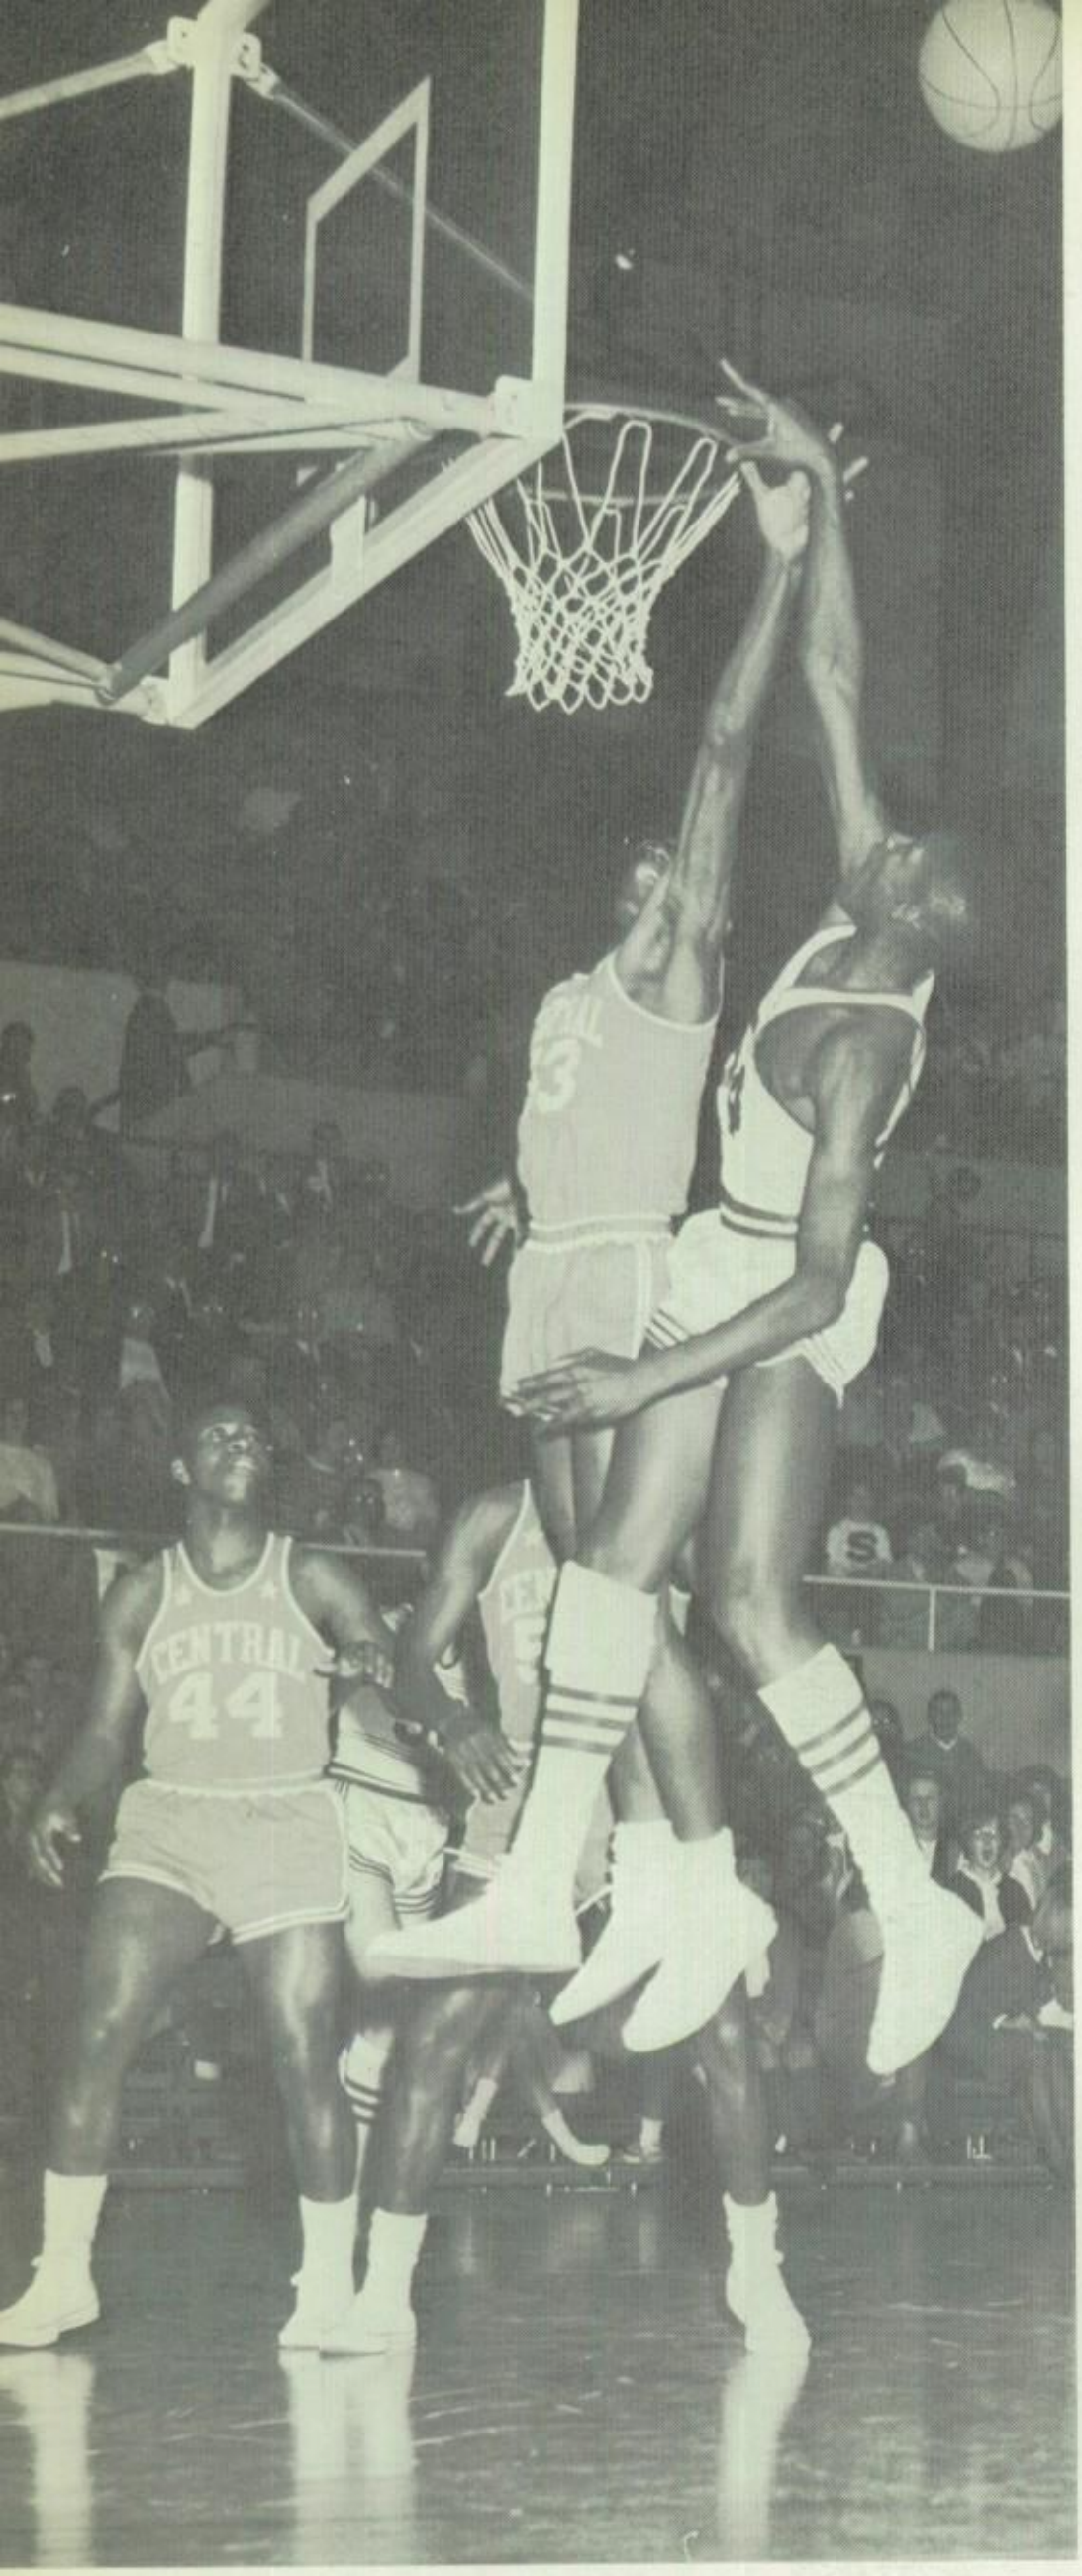
Bowbenders Conclude Losing

South Side's Archers started out the hardwood season looking forward to the dim prospects of a rebuilding season. The Kellys had only two returning roundballers with any game experience, and the Green had to rely heavily on underclassmen. However, under the able direction of head coach Don Reichert and assistant coach Porky Holt, the Archers jumped off to a good start and were in the thick of the city race by midseason.

Then, disaster struck, and South went skidding into an eight-game losing streak. But the Green pulled out of it in time to beat Huntertown for the Kelly's first tourney win in three years. This, along with good showings against two front-ranked quintets, added a little luster to the Archer's 8-14 season mark.

Senior guard Denny Peppler and sophomore center Willie Long led the Green in scoring, and they also received All-City laurels. Senior forward Stan Yoder received honorable mention in the All-City balloting. A consistent performer, although troubled by a bad back, Stan, along with Don Lambert, came through with a fine performance in the Sectional.

Seniors Dean Chidester, Ron Timma, and Jan Doran also did good jobs and gave the Archers plenty of depth. Junior John Leakey and sophomores Chuck Nelson and John Davis all did well in regular action and will be back next year along with Long; so it looks as if the South will rise again.



Soaring sophomore Willie Long leaps high for a layup and is fouled by Central's Herman Williams, who blocked the shot.

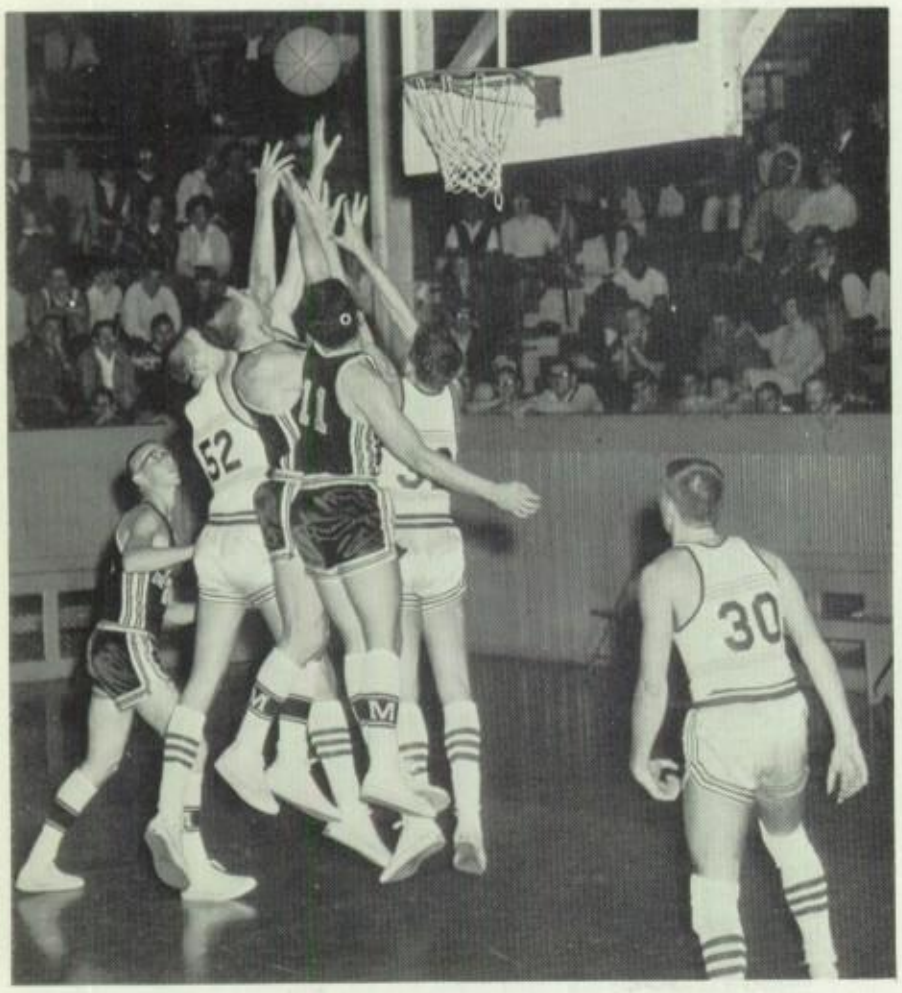
Archers Play Two Number-One-Ranked Quintets; Fall



Archers Don Lambert and Dean Chidister battle for a rebound under their defensive board against Mishawaka. The Kellys won 77-66.

South Side opened the cage campaign on a winning note by overwhelming Concordia 76-51 in the season debut. Four Kellys scored in double figures, and the outlook for the season was promising. The Bowmen traveled to Southport for their second game, and they got their first taste of defeat as the Cardinals counter-rallied in the final minute of play to win, 57-56. The Archers invaded Bluffton and Kendallville the following two weeks and scored easy victories. They caged the Tigers 70-51 and routed the Comets 83-50.

The Bowbenders then returned home to face rough North Side in a City Series showdown. They stayed with the Redskins all the way, but North's outside shooting and tight defense finally took its toll, and North managed a last-minute spurt to win 55-51.

The next night, the Archers took on Anderson, at that time rated number one in the state. The Indians were tough, but the Kellys kept right with them and were only five points behind at the three-quarter mark. Then the Green ran out of gas in the final stanza and went down to defeat 72-56.

Central Catholic was next on the list for the Bowmen. Denny Peppler, Willie Long, and Stan Yoder all scored in double figures to lead South to a 78-57 conquest. The Irish avenged their defeat by edging the Archers 63-61 in the title game of the Holiday Tourney. South got to the championship game by stopping Bishop Luers 82-61 in the semi-finals.

Luers also avenged its loss by downing the Green in an overtime thriller the following week. After a slow start, the Kelly Stan Yoder pulls down a defensive rebound against Bishop Luers and tries to find an open man down court as John Davis calls for the ball. The Archers trailed the Knights throughout the game but rallied to tie it at the final buzzer, only to lose 70-69 in overtime.

Twice To State Runners-Up

Bowbender guard John Leakey drives around Central's Jim Whitt and goes under for an easy layup. The Bengals went on to win 46-30.

Bowmen spent most of the game catching up. Jan Doran tied it with just seconds to go, but the Knights went on to win 70-69 in overtime. The Archers then bounced back to crush Mishawaka 77-66 and Madison Heights 61-58.

Thus, at the half-way point of the season, South had a winning 7-5 record; but then disaster struck and the Green went skidding into an unprecedented eight-game losing streak that lasted until tourney time. It started when the Kellys met Central in one of the lowest-scoring games in many years. South led 19-17 at the half, but the Tiger shooting thawed out a little in the final stanza, and the Bengals won 46-30.

Against Elmhurst, the Bowmen could not overcome a 20-4 first-quarter deficit and fell 75-53. Goshen was next. With five boys in double figures, the Green led at the three-quarter mark, but the visitors scored 33 points in the final period to win 82-67. Then the Kellys met North Side, the eventual state runner-up, for the second time. The Green offense couldn't jell, and the Archers lost 80-33. The Bowmen then lost to Michigan City, 88-76.

Gary Froebel was South's next foe. The Blue Devils had taken over Anderson's spot at the top of the prep ratings, and they showed why by crushing the Archers 91-75. The Green ended the regular season by dropping a second game to Central 50-40 and losing a hard-fought battle to Logansport, 59-56.

Things looked dark for South at Sectional time. Riding one of the longest losing streaks in years, the Kellys found themselves 19 points behind a determined Huntertown five with less than a quarter to play in their first tourney game. But the Archers responded to the call of Hoosier Hysteria and staged one of the biggest rallies in tournament history to tie it up and win their first tourney game in three years, 65-63 in overtime. The Green then went on to face heavily favored New Haven in the semi-finals and lost a thrilling seesaw struggle 68-55.

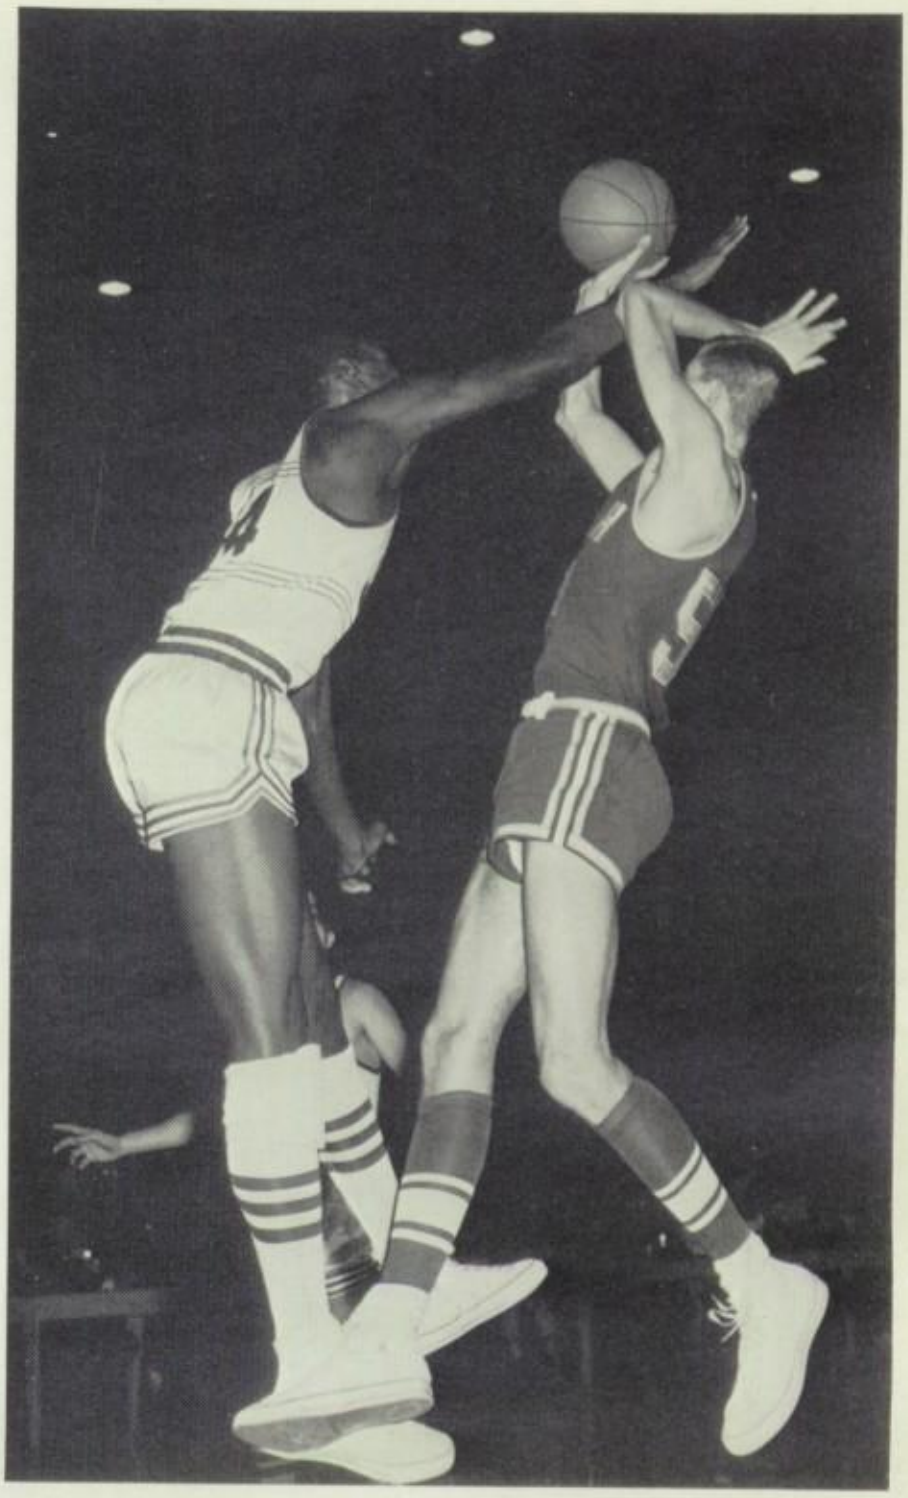
Kellys Win All-City Laurels



Kelly center Willie Long tries vainly to block a shot by C.C.'s Mike Weidemeier. The Irish won both the game and the Holiday Tourney.

Archer Cinder Squad Boasts

With a strong field of returning cindermen and a promising new crop of sophomores, the Archer track team, under the direction of Mr. Frank Geist, set out to make 1965 a successful season.

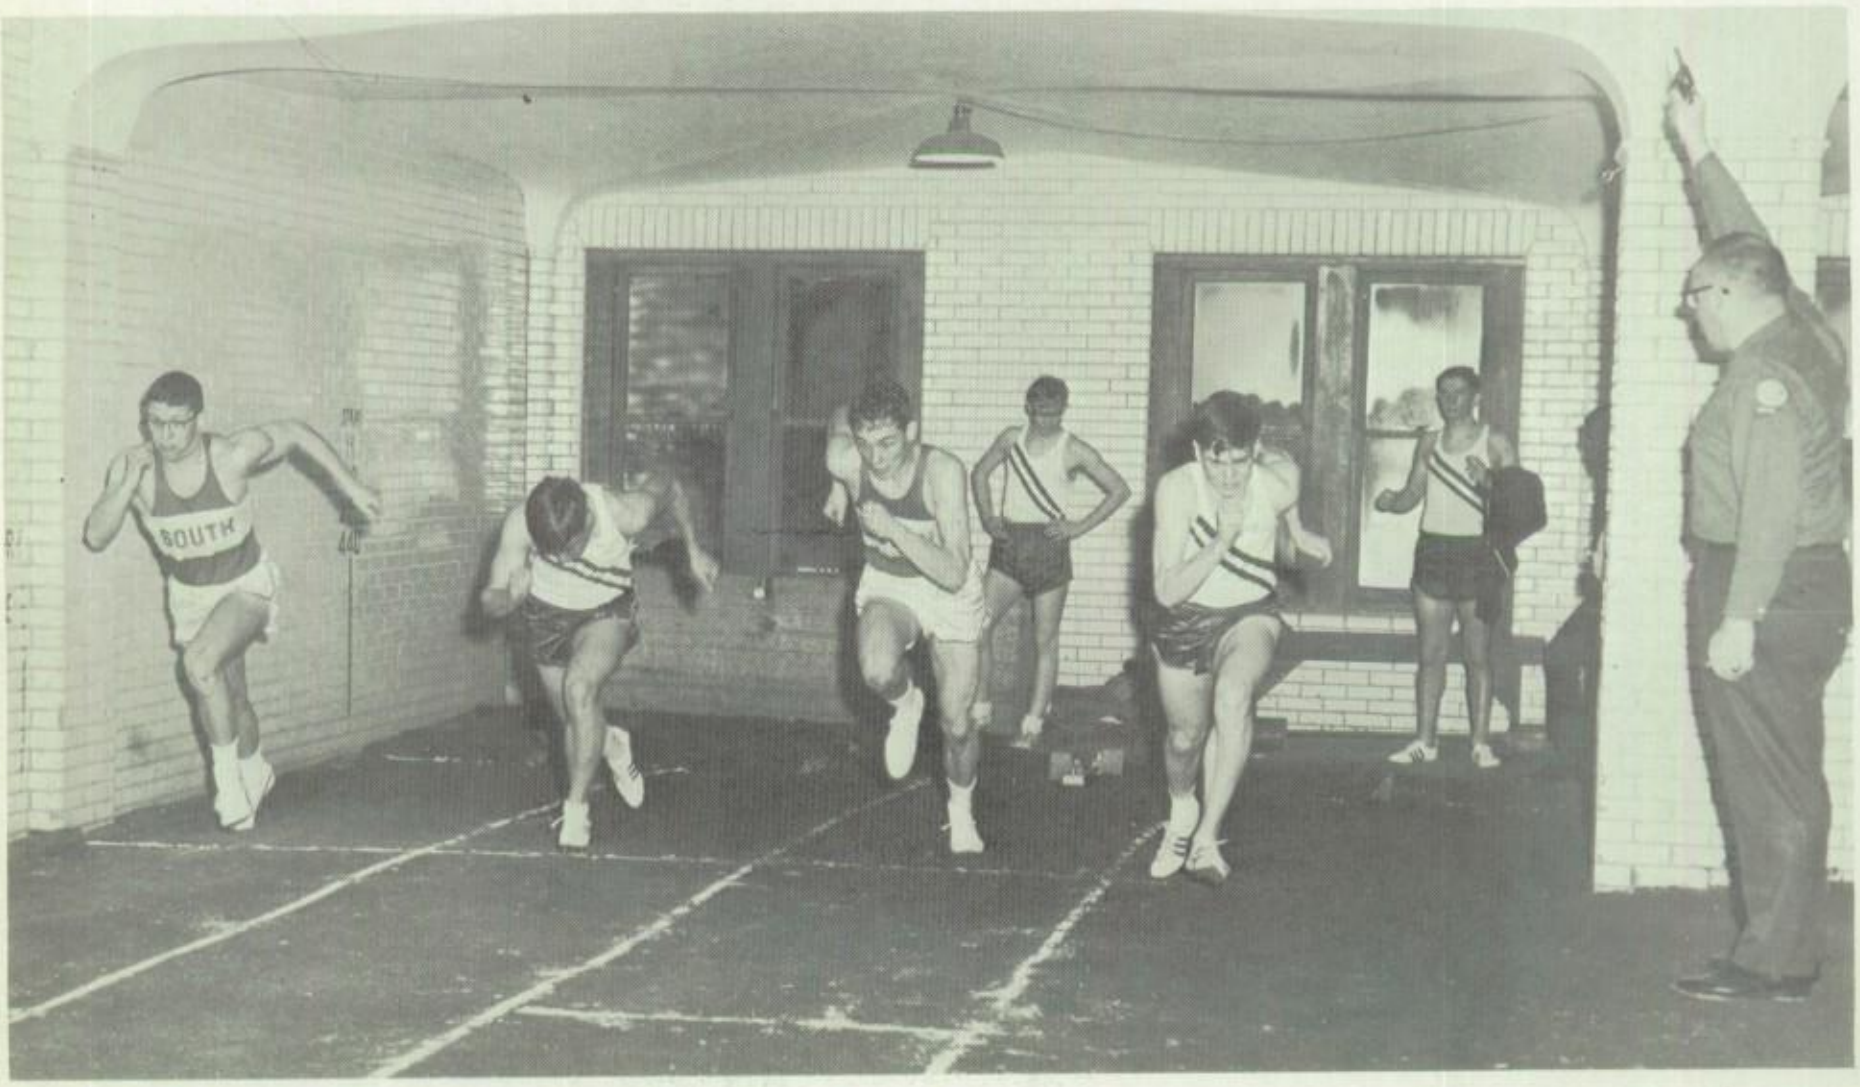
Rated as a good chance to wrestle the city cinder crown away from North Side, the Kellys had many outstanding performers but had to rely heavily on underclassmen.

The main Green stronghold was in the field events. The Bowmen had little trouble in sweeping the first two places of all field contests in their first meet against Culver Military. Willie Long, Denny Peppler, and Lanny Stults cleaned up in the pole vault. Art Walker and Ron Christon took one-two in the shot put as did Bo Underwood and Gene Smith in the broad jump and Steve Barker and Peppler in the pole vault. Mike Vogt also looked good in the pole vault for the Green.

In the sprints, Larry Hayes had some of the best dash times in the city. Kevin Geiger, Tom Muha, and Russ Worman had already turned in some fine times in the long sprints, and they were expected to leave a lot of foes in the dust.

Distance events could belong to South, as the Kelly cindermen appeared to have many good runners, including George Sherman, Cliff Kuhn, Jim Brookhart, Jim Orr, Tom Russell, Phil Cox, and Denny Teague. Phil Schieb and Lanny Stults had good times in both the high and low hurdles.

Thus with a strong nucleus of sophomores and their 70-39 win over Culver, the Archers seemed bound for a successful campaign during the remaining part of the year.



Archers Russ Worman and Tom Muha spring off the starting blocks against two Culver runners in the 45-yard dash. The Kellys met the Cadets for their first indoor meet of the season, and South went on to pile up an impressive 70-39 victory over the tough Culver squad.

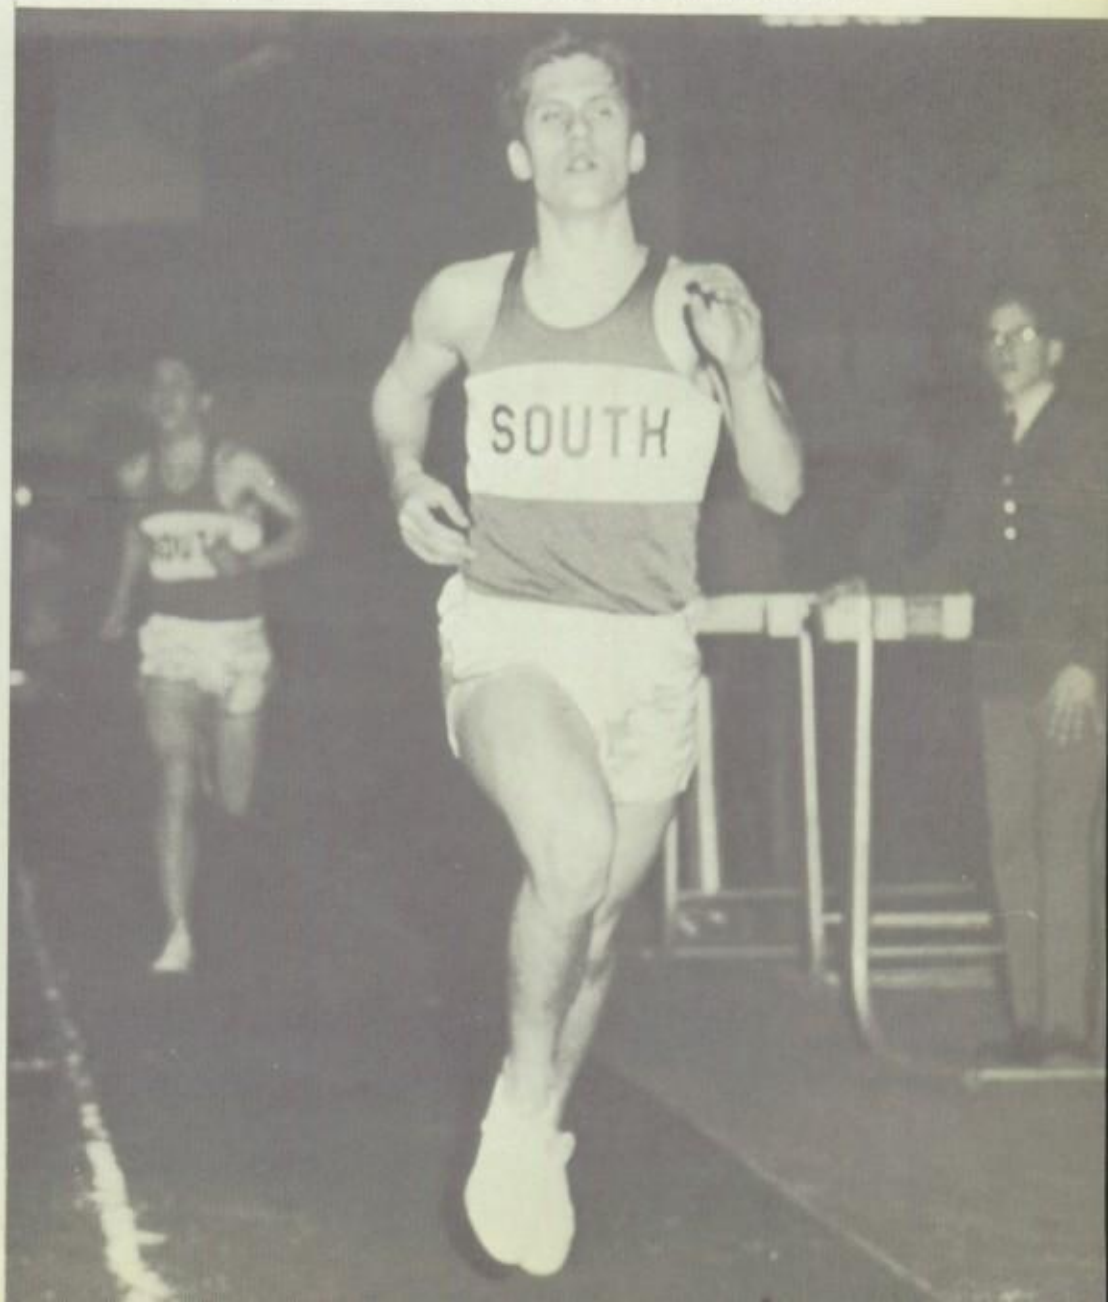
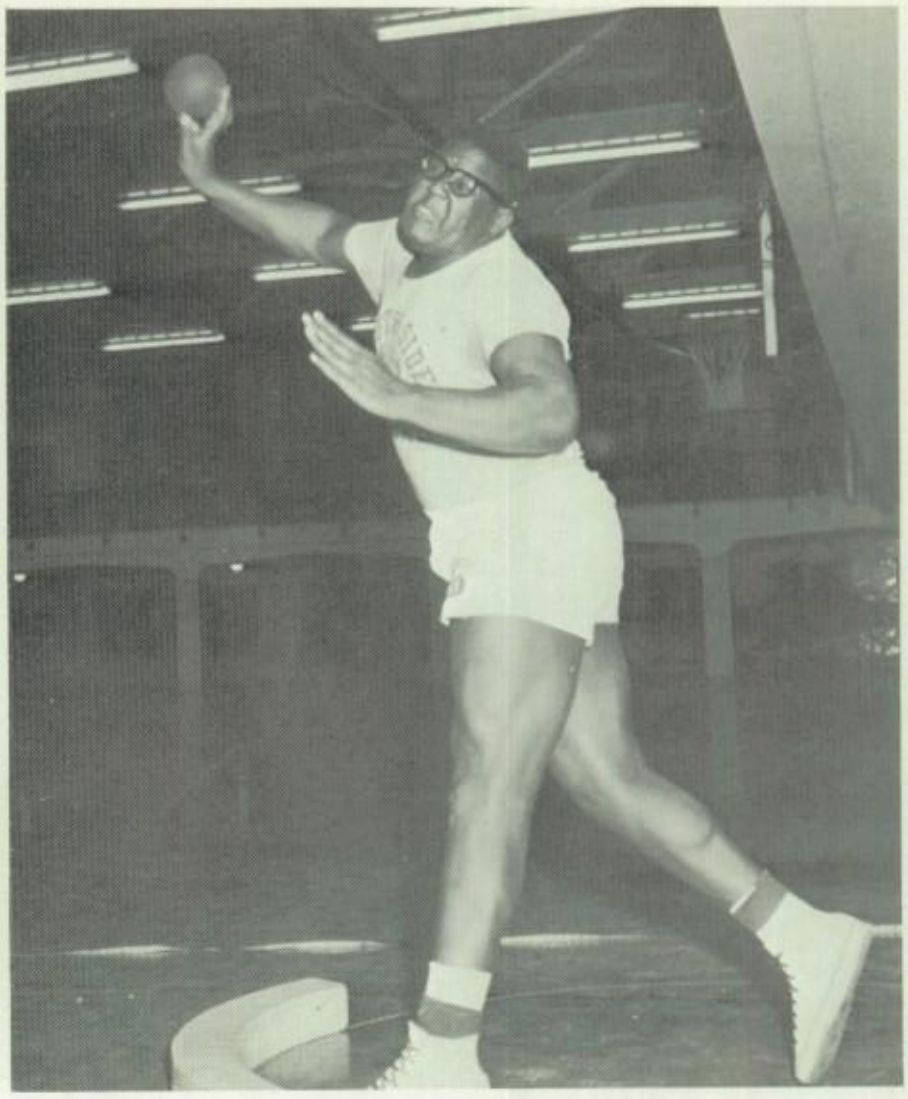
Sophomore Bob Barker clears the bar at 10-6 to take first place at Culver. Denny Peppler took second as the Green cleaned up in the field events.

Distance runner Cliff Kuhn starts the gun lap in the mile against Culver. Cliff is followed by Lynn Hoover; they finished one-two in the event.



With a final burst of speed, Dana Trier passes the baton to Fred Orr in the mile relay. Culver won the relay, but the Archers won the meet.



Straining for extra distance, Art Walker lets loose with a first-place toss of 50-7 in the Culver Fieldhouse. South swept the field events.

Kelly Harriers Rout Culver Military In First Track Test;

After building up a good-sized lead over the Cadets in the 880 relay, Marvin Underwood relinquishes the baton to Bob Clevenger. Culver won the relay, but Underwood evened the score by taking first place in the broad jump with a leap of 18-11.

Harriers Compile 8-4 Season, Place Fourth In Sectional

In its first year under the direction of Mr. Frank Geist, Cross Country and Track coach, the harrier squad compiled a record of eight wins and four losses, finishing the season with a fourth-place showing in the State Sectionals.

The team had its first meet with the North Side runners, and the Archers won easily by a score of 18-43, with George Sherman and Roger Swift, both seniors, finishing first and second. The Kelly thinlies then beat Central 20-43 before falling to Elmhurst, 22-33. Central Catholic and Huntington were the next victims, losing by scores of 15-48 and 15-50, as Sherman came in first in both runs.

On their only long trip of the season, the Greenclad runners were trounced by Kokomo 21-40, but the Bowmen redeemed themselves with two wins at Foster Park, the home course, with an 18-40 victory over Huntertown and a 17-42 romp over Concordia. Swift won both races in the absence of Sherman. In the next run, a dual meet with state champion Ashley and a strong Marion squad, the Archers fell to Ashley 20-35 but beat Marion 21-35. South finished the regular season by splitting another dual run, losing to Elkhart 21-36 and beating Warsaw 17-42.

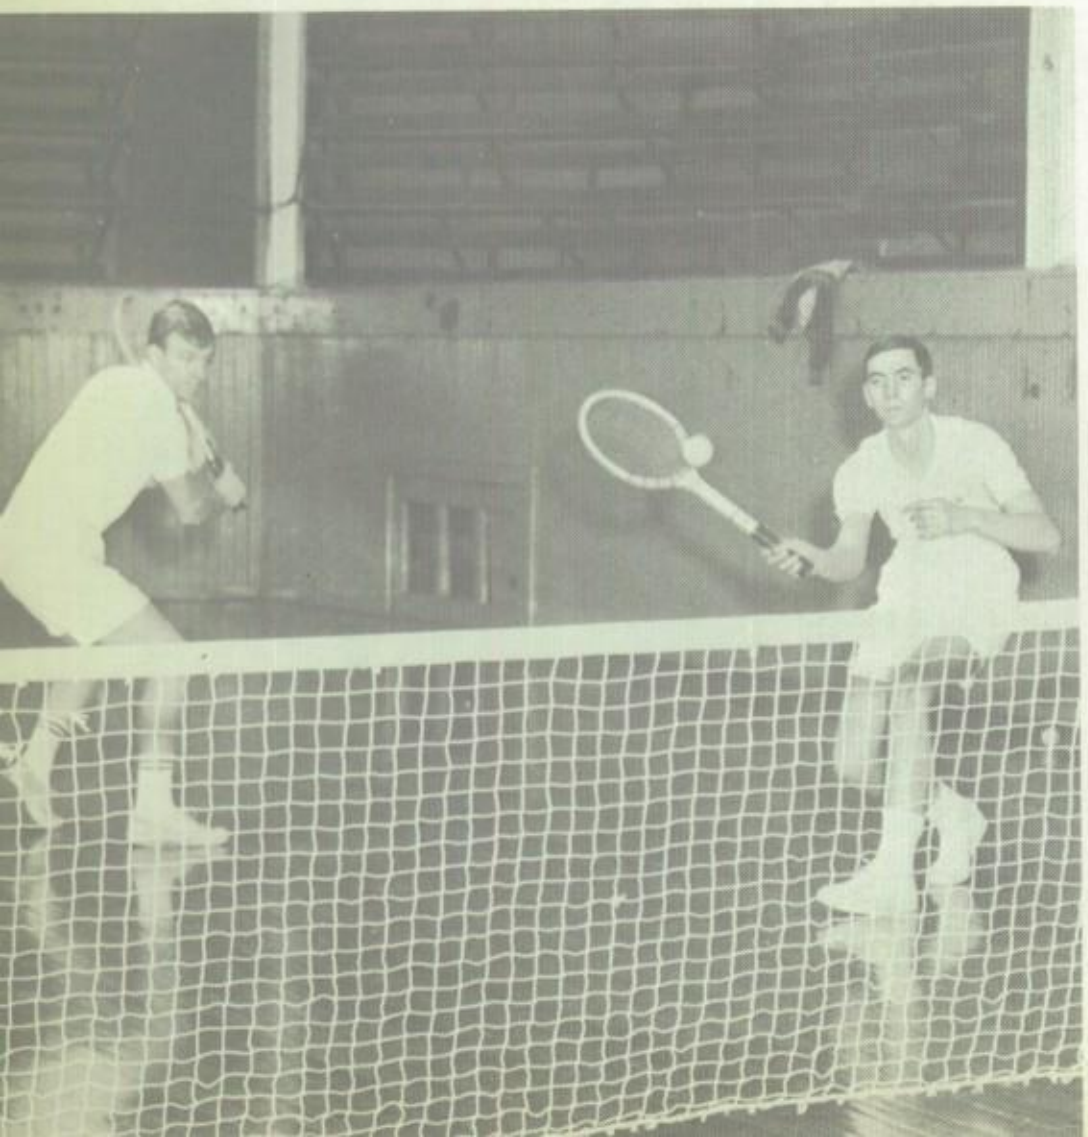
The harriers just ran out of steam going into the sectionals, and a team composed of Swift and Sherman, George Zaderej and John McCallister, both juniors, Sophomores Bob Marsh and Steve Smith, and Senior Clifford Kuhn placed behind Elmhurst, North, and New Haven with a total of 150 points. Despite the loss, South looked strong for the coming seasons, having only three seniors leaving the team and a reserve squad with a 14-1 record for the year.

Kelly George Sherman strains for the finish line in a meet with North Side. Roger Swift finishes close behind for a one-two sweep.

VARSITY TENNIS TEAM—Front row: Stan Phillips, Joel Salon, Chad Stetler, Howard Bower. Back row: Tom Parrish, Dick Leopold, Coach Everett Havens, Dennis Laue, Gil Haynie. The team has three returning lettermen and is looking forward to a successful season.

Archer Tennis Team Looks Tough, Faces Hard Season

Seniors Gil Haynie and Tom Parrish, the number-one Kelly doubles team, sharpen their form in an early season practice match.



Five returning seniors and some talented underclassmen gave the 1965 South Side tennis season the promise of being a winning one.

Coach Everett Havens, in his eighteenth season as mentor of the Archer net squad, had three lettermen—Gil Haynie, Tom Parrish, and Denny Laue—on which to build this year's team. Each boy was back for his third year with the Green and White and had plenty of prep experience. The other two returning seniors were Dick Leopold and Howard Bower, both of whom saw action as juniors.

Two juniors, James Leonard and Tom Tarleton, were transfer students from out-of-state, but they both had played a lot of tennis. Four talented sophomores, Joel Salon, Steve Powell, Chad Stettler, and Steve Weinraub, also looked as if they would keep the upperclassmen hustling for their regular roles.

Each tennis match consists of five singles and two doubles. Haynie and Parrish held down the top two spots on the squad; and Laue, Leopold, and Bower filled in the second three slots.

The Kelly neters played a 15-match schedule this year as well as hosting the South Side Doubles and competing in the Muncie Burris Singles Tourney and the Culver Invitational. In addition to the five city contenders, the Green met Marion, Peru, Muncie Central, Bluffton, Huntington, Frankfort, Goshen, Burris, and Howe.

Veterans Spark Golf Squad In Search For City Crown

Hindered by a cold and snowy spring, the Archer golf squad finally got out on the links in early April and set out to capture the city golf crown which had eluded the Kelly's grasp for the past two years.

Since last year was somewhat of a rebuilding season for the Green, Coach Robert Drummond had plenty of experienced par chasers with which to build this year's team. Returning this spring were Senior Robin Pherson and Juniors Art Robson and Craig Alvis. Coach Drummond also had a good turnout of juniors and seniors to help fill the rest of the ranks.

Four Kellys usually made the trip to away matches, while as many as six boys played in the City Series mets. The prep golf matches are scored on both match and medal play; so it took a good team effort to earn a victory.

The Bowmen played all their home games on the Brookwood, Lakeside, or Elks turf. Their only three matches on the road were at Garrett, Decatur, and Auburn.

The Archers played in six City Series matches, two of them being triangular meets. They met North Side, Elmhurst, Bishop Luers, and Central Catholic twice. The Kellys also played in the city tournament. South won three of the first seven local tourneys and were a strong bet to make it four.

During their grueling 14-game schedule, the Bowbenders played three of their out-of-town opponents, New Haven, Garrett, and Auburn, twice and they met Decatur once. They also competed in the links Sectional at Elkhart in May.

'Spring Showdown'; Banquet Highlights Busy GAA Year

Meeting on Monday nights, the Girls' Athletic Association completed its thirty-ninth successful year. Directed by Mrs. Alice Keegan, girls competed in a wide variety of games and sports while learning the fundamentals of sportsmanship.

Highlighting the year was the annual recognition banquet in January. The banquet, "Semester Showdown," incorporated recognition with fun. Both decorations and entertainment centered around a colorful Western theme. Serving as the guest speaker for the affair was Miss Pauline Van Gorder, dean of girls.

Awards were given in the form of numerals, letters, and gold pins. The highest award, a plaque, was presented at the end of the year to the senior girl who had accumulated the highest number of points throughout her years in G.A.A.

Representing more than fun, exercise, competition, and a chance for recognition, the Girls' Athletic Association emphasized the team work, physical fitness, and sportsmanship.

Another function of the physical education department was the Spring Show. Advanced tumblers, advance dancers, modern dancers, and gym classes were featured in the 1965 Spring Show, "Reveries in Rhythm."

Under the direction of Mrs. Marjorie Armstrong, the advanced dancers proved their agility in various modern dance routines. Advanced tumblers, directed by Mrs. Alice Keegan, demonstrated their skills on both mats and trampoline. Nearly 300 girls participated in the Spring Show, which served as a colorful climax to a year's efforts.

Several girls team up to return a serve in giant volleyball. This was one of the most popular sports on the GAA calendar.

Advanced tumblers practicing an intricate formation for the spring show are Sharon Higgins, Kathy Swathwood, Mary Freeman, Bonnie Hofherr, Conra Anweiler, Linda Churchwood, Bonnie Post, Louisa Porter, and Linda Post.

Intramurals Offer Chance

Offering one of the finest programs anywhere, the South Side Intramural Department completed its thirty-sixth year providing the opportunity to all boys of participating in athletics. This program, under the direction of Mr. Clair Motz, offered competition in 23 sports to boys unable to participate in varsity sports.

The program was divided into noon and after-school competition, with a further division into light, middle, and heavyweight groups. These divisions make competition more fair, and they give more boys and teams the chance to be winners.

There were many different names in the winner's spot this year. To start off the year, Ernie Piearce and Jan Vanderwall were the cross country champions in the light and middle divisions respectively. They both established records on a new course. In the fall bowling tournament, Steve Goble, Larry Zimmerman, Bob Bellis were winners in their divisions.

The fall tennis tourney crowned Larry Botz, Steve Shoaff and Ron Everson as champions. In horseshoes the winners were Larry Botz, Kent Bainbridge, and Bill Griffith. In golf the lightweight championship was shared by Greg Lyst and Larry Petrie. The other winners in the middle and heavy divisions were Bob Fisher and Les Cook. In tag football the Falcons, captained by Steve Quinn, came out on top of the light weight loop. The Himicanes, under command of Tom McCoy, won the heavyweight pigskin championship.

In handball singles, the noon winners were Steve Butcher and John Gustafson. The after-school champions were Kent Bainbridge and Val Budowski. In doubles, the light weight champions were Steve Butcher and Larry Petris. The heavy winners were Steve Becker and John Gustafson. After school the winners were Larry Botz, Bob Horn, and Val Budowski and Bob Jackson.

The boys who hit the most out of the eighty in the noon free throw tourney were Dave Nettrour, Maurice Miller, and Dave Werstler. In the after-school tourney the winners were Tom Westerman, Denny Mahuren, and Jack Buzzard, but no one was able to top Jan Doran's record of 73 set last year. The lightweight noon basketball champs were the Zephyrs, piloted by Joel Salon. The Dukes, whose captain was Butch Goseff, were the heavyweight winners. The Zephyrs and the Dukes were also winners in the noon volleyball competition.

In after-school basketball, the major-division champs were Rick Ervin's Good Pies. The minor division champs were the Scrubs of Kent Bainbridge.

Badminton was one of the last sports offered. Winners were Jim Nidlinger and Roger Allmandinger. The after-school lightweight winner was Denny Mahuren.

All these participants, besides having fun and getting good experience, earned points which they put toward school letters. Sophomores earning 140 points received letters, while juniors and seniors needed 125 points. For every award after his third letter, a boy had his name put on a special plaque. Points were given for participation in an event, and extra points were given to winners and team captains. The Intramural Department has certainly proved that "It Pays to Play."

For Kelly Boys To Compete In Wide Variety Of Sports

Mr. Clair Motz, South Side's versatile Intramural Director, gives Jim Stone some valuable serving pointers in handball.

Zeroing in on the stake is Ron Koenig as Bill Griffith waits to match his skill in the Fall Horseshoe Tournament.

Two Kellys don the gloves for an intramural boxing exhibition as Mr. Motz referees. The boys worked out after school and had several supervised matches. Boxing is only one of the 23 sports available to boys in the comprehensive South Side Intramural program.

Underclassmen

Officers of the Class of 1966 are Cindy Craw (social council chairman), Tim Byers (president), John McCallister (secretary-treasurer), Ron Christon (social council member), Darryl Jones (vice president), and Tim Craig (social council member).

Class Of 1966 Selects Officers To Plan Social Year;

Junior sponsors Mr. Robert Kelly, Mr. Robert Petty, and Miss Margaret Graham advise officers about plans for the Junior Prom.

We are always busy studying or going to class, organizing clubs and attending meetings, participating in pep rallies and after-game dances, making decoration in anticipation of the Junior Prom, electing officers, backing our teams, or just getting together with the gang around the lockers.

Daily recitations, ringing bells, squeaking desks, shining the seniors' shoes — all are a part of our world. Those little sayings that teachers always have, the crowded halls that are quickly emptied after school, racing to meetings or to the library, going to Hall's for lunch — these, too, are part of our world.

As teenagers we are constantly searching for answers to our problems. Though we will not understand some of these answers until we are older, our teachers help us with many of them and teach us to find the rest for ourselves. Many teachers spend time before and after school helping students with their assignments and personal problems. Teachers not only prepare us for good future study habits but also prepare us for the outside after graduation.

We have discovered our research is not confined to science classes alone, for there is the research paper we are required to write in our junior year. In some classes the use of records or movies helps us gain a more thorough understanding of the subject. Lab experiments and reports on special topics build our school life into a more than ordinary one.

We are not too busy, though, to attend school dances, talk on the telephone for hours, go to the movies, or have a snack at Hall's. Even these activities reassure us that not a moment is wasted of our special "Bejuniored" world.

Music brings smiles to faces of class officers Steve Weinraub, social council chairman; Tom Fleming, vice-president; Mike Phelps, social council member; Jim Lohman, president; Dave Junk, secretary-treasurer; and Sally Rietdorf, social council member.

One of the three sophomore sponsors, Mr. Alfred Hemmer, entertains his associates, Miss Lutie Young and Mr. Gary Crawford.

In September of 1964, the corridors of South Side High School again came to life. The halls bustled with more than 600 new sophomores who, though unaccustomed to high school, sought to involve themselves in its activities. Thus, the last nine months have proven a challenge to all young people who thirst for knowledge, fellowship, and personal development.

Influenced by such men as Euclid, Shakespeare, Mark Twain, and Benjamin Null, sophomores have added considerably to their store of knowledge. As well, they have had opportunity for physical improvement through physical education classes and a varied intramural program.

Organizations such as Wranglers, Meterite, Safety Council, and Assemblies Workshop have presented a challenge for leadership self-improvement, and service. Outlets for fun and social activity came on the forms of ball games, after-game dances and the Sophomore Party.

Reacting well to challenge and opportunity, sophomores have matured considerably in a short year. Mastering innumerable matters of procedure, they have become oriented to a new and challenging way of life. Having adopted and been adopted by South Side, sophomores were soon ready to donate time and energy for the activities and improvement of a school which is now their own.

This growth, in all its forms, however, must not cease with the coming of summer. Now friendships will be deepened, knowledge digested and organized, and fitness maintained. Because sophomores have met the challenges and taken advantage of the opportunities of their first year at South Side, the future years hold a promise of happiness, excellence in academics and outstanding achievement in sports.

Fire Drill? No, the underclassmen line the curb around the school awaiting the appearance of the Ivy Day queen and her court in the traditional parade of seniors. This event marks the first of the numerous graduation festivities.

All Totem Staff Members Endure Hard Day's Nights

It's been a long year — through deadlines, missing pictures, stacks of candy bars, seemingly hundreds of galleys and ten thousand grammar mistakes that had to be corrected, almost a thousand sheets of film, a smashed camera, snowstorms, copy lost and found, cropping of pictures, hundreds of dummy layouts, and thousands of hours of time spent on the Totem. Yet the final product, this 1965 Totem, has been worth the effort.

Special thanks are due the many people who helped make these things bearable: the staff at School Press, who managed to read our scrawled script; Watters Studio for the formal senior and organization pictures, as well as the hundreds of pictures they printed for us; the men at Fort Wayne Engraving Company, for their patient advice on all of our engraving problems; Keefer Printing Company, which printed the book; and the S. K. Smith Company for the production of the covers.

However, our most special thanks are awarded to our adviser, Miss Anne White, for her patient guidance and exacting demands that everything be correct. Finally, we would like to thank all of the teachers who freely gave of their time to interrupt classes for Totem pictures.

To my darling Laurel,

I thought I had all that I was going to say here all figured out, but now that I start to write I have different thoughts running through my head. It's hard to express my exact feelings toward you honey, but at least here I am not writing in a mood - rather from my heart the true expressions of my love that flow silently under outward disturbances and at other times show themselves as they do now. You are all that I have to live for. Everything I do is done with you in mind. I do not want to do anything that would displease you because I have such high respect and such great love for you. If you would ever leave me for good my life would fall apart. My soul would die and I would only exist, living wild as an animal. I am only now beginning to find out what life is really like. The years before I came to Ft. Wayne were wasted. The difference between what I was like then and now is the difference between night and day. It has almost entirely been because of you. Oh, Laurel love, you have changed me and done things for me that will last for eternity. Even if we were only friends, I could never thank you enough. I thank God though that you are my sweetheart and that soon we will be able to share our lives together, none too soon. I love you so much that I absolutely cannot express it. I can only love you to show my love and that is hardly enough, so I show my love in everything that I do and say. I am so madly in love with you that my whole life hinges on what you do and say to me. In other words - I am completely yours forever. You can make me happy or sad. You are wonderful!! As I sit here I could almost cry tears of happiness just thinking about you. Everything I wrote on this page is true, but as I read it over it sounds empty. I suppose if I filled this book telling how much I love you in many different ways, it would still be lacking. Even in a lifetime I'll never be able to adequately express my love for you. I love you with everything I am, now and forever.

Forever your sweetheart, Allen

To my best friend - Laurel

It's been so nice having your friendship the last few years. You not only have brains & looks, but also a wonderful personality to go along with them. (It's no wonder Allan's nuts about you!) and I've really enjoyed knowing you & can't believe we're going to be seniors already next year. I'm dreading it in a way, but yet I'm afraid to it, but yet in a sort of "I'll be sure not to lose contact" separate ways & sort of way. That's a happy thot to put in our yearbook, isn't it?! Oh well, I just had to say it. We've really had a lot of fun this year - not much in the special things occurrences. Remember how we walked to school on everyday, complained to each other about our homework, and on Laurel, remember those Monday mornings when we'd tell each other about our weekends ... & how we had so much to tell each other there was Allan ... & our summer vacations as you are now and I'm dreading it in a year. Have a wonderful summer & stay 'hit' everywhere. Thank you for your friendship & all the things you've thought me. Love, Connie

P.S. Please excuse the sloppy writing. At this moment I'm listening to the radio, penning up my hair, drinking ice-tea, & finishing your note! I hope you didn't say the same thing in my book that I said in yours!
